ON THE MONEY

From the Moneycard Collector offices in western Ohio, we can look out over the farm fields being prepared for spring planting. Inside those offices, we are busy sowing the seeds for the growth of the moneycard collecting hobby. Welcome to the second edition of the newly formatted Moneycard Collector!

If you had seen the magazine before, but missed our revamped March edition, then let's quickly bring you up to speed. We are now a larger format with larger card images, and all that information that you've come to expect - "America's Most Wanted," "New Issues," "Hot Cards," the only printed monthly price guide in the industry, a column for beginners, feature stories, columns on refunding offers and top promotional phonecards and much more.

A magazine won't exist long without the support of its readers, and as we race toward our fourth anniversary, we have incorporated new ways to make the readers' voice heard.

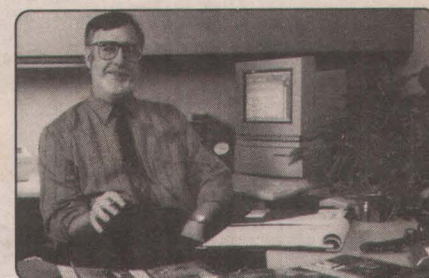

Your views are encouraged in both our "Guest Commentary" and "Readers Always Write" departments, and your reactions to each month's edition are sought in our monthly reader survey (please see Page 6 - win prizes!). We also seek your submissions to our "Promos & Offers" column (please see Page 5) and give readers a chance to swap cards with each other in "Trading Post" (please see Page 46).

For the newest way to help shape the magazine, please turn to "America's Most Wanted" (Pages 12-13) and read about our call for "Readers' Favorites." By asking readers to add their opinions to the ones we solicit from dealers, we aim to make "America's Most Wanted" even more popular than it already is. This is your invitation to help us.

Of course, those methods chronicled above are just the obvious ways to interact with us. The Moneycard Collector staff is always willing to hear your concerns and opinions on any hobby-related topic. The phone numbers and e-mail addresses are all listed on Page 4, but let me repeat the latter here, and encourage you to use them:

Moneycards need a grading system

Has anyone ever thought about the condition of cards and how they are graded? Sure, we all have, haven't we? But have we ever considered how others in other countries understand this?

Also, is it different in the United States than it is, say, in Italy or France or Greece, and do they understand it differently than we do? I am afraid the answer to that may be "yes." How they understand grading and how we understand it might well be two different meanings. There is really no uniform language in grading.

There was a discussion of mint-unused cards and if "mint" means in perfect condition or if "mint" is a grade in itself. I consider mint-unused to be just that, unused, nothing more. A "mint" card could be mint-unused and be in the worst possible condition, therefore, ultimately, it could be worth less as a collectible than a used card.

However, it was stated, the time was still good, so it is worth more than a used - but for its time only, not as a collectible. To me, a collectible should be in the best condition possible, as I do not collect "time." It is the card we seek, not the time on it.

I grade cards in the following way and I think that it is easily understood:

S = Superb, in excellent condition, hardly noticeable scratches or in packaging unopened.

XF = Extra Fine, near perfect condition, very limited scratches or marks.

VF = Very Fine, in exceptional condition, scratches noticeable, show use.

F = Fine, in above good condition, could have some heavy scratching, show a little more use, it is a narrow range, between Good and Very Fine.

G = Good, good as a collectible, heavy scratches maybe, a little more worn from use.

P = Poor, only take this if you can get nothing else, a filler, until you can get better.

Of course, as in all things, people have to use good common sense in this as well. Mint does not mean in good condition; it only means "unused" in my mind. So it is best to grade all cards so that the person you're selling to knows the condition the plastic is in. Dealers should do this with all auctions as well.

Some may say, "What makes you think we need a grading system? What help would that be to the collector?" Some also may say, "Would it be the same in the U.S. as it would be in Europe or Asia?" All are good questions.

Without a grading system to tell you card conditions, you would have no idea what you are getting. It might well be a mint-unused card, but a train might have run over it as well, and most collectors would not like the result. Do not assume that just because a card is mint unused that it is in perfect condition, that is not always true. And just because a card has time on it that has not been used, does not make it a card worth collecting.

Do not assume that because a card is mint or a dealer is selling it, that it is in perfect condition, as that may not be the case. The same would apply to used cards. While they are used, it is assumed that there would be wear and scratches on them. But to what degree would this be? The grading system would tell you that and help you in making a decision on whether to buy it or not.

Be sure to grade those cards so that you know what you're getting or the condition it is in! And, if you do not ask, then who do you blame?

Ivan White

Ivan White is a South Dakota resident who has been collecting phonecards for about five years. He is the founder of an automated free e-mail list for phonecard collectors and dealers. If you would like to join the automated e-mail list, then send the word, <subscribe phonecards> in the letter area, not the subject area, to, majordomo@list-service.net, then all you have to do is confirm it when it responds to you. He has since turned over the operation of the list to Ofir Nadav of California.

GUEST COMMENTARY

READERS ALWAYS WRITE

Where is everyone?

Where is everyone? I'm here sitting in the office, updating my collection's inventory, marveling on how some of my cards have appreciated, disappointed that some values have remained stagnant and surprised at how far some of the cards have fallen in value. Alone, I update my inventory. Alone, I read Moneycard Collector and several other magazines. Alone, I review Internet sites. Yes, this hobby can be a solitary one, but it needn't be done alone.

My first trade show/exhibit was the San Francisco Phone Phair in March 1994. It was exciting, energizing and (well, gosh darn it) fun. There was excellent newspaper coverage prior to the event and it was geared toward collectors. Me, well I was just looking for a new hobby and I sure latched onto this one quickly. My very first card was a German Disney card. I picked up a few AT&T TeleTickets, too. Neither fit into my collection's theme any longer, so I've traded the TeleTickets, but hold onto the Disney card for sentimental reasons.

The best part of the show was the camaraderie shared by dealers and other collectors. I was green; I never had collected anything before, let alone telecards. The dealers and other collectors shared their enthusiasm, made me feel welcome and encouraged. I was hooked.

Next came TeleCard World, followed by their Los Angeles exhibit (subtitled "collector, go home). The next San Francisco show lacked the planning of Phone Phair and was sparsely attended on those days that I visited. Another year at TeleCard World came with the realization that collectors were not very welcome.

So, during 1997, I visited no exhibit, traveled to no show. I sat in my office, updating the inventory, reading Moneycard Collector, visiting Internet sites. Alone. (OK, I do spend some time talking on the phone with dealers, placing orders and asking about new cards and those missing from my collection.)

I've accumulated some 400 different cards during these past four years. I principally collect Baby Bells and I want to visit trade shows and/or exhibits which fit my collection. But which ones? The magazines do not tell me how much or rather, how little, the various collectible fairs will devote to telecards, stored value cards and other moneycards.

Here then is a challenge. To Moneycard Collector, please advise us how much of the various collector shows listed in the Calendar section are devoted to telecards, stored-value cards and other moneycards. To the dealers, tell us through your advertising which shows you patronize. Better yet, work collaboratively with the various collector shows to advertise and promote your attendance.

Collectors are anxious to visit you, buy and trade from you and we want to engage current collectors and encourage new ones. We are not alone — we just need to know where you will be.

Contests, contests, contests

Thanks for sending me the phonecards for being a runner-up in the January-February "The Ultimate MCI Card ..." contest.

Aside from collecting phonecards and enjoying Moneycard Collector, I also am an avid sweepstaker (one who enters sweepstakes). To that end, I am enclosing a set of four different 1997 Coca-Cola/Smith's Phone Home Free three-minute cards to be awarded to one lucky Moneycard Collector reader by you in any type of sweepstakes or contest. I acquired these cards one-by-one and spent a lot of time, effort and postage in doing so. I now know the meaning of the term "chase cards"!

Since the reverses of these cards state "not for resale," I don't think these will be available through dealers, which should make them all the more desirable. They feature nice Coca-Cola archival art work — my personal favorite is the Icicles Coke Bottle card.

This is my way of thanking you and your entire staff at Moneycard Collector magazine, plus the good folks at Coca-Cola and Smith's.

I am not a dealer or connected in any way to Coca-Cola, Smith's TekTel or BLT. I'm just a collector.

Ed Matukonis, Forty Fort, PA.

Would you like to win these cards? Just tell us in 75 words or less your most interesting story related to tracking down a desired moneycard. Type or neatly print your response and send that information, along with your name, address and phone number, to Chase Card Contest, care of Tom Williams, Editor, Moneycard Collector, 911 Vandemark Road, Sidney, Ohio 45365. You may also fax entries to (937) 498-0876 or e-mail them to twilliams@amospress.com. One entry per person, please. The deadline for this contest is May 8, 1998.

Wow! What a spectacular way to say "thank you"! Your wish is our command, Ed. Since you went through a lot of chasing to accumulate these cards, it is only fair that our readers share their own card-chasing experiences for a chance to win them. Readers who want a crack at the Coca-Cola/Smith's cards pictured here should read the rules in the accompanying box, above.

PROMOS & OFFERS

A variety of phonecard offers, some old, some new, are in the spotlight for April. Refunders and sharp-eyed shoppers can find phonecard offers accompanying everything from golf balls to ballpoint pens. Dig in!

REVLON/CINDY CRAWFORD – This is a Smarttalk/AT&T Walgreens/Revlon 30-minute phonecard. It is gorgeous, with the Revlon logo with Cindy Crawford puckering up with bright red lips! The phonecard is red as well. Card is expired, but has an exposed PIN.

CAMPBELLS/MICHELLE KWAN – Sprint Campbell's "Go for the Gold" 5-minute phonecard featuring Michelle Kwan. Shows Michelle skating and has her signature on it. It also has the Campbell's logo. It was very hard to get. You mailed in a form and UPC from a bulk case of Campbells ramen noodles. The offer expired in October.

KEEBLER/SUNSHINE – This 10-minute BLT (Worldcom) card was available by mailing in a form and UPCs from any Keebler or Sunshine product. The offer expired Jan. 31, 1998. The form was available in military commissaries, but cards were mailed to both military and non-military persons.

SPRINT PROPA PH – These 10-minute and 30-minute phonecards are available by mailing in the form attached to the Propa PH bottle (a type of skin care product), with UPC and receipt. To receive the 10-minute card, you send in one UPC and receipt; to receive the 30-minute card, you send in two UPCs and receipt(s). Since you are only allowed one card per household, you have to choose which card you would like and try to get the other through trading, etc. Form expires in August 2000.

DIET PEPSI – If Diet Pepsi is your drink, then you'll want to be on the lookout for MCI phonecards in 12- and 24-packs of Diet Pepsi in a promotion in April. There will be 5-minute cards in the 12 packs of Diet Pepsi, and 10-minute cards in the 24 packs. That's the word from message sent to Pepsico, Pepsi-Cola and Frito Lay employees and later posted on the Internet.

GOLDPOINT BALL POINT PENS – A 5-minute phonecard is attached to blister packs of Goldpoint ball point pens at K-Mart. The pens cost $9.95.

Q-TIPS COTTON SWABS – A 10-minute prepaid card is found inside specially marked packages that contain 500 Q-Tips cotton swabs. Network services are provided by STA Telecommunications. PIN is exposed. Time expires September 1998 and is only good in the United States. These have been found at CVS drug stores and K-Mart.

CLAIROL ULTRESS HAIR COLOR – Look for boxes of Clairol Ultress with a red banner that states "FREE! 10-minute phone card." They contain a peel-off paper card attached to the inside of the package. Calls can only be made within the USA, Canada or the Caribbean. InComm is the provider. Card expires six months from first use.

QUICKCARE CONTACT LENS SOLUTION – A 5-minute card has been found inside boxes of QuickCare contact lens solution. The Quest-Liberty card comes enclosed in cellophane and has a scratch-off. It expires July 31, 1999 and has been found at Target stores.

TOP FLITE – Inside specially marked boxes of 15 Top Flite Hot XL golf balls is a 10-minute card. The front of the card shows a golfer using his backswing. The AT&T name and logo are on the reverse. There is a scratch-off covering the PIN. Card expires Oct. 31, 1998.

FREE SPEECH AT 30,000 FEET – By filling out a survey on the Internet, you could receive a 3-minute air-to-ground AT&T phonecard. This card is good on Alaska, American, Delta, Northwest, Southwest or Canadian Airlines. The paper, punch-out card expires Dec. 31, 1998.

BETTY CROCKER – Sprint issued a phonecard on behalf of the

AT&T;
Top Flite Golf Balls;
10 minutes;
quantity unknown;
1997.

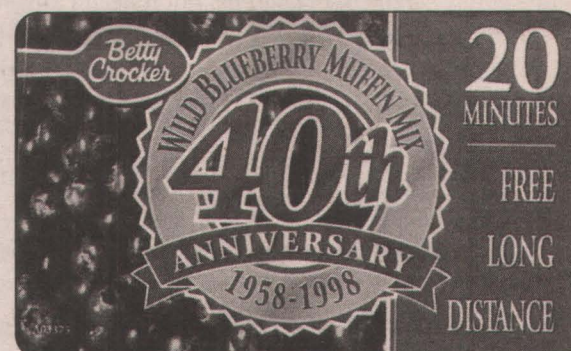

40th anniversary of Betty Crocker's Wild Blueberry Muffin Mix. The card has 20 minutes of time.

AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION – Callers to an 800 number receive a free 10-minute PC from the American Heart Association. Time is by MCI. The card was received in about two weeks. How nice of them! Phone: (888) 694-3278. This was seen in USA Weekend magazine.

SENOKOT LAXATIVES – There is an offer in packages of Senokot Laxatives for a free phonecard expiring June 2002. Also a free 30-minute phonecard for one UPC from Sony SPP-A400 cordless phone. This is supposedly a store form, which expired Feb. 15.

MARCAL BATHROOM TISSUE – Send phonecard symbols from two packages of Marcal 6-roll, 1,000-count bathroom tissue, a dated cash-register tape, with the prices circled, your NAZ on a 3x5 card to: Marcal Free Phone Card Offer, P.O. Box 100, Mahwah, N.J. 07430, for a free 10-minute phonecard.

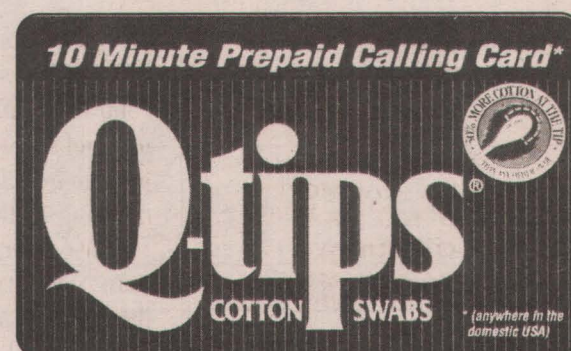

Judy Medeiros, Elizabeth Megyesi and Maria Rost Rublee contributed to this month's column.

Sprint; Betty Crocker Blueberry Muffin 40th Anniversary; 20 minutes; 1997.

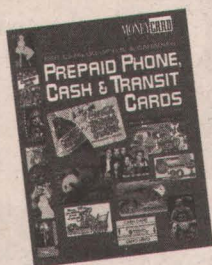

Worldcom; Keebler Sunshine; 10 minutes; quantity unavailable; 1997.

STA Telecommunications; 10 minutes; quantity unavailable; 1997.

GETTING STARTED

This month we will give you ideas on how to acquire telecards.

First, after you have established your budget, and decided what your collecting habits will be, you will need to decide where to obtain your cards.

There are several ways to buy: From the telecards issuers themselves, from retail stores, from mail order/telephone services set up to sell that specific card, from refunding or product purchases that include a telecard, from dealers, from the Internet, and if you are a foreign collector, by trading. The U.S. and Canadian telecard markets are not yet sophisticated enough to have many clubs or places where collectors gather to trade. There are some Internet sites and clubs. Write me for details.

Let's review each avenue of acquisition.

1. From telecard issuers. Quite a few telecard issuers sell telecards direct to collectors and cater to their needs. Usually this is the place to obtain cards at the base price. The problem with this method is the sometimes rather large postage and handling (P/H) fee. If you want only a single card, the cost may double because of it. The way to leapfrog this obstacle is to ask what older issues are in stock, or wait until you can make a many-card purchase from them to "bury" the P/H fee. An advantage of purchasing from issuers is that they can usually answer the questions you may have about the card, such as its mintage, denomination, expiration date, plus details about the reason it was issued.

2. From retail stores. This method requires some searching for stores that have the card you want, some driving, and usually facing some unknowledgeable clerks who may want to charge you sales tax. This on a product that has already had its tax prepaid by the telephone company! You may need to seek out the manager to resolve the situation. Watch the clerk carefully who activates the card. Explain that it must be kept in its unscratched, unbent condition for you to be interested in it! Insist! About all you can learn here about your card are its denomination, the price per minute, and the expiration date.

The advantage of this source of telephone cards is that there is no P/H charge, and you can usually see what you get before you buy. Not always, since some cards are entirely sealed within envelopes or other "carriers." How do you find out who has phone cards? Ask, Ask, Ask. Ask your friends, your relatives, then post a note on company bulletin boards asking for leads. Who knows, you may get a stack of used cards on your desk some morning!

Look at ads and billboards, look at gas stations, truck stops, chain stores, video outlets, and any store catering to tourists. In 1997, phonecards were most everywhere; in 1998 they will leap out at you at every turn. The reason? They are the first significant promotional item to appear on the market for years and years.

3. From mail order/fulfillment houses. Typical are ads on television that ask you to call an 800 number to obtain the product. This is an easy way to obtain the cards you wish, but you are again faced with the P/H fee and a staff that knows little about the product that they are selling. You may have to rely on the supervisor to answer questions you have about the card and its characteristics. We could throw Home Shopping Network and QVC in this category, since sometimes sports telephone cards and related marketing items are featured there. How do you hear about these cards? From television, from print ads, from billboards, and from friends. Friends are one of your most valuable sources of information. Spread the word!

4. From coupons/refunding and from products that include a telecard with purchase. Most companies now are providing a telecard by mail. You must purchase a product, cut out the UPC (the little bars on the package itself), and include the sales slip and the UPC in an envelope sent to a fulfillment house. You need to follow the directions exactly, and keep records to allow you time to ask if the card does not come. The PO Box is usually closed shortly after the expiration date of the offer, so watch your records closely or you will have a big job finding the right place within a company to register your complaint of non-receipt. Refunding is an art and many books and newsletters exist, as well as many clubs and groups around the country. Sometimes the product and the phonecard are in the same location. Either the phonecard is attached internally or externally to the product, or it is kept for you behind the counter.

Be certain the attachment of the telecard has not damaged it, and that it is still attached as advertised. Where to find offers like this? Again, check the ads, especially in the special ad sections of the newspapers, and consult friends. Some collectors regularly cruise the aisles just looking for new telecard offers on products. Don't neglect the television. More and more telecard offers are used as enticements to visit a favorite store. The advantages: no P/H except maybe a 32-cent stamp. The disadvantages: no help on telecard related questions, and uncertainty the item ordered by mail will actually arrive!

So far we have discussed ways to "do-it-yourself." These methods have some big disadvantages and frustrations. Now we will talk about dealing with knowledgeable dealers and other collectors who know what they are doing, or should!

5. From dealers. This is by far the easiest method of acquiring telecards. You can deal with someone whose business it is to supply you what you want, and help you decide what is best for your collection! Dealers can be found everywhere telecards are in the forefront: in telecard magazines, such as Moneycard Collector, at coin and telecards shows, at some sports and collectible shows, and on the Internet. You can start off contacting each and every one of the MCC advertisers. Check several issues, since not everyone appears monthly. Write, tell them what you are interested in, and ask to see their price list. You will be showered with information. Pick one, two, or three that seem to be most productive for your collecting interests and call. You will find one to make some purchases from and begin building.

What are the advantages? A large stock, knowledge, and a willingness to listen and advise. The disadvantages? Sometimes the dealer must pay the same price as you do, so the price will be higher on a certain percentage of his merchandise than if you bought it yourself. But don't forget the P/H. He may have bought in large enough quantity to "bury" this cost. He likely received a discount as a legitimate dealer and may be able to offer the product at the same price as the issuer. Because the hobby is in its formative stages, prices may vary from dealer to dealer due to varying supply prices, markups, and market movements. In a budding hobby this is evident, but it is not a long-term problem. I am certain you can find a few dealers you like. Certainly the advantages outweigh any disadvantages.

6. From the Internet. If you are "hooked up," you can connect to several groups that can provide you cards. The largest group is CardMall.com, which has many dealers specializing in various segments of the market. Additionally, there are other groups, both here and overseas that can provide cards or information. Collector-Link.com is a search engine that has many dealers signed up. Sites also exist on AOL and CompuServe for telecard collectors. There are links at CardMall.com that you can follow almost without repeating for many hours if electronic exploration is your bag. Several telecard auctions are operational on the Internet. The advantages: A quicker offer of brand new items. A large group of part time dealers and collectors that might offer cards for less than some dealers can afford. The disadvantage: Widely varying ways of doing business.

This is a big pickle barrel and there are all kinds of pickles in there! There are lots of nice people on the Internet, but some of the others seem to be bruised merchandise!

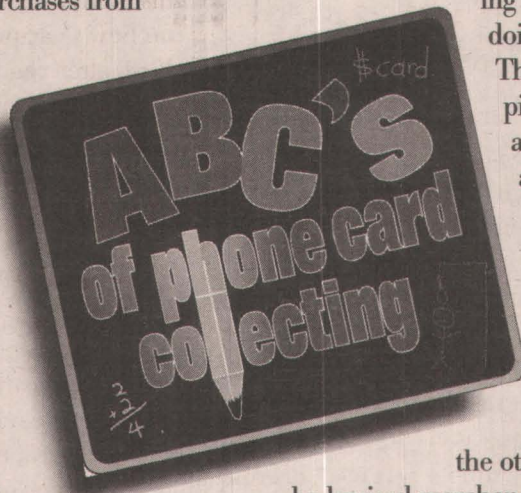

7. From traders. For foreign collectors, especially those who collect used cards, one of the methods of collection building is by trading. This is facilitated by collectors clubs advertising in foreign telecard magazines, by telecom collector clubs, and by direct contact by ads or on the Internet. Some trading takes place on CompuServe, and to a lesser extent, on AOL. Advantages: Collections can be built by a few finds, then by trading away those finds for items that interest you, and there's a minimal outlay of funds. Disadvantages: Postage may be significant (especially on small trades), and trades can stretch your patience and may take months. There is little protection from a bad pickle; plan to lose 5 percent of your merchandise.

The great majority of collectors, if other hobbies can be a guide, will be most comfortable building their collection through full-time dealers - dealers who spend all their time working for the good of the telecard hobby. Collectors will always try alternate ways of acquiring cards, but the future of any hobby is in a strong dealer-to-collector relationship.

Hooping it up

New AT&T program features galaxy of NBA stars

by Steve Fritz

Walking into the Jacob Javits Convention Center last February was an experience for even the most hard-core New Yorker. The city prides itself as the center of basketball with its main sports arena, Madison Square Garden, as the sport's "mecca."

Still, on Feb. 5-9, it was the return of the NBA All-Star Game, the first All-Star Game to be in New York in nearly 30 years. Before you knew it, nearly 100,000 basketball fans converged on both the Garden and the Javits to celebrate. By the time it was over, it broke all attendance records for an NBA All-Star Game.

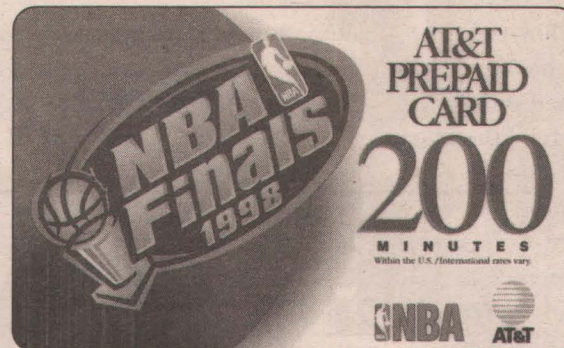

This probably sounds like nothing for the ardent phonecard collector, unless you walked right into the middle of the Javits. There, in the center of the complex, was a series of tables held by no less than communications giant AT&T. All it had on that table was tons of promotional material for their latest phonecard issues.

Collectors of the AT&T NBA cards will notice one particular NBA superstar is missing: Michael Jordan. The reason for this is based on a major element of NBA licensing law. When it comes to phonecards, players can opt out of the group program. More on Jordan and Worldcom cards in a moment.

One has to admit, it's a particularly ambitious program, even by both the NBA's and AT&T standards. The 1998 NBA phone card issue consists of 59 cards ranging from 15 to 100 units of time each. The cards are divided into two sets of 29. Each of these sets contains one top player from each of the league's 29 teams. If you buy one of those sets, you also get a bonus card (the 59th) bearing the NBA's logo and 200 minutes of time. It's a pricy option at $405 a set.

On the other hand, the cards are also being sold individually. The reason for this is based in part on the experience AT&T gathered from releasing its first set of NBA phonecards last year.

"It took us longer than we anticipated to negotiate the contract [for the first set of cards] with the NBA. Because of that, we didn't put them out

season. We sold them and they did well, but not as well as if we got them out earlier in the season," says AT&T Marketing Manager Sharon Robbins. "Still, we learned a lot and that reflects in this new issue. The most important thing is we've improved our communications between the two organizations."

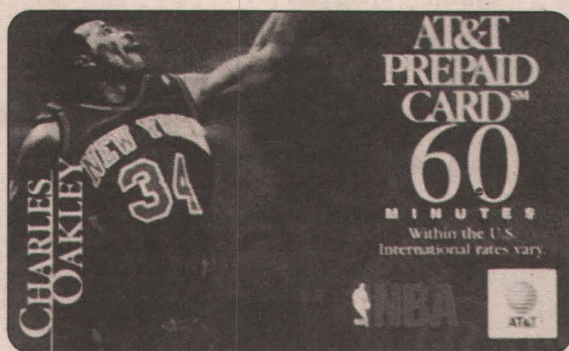

According to Robbins' NBA counterpart, Director of Licensing (Non-Apparel) Anne Goldman-Baker, part of the delay was the league wanting to be absolutely sure that phone cards were a growing industry. They had seen other sport leagues release phonecards. They also saw a lot of those other phonecards never get sold. As far as Goldman-Baker was concerned, that wasn't going to happen with the NBA's cards.

"We pride ourselves on thinking we have one of the best licenses in sports," says Goldman-Baker, "and with one of the best support systems for our licensees. We weren't going to issue a phonecard license unless we felt sure the time was right for them, the company would support them fully and they would move. We took a little longer than we should have with AT&T just making sure that all the i's were dotted and t's were crossed on that first contract, but we did learn from it. Also, the NBA has a long relationship with AT&T, and that also helped."

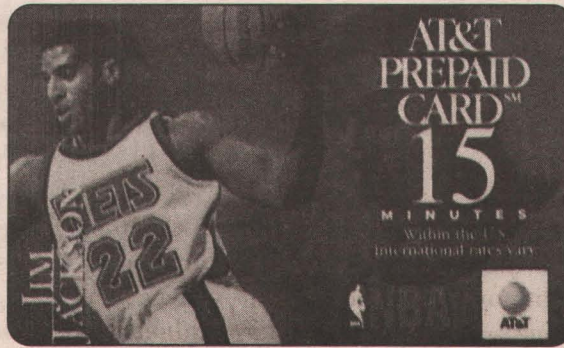

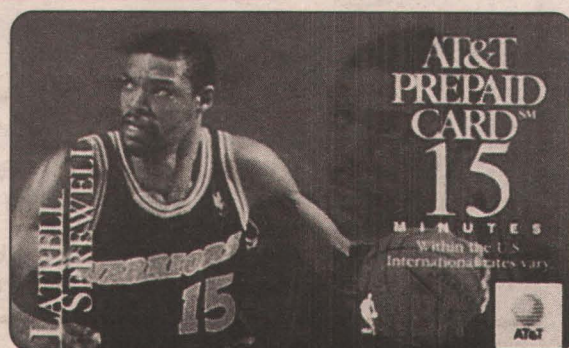

Still, there's the matter of the second set now being 59 cards. One could say that's a very large set.

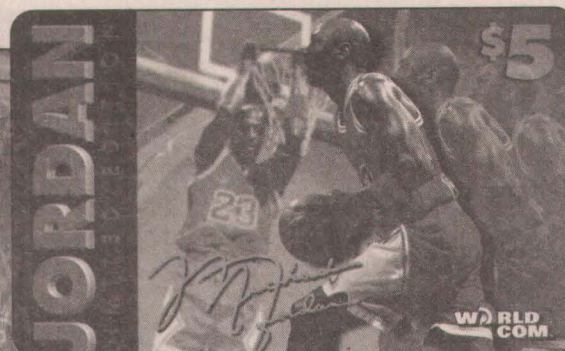

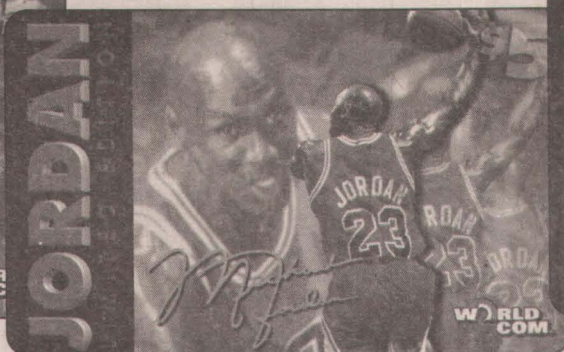

"It is, yet it's not," says Robbins. "Quite frankly, it was what was agreed to on the contract. On the other hand, that many cards does give the consumers a much better chance to get the card of their favorite player. It's two players per team."

You see, it's standard NBA policy to treat each of its licensing agreements as a partnership as much as a money-making engine. As such, the NBA keeps its own sales force going, pushing their licensed product. AT&T's phonecards are going to benefit from this in more ways than other sports issues from other leagues have. For starters, the league is making sure the phone giant at minimum gets its foot in the door of every one of its arenas. That means a New York Knicks fan should be able to go into the Garden and buy single cards of the two Knicks players in the 1998 set, Patrick Ewing and Allen Houston.

"The good thing is we have the support of the NBA on that as well," says Glen Welch, AT&T's Pre-Paid Phone Card Licensing Manager. "They are helping us call all the arenas in the league to have them sell the cards there. The idea is they can then get cards of the local favorite players where they play. I will add that working with them has been great. They've been really helpful by coming to us with all sorts of promotional opportunities. They have also put their sales force to give us some help in getting into places like sporting goods stores and the arenas. They will admit that it's in both our interests to sell as many of the cards that they can."

It certainly seems that way, as the league and AT&T are also sponsoring a contest with the phonecard issue.

"When you first use the card, you will find out if you won a prize because the platform announcement will tell you if you are a winner," says Welch. "The Grand Prize is an all-expense paid trip for four to an NBA Finals game this year. Obviously, we don't know where that's going to be yet, but it will be for one of the first four games [of the Finals]. There are also two First Prizes for tickets to NBA playoff games. Other prizes are $50 gift certificates from the NBA Hoop It Up catalog and also sets of the AT&T pre-paid NBA cards."

"Last year we just put the cards out," says Robbins. "Now we have added the contest to give it added value. Who knows what we will do in the future?"

Michael Jordan decided to strike his own deal with LDDS Worldcom long before the NBA had stepped into the phone card arena. Jordan has opted to stay with Worldcom, and it appears to be a very good relationship for both parties.

"Absolutely," Worldcom Brand Manager Bruce Walt concurs. "Michael's been a very good way to attract people to the phonecard category. We found that a lot of people who bought his cards have never used phonecards before. People bought the cards because Michael Jordan was on them."

Worldcom enjoys distribution of its Jordan cards in a number of outlets, among them Wal-Mart and Target stores. Walt says all the phonecards involving the Bulls superstar (including Jordan's "Space Jam" movie issue) have done very well. Even though Jordan is now talking about retirement, Walt believes that isn't going to affect sales of the cards in the slightest.

"I think Michael Jordan is such a strong personality that whether or not he continues to play basketball, he'll continue to be very visible," says Walt. "Right now you already see his management team is taking steps to making sure people know him without having him being associated with basketball. I think he will continue to remain in the spotlight and also remain one of the most marketable athletes in the world - right up there with Babe Ruth, Mickey Mantle, Wayne Gretzky and Muhammed Ali."

Of course, being this is a direct agreement between Jordan and Worldcom you are not going to see any cards of him in his Chicago Bulls uniform. That doesn't seem to be bothering Worldcom, either.

"It doesn't matter," says Walt. "It's just Michael Jordan. When you see a Gatorade commercial, you don't see him in a Bulls jersey, either."

In the meantime, dealers are reporting that the interest in the cards just keeps growing.

"I'm pretty much sold out of any basketball cards I have," says Oklahoma-based dealer Genny English. "In Europe, there's an incredible demand and great forum for it over there. They want all the cards of Jordan, of course, but most of the stars who are stars here are stars there too."

English is also fascinated with the new AT&T issue. "I've just read about it online and I'm interested for a few players myself. My husband collects Shaq and the Lakers. We collect anything with them. Also, we are fans of Anfernee Hardaway. I know that a lot of people are asking for Kobe Bryant, but I haven't seen any cards of him yet. Last year it was Shaq and Kevin Garnett. This year there's a lot of interest in Kobe Bryant. Michael Jordan is always in demand."

As for why the demand for NBA cards is so intense, English has her own reasons.

"I would say there's more stars in basketball than there is in baseball these days," says English. "Also, you have to remember this is the basketball season. When it's the season it brings forth the stars and the fans who follow them. So right now basketball is hotter. On the other hand, I also think the interest in basketball is going to continue to grow - as long as basketball stays clean. I know there's been a lot of talk about that player [Latrell] Sprewell. As long as the NBA can get the problems with players like him worked out, I think it's going to continue to grow."

In the meantime, the league has already announced its next All-Star Game will be in Philadelphia. Don't be surprised if that one breaks the attendance record again. Also, don't be surprised if sales of NBA-licensed phone cards also keep growing.

BRAND NEWS

Let's go to the movies, let's go see the stars ... With all due respect to those lines from the musical "Annie," the stars in this case are a galaxy of recent phonecards with movie themes, mostly from the home video market.

Collectors who pursue cards on movie themes or maybe someone who is nostalgic about a particular movie might want to check out these offerings.

Generally speaking, the only way to obtain most of these is to actually purchase the home video. These are a lot of fun to collect since there are more and more of them being issued and they don't usually wind up in dealers' hands in any kind of quantity.

Winston Taylor recently issued four different home video cards for exclusive distribution through Best Buy stores. All are 10-minute cards and include: "Liar Liar," issued in September; "The Lost World" and "Men in Black," issued in November; and "Shine," issued in December 1997.

The "Men in Black" logo has been a popular one for other issuers, too, with at least three other phonecards featuring the alien-busting combo made popular by Will Smith and Tommy Lee Jones. The first one we came across was done by Frontier Communications in July 1997 (Moneycard Collector, "New Issues," October 1997). Then Frontier sold its prepaid division to Smarttalk Teleservices, which later bought Cardinal VoiceCard of Canada, and different "Men in Black" cards also were issued with the Smarttalk or Cardinal branding on the reverses. Both the Smarttalk and Cardinal branded versions have identical obverses.

The Frontier "MIB" logo card was a five-minute card which was free if retail customers bought 15-minute cards featuring Jones ("K") or Smith ("J") at Tops Friendly Markets in New York and Pennsylvania last July. Initial mintages of the cards were 5,000 each of the Smith and Jones cards and 10,000 of the "Men in Black" logo card.

Also issued in December by Communications Design Group was a 10-minute card for the home video release of "Contact." A total of 1,150 cards were distributed by Warner Home Video and were inserted into the package containing the Contact Video.

Our last home video card is from ITS, which issued 2,858 cards for "The Mirror Has Two Faces" home video. The card was issued in June 1997. This 20-minute card was offered to retail stores for every seven copies that the stores purchased.

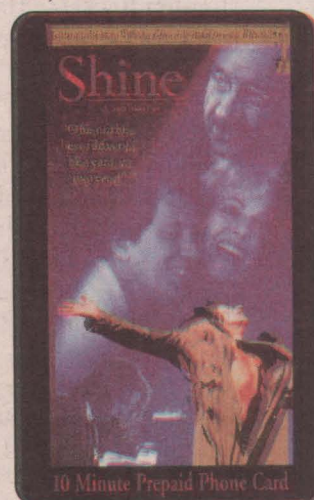

It's time to leave the movie aisles — or at least the aisles of the local video rental store — and head for home, so we wrap up this month's column with another CDG card with an on-the-road flavor.

In December 1997, CDG unleashed another Exxon card featuring the oil company's familiar tiger cartoon mascot. This one features 10 minutes of time and only 650 were issued.

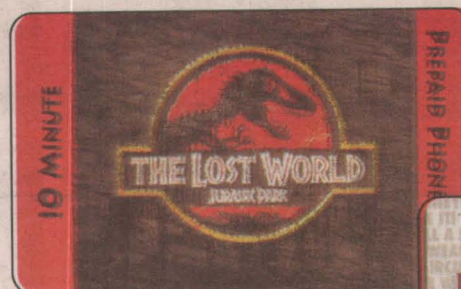

This card was given out to Exxon employees to remind them not to drink and drive. Instead it was hoped that they would call for a ride. Due to the low mintage, this might prove difficult to find.

A call for readers' favorites

The "America's Most Wanted" column has long been rated one of the favorites of Moneycard Collector readers, and it's been a lot of fun bringing you the dealers' top sellers and most-desired cards for the last several years.

Now, we want more.

Beginning this month, we would like you, the readers, to tell us what cards you are looking for. Just jot down your top five choices and send them to Tom Williams, Editor, Moneycard Collector, 911 Vandemark Road, Sidney, Ohio 45365.

You can also e-mail your list to twilliams@amospress.com, or fax them to (937) 498-0876. Please be sure to mark your lists as "AMW Readers' Picks."

Once a month, we'll throw all participants' names in a hat, and pick out a winner of a genuine Moneycard Collector T-shirt! And we'll list results in this column every month, so stay tuned!

"America's Most Wanted" is compiled monthly by Moneycard Collector. All dealers are encouraged to participate by faxing a list of their company's top sellers, including stored-value and any older or foreign cards in which their customers are interested to (937) 498-0876 by the 16th of each month. This month's "AMW" is courtesy of Acme Telecards; Global Telecard Co.; KARS Unlimited; Phone Card Connection; Rick's Phonocards & Racing Collectibles; TW Phonocards; United America Card; USACard.

How to Use The Moneycard Collector Price Guide

Price listings in the Moneycard Collector Price Guide are provided only as a guide and are based on price lists supplied by several dealers around the world and on other market information. Listings without prices will be completed as suitable market information becomes available.

Of course, actual card values must be determined by the buyer and seller, and the Moneycard Collector Price Guide is just that - a guide.

NUMBERING SYSTEM

S (before #) = Sports

a card depicting an organized, competitive sports-related image (comes before numerals, e.g. S125)

Pr (before #) = Private card issued for a customer, distributed by the customer at his/her discretion

Post-numerical descriptor (falls after the numeral)

#-2 = Second Printing

the second printing of a card; a three, four or greater number can follow to denote the actual print run; occurs often with Canadian cards or unlimited run cards

a-z = error/variety

a card whose identical front or back differs from the card with the primary listing; includes language variations, but not denominational variations

M = model/prototype

full-front printed card, may or may not be full-back printed, never issued

card with an error that caused its destruction or recall

J = jumbo

an oversized or jumbo card

P = proof

artwork on front, blank back

R = replacement

a card that replaced a defective or recalled card

S (after #) = specimen

artwork on front, complete back with false or no pin, or word "sample" or "test"

T = trial/test

live card used specifically for testing a stored value card system

BellSouth states that a total of 80M cards were produced for the trial, but the exact number of each denomination is not known. All remaining unsold cards were withdrawn in May 1995 and destroyed in October 1995. Most dealers estimate that 15,000 of each card actually were issued, but the actual number may even be lower.*

NEW ISSUES

Luck of the Irish

Carson City King; St. Patrick's Day, 5 minutes; 100 issued; March 1997.

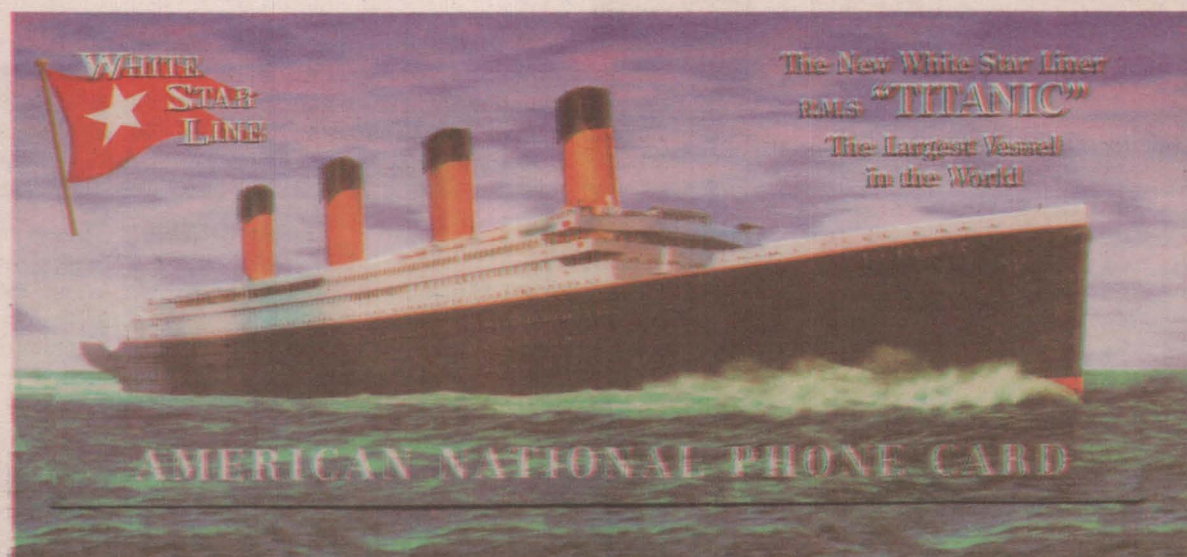

What leprechaun wouldn't be happy with a pot full of Indian Head gold coins and other rare goodies? The time on the card, by Tell One, expires 4/30/99. Contact PCI Communications, (888) 861-4549, fax (407) 380-3917 or e-mail lg7550@bellsouth.net.

A Gem(plus) of an AT&T card

AT&T/Gemplus; Gemplus Commemorative; 5 minutes/$10 stored value; 1,000 issued; 1997.

This card is a unique combination – the first Gemplus stored-value card that also is an AT&T prepaid phonecard. It was issued to commemorate the contributions to the smart-card industry in America by the world's largest SVC producer. Contact your favorite dealer or consult our "Dealer Directory" page.

Full steam ahead for Titanic card

American National Phone Card; Titanic jumbo die-cut; 12 minutes; 2,500 issued; March 1998.

This is an iceberg-smasher of a card, and its colorful carrier helps complete the picture, as well as providing interesting facts about the ill-fated passenger liner, which hit an iceberg and sunk on April 15, 1912 – hence the 12-minute denomination. The carrier helps capture the feel of an advertisement for the Titanic's owners, the White Star Line. Also offered are 50 printer's proof sets, each proof card matched with the same-numbered live card. Contact (818) 609-7666 or fax (818) 609-9725.

Hello, Norma Jean

B&C Marketing/Telekey; Norma Jean; $5, $10 and $20 denominations; 400, 400 and 200 issued, respectively; November 1997.

Marilyn Monroe collectors might want to pursue this image of the Hollywood legend before she became a star. The photo was taken by internationally known photographer Joseph Jasgur. Time is by TeleKey and the card features international voice mail. Call (407) 932-2080.

This spud's for you

Canada Telecom Network; Playskool Mr. Potato Head; 30 minutes; 500 issued; September 1997.

The popular plastic spud skull is featured on this card produced for Hasbro Canada Ltd. Hasbro inserted 400,000 coupons in Canadian publications last fall, and participants could enter a drawing for the cards. Call (514) 332-8611.

Grant is the bill for USACard

USACard; U.S. $50 bill; 10 units; 1,000 issued; February 1998.

This reproduction of the new U.S. $50 bill is the third in the series, following cards depicting $1,000 and $100 bills. It was produced for the collector market, and like all USACard issues, has no expiration date. Call (303) 777-3034.

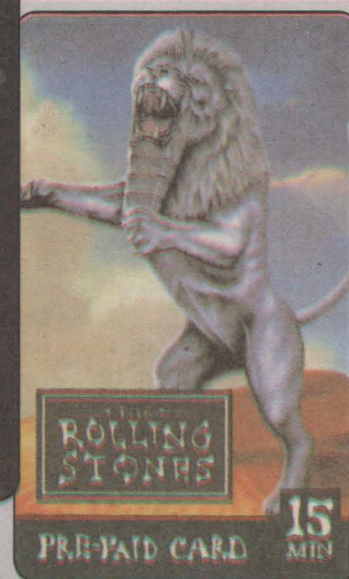

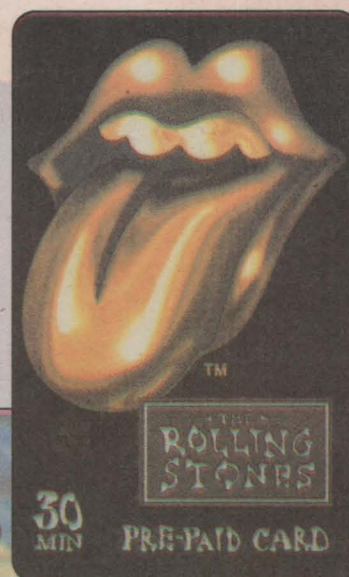

NEW ISSUES

New series gathers no moss

Channel Telecom/Babylon 1 Phonecards; Rolling Stones World Tour four-card set; two 15-minute and two 30-minute cards; 5,000 of each issued; September 1997.

The rock superstars 1997-98 "Bridges to Babylon" tour is captured on four cards featuring graphics from the Stones' new CD as well as the famous "tongue and lips" logo. The cards are available at the concerts as well as the Rolling Stones merchandise catalog and their on-line superstore (www.stonesbazaar.com). Also contact Babylon 1 Phonecards at (800) 565-7038.

Nothing but Petty

Sprint; Spree-50 Years of Petty Tradition; 50 minutes; quantity unavailable; March 1998.

The Petty racing clan – Richard, son Kyle and now grandson Adam – are featured on new Sprint "Spree" phonecards. Plans call for cards with denominations matching the race drivers' car numbers: 43 minutes for Richard Petty, 44 minutes for Kyle Petty and 45 minutes for Adam Petty. Contact your favorite dealer or consult our "Dealer Directory" page.

Packing a collectible punch

Hello World; Oscar de la Hoya Foundation; 8 minutes; 1,500 issued; December 1997.

Card by Texas-based multi-level marketing company features art by LeRoy Neiman. The card was used to launch de la Hoya's charitable foundation. Call (972) 881-1800.

Teeing it up in Arizona

US WEST; Phoenix Open 1998; $1 denomination; 3,500 issued; January 1998.

Look for this recent US WEST card in this month's "America's Most Wanted." The complimentary card was distributed at the annual golf tournament, held at the Tournament Players Club of Scottsdale, Ariz. Call (800) 739-3339.

Did somebody say McDonald's?

Cable & Wireless; Did somebody say McDonald's?; 10 minutes; quantity unavailable; December 1997.

This promotional card was available for purchase with a breakfast meal over the 1997 holiday period – if you bought the meal, you had the option to buy the card as well. The card reportedly was only available at a few restaurants. The time expires Dec. 31, 1998. Contact your favorite dealer or consult the "Dealer Directory" page.

NEW ISSUES

Red Cross Cards

U.S., foreign issues are first aid for any collection

by Ulf Helmke

Help Can't Wait" – the motto of the American Red Cross describes in just three words what the Red Cross is all about – help. Active in 169 countries all over the world, the national organizations of the Red Cross and the Red Crescent are engaged in disaster relief, health and social services, first-aid-education, blood transfusion services, youth assignments and a wealth of other activities special to each country.

And as diverse as the activities may be, they all have one common goal in mind, to help those in need. Much of this is reflected on phonecards issued by or for Red Cross organizations all over the world.

After the floods of 1995, Brilliant Color Cards and the San Francisco Chronicle jointly produced a phonecard to help those affected by the waters.

"The phone card was issued to victims of the flooding in Northern California in January 1995," reports Kurt Weirich, disaster specialist with the American Red Cross. "The card was funded by donation; over 2,089 families were affected by this flooding," Weirich says.

The network services were provided by LDDS Communications and HT Technologies. The 10 free minutes allowed the flood victims to get in touch with their friends and relatives easily. While this is a great example of how phonecards can help in times of need, the majority of Red Cross phonecards have been issued as fund raisers or to promote Red Cross activities.

Another American issuer, Tele-Tagz, issued fund-raiser cards in 1995 – a five-card set featuring corporate logos, including Coca-Cola, and two cards celebrating a Red Cross festival in Arcadia, Calif. Frontier issued a 60-minute card, 12,500 produced, in September 1997 ("New Issues," December 1997) for the Tops Friendly Markets chain. Ten percent of the proceeds went to the Red Cross.

The "Meteor" phonecard collectors club in Austria featured a Red Cross ambulance on the 1993 issue of their annual phonecards. Parts of the proceeds from the card issue were donated to the Austrian Red Cross. But the Red Cross itself has used phonecards as a way to raise funds. The German Red Cross for example issued 400,000 "Time for Peace" cards to thank major sponsors and solicit donations from card users in the spring of 1995. The DM 12 cards were sold to the public at post offices and newsstands.

Later that year, the Danish Red Cross issued a phonecard for Christmas that allowed the owner to call a special number listed on the card to make a donation to the Red Cross via telephone. Only 1,000 of these DKK 20 face value cards have been issued.

A year later, 1,500 magnetic-stripe cards were issued to mark "Red Cross Week" of 1996. The cards have a DKK 10 face value and depict a pair of squirrels. They were designed by artist Lise Pflug, who also designed the postage seals issued for Red Cross week. The design of the 1996 Red Cross Christmas seals can be found on a DKK 10 Danmønt moneycard that was issued as a fund-raiser for the Danish Red Cross (see "New Issues," Moneycard Collector, March 1997).

Telemex has issued a M$ 50 chip-card for the Cruz Roja Mexicana, or the Mexican Red Cross. A part of the card's value was donated to the Red Cross by Telemex. Instructions on what to do in an emergency situation can be found on the card's reverse.

World Red Cross and Red Crescent Day was celebrated all over the world in 1994. The Red Cross of Papua New Guinea in the Pacific issued a set of four Landis & Gyr phonecards celebrating this day under the motto "Dignity for all, our children's future."

In Norway, the Red Cross tried to encourage people to be a "telephone friend" and call somebody they care for, whether it was someone who was ill, lonely or who just needed to talk to somebody on the phone. 50,000 of these chip-cards were issued in July 1994.

The March 1998 "Quik Takes" section pictured Telstra's Red Cross card featuring Diana, Princess of Wales. That issuer's association with the Red Cross goes back to November 1991, when a Telecom Australia, now Telstra, issued a six-card set the Red Cross Society. While the A$20 card is the most expensive one in the set, all six cards can be obtained at reasonable prices. A collectors' edition has also been issued with the six cards in a folder.

All Red Cross phonecards have one thing in common, in one way or the other they want to help. And you can help, too. By collecting Red Cross phonecards you'll not only help those in need but will also be able to build a great topical collection at the same time.

Exploring Frontier

Issuer is out of prepaids, but cards are going strong

by Art Becker

Nothing ever stays the same. Frontier Communications, issuer of all those great phonecards of the past, is now out of the consumer phonecard business. Last December, Frontier sold its prepaid phonecard unit to Smartalk Teleservices Inc., another leader in the industry. The plot thickens, to include The Score Board, ConQuest, Smartel, AT&T, Continental Plastics, American Express Telecom, the U.S. Postal Service, and plenty more. We'll get to them in a minute.

But first, let's talk about Frontier's past glory in the phonecard industry. You know right away that any company whose listings covers eight pages in the Moneycard Collector Catalog of Prepaid Phone, Cash & Transit Cards is big. Take just a quick glance through the Frontier section and you'll see such all time favorite promotional phonecards as The X Files, The Simpsons, Ricki Lake, Melrose Place, Beverly Hills 90120, Kit Kat, Hillshire Farms, Mr. Turkey and more (MCC catalog numbers FRO 6, 7-9, 5M, 3, 2, Pr5, Pr1, and Spr 28 & 29). Anyone who collects USA phonecards undoubtedly has several of these cards in their collection.

What's more, Frontier provided phone service for other phonecard issuers, such as The Score Board, which itself has more than 35 pages of phonecards in the Moneycard Collector Catalog. (Speaking of Score Board, there were rumors flying around that it, too, was getting out of the phonecard business. However, according to a high-level official, "We are definitely in the phonecard business. There are definitely plans for future phonecards.") Besides the many sports-related phonecards, known as Classic Assets, Major League Baseball, and Pro Line series, Score Board also produced phonecards for 7-11, Coca-Cola, The World of Coca-Cola, and McDonalds.

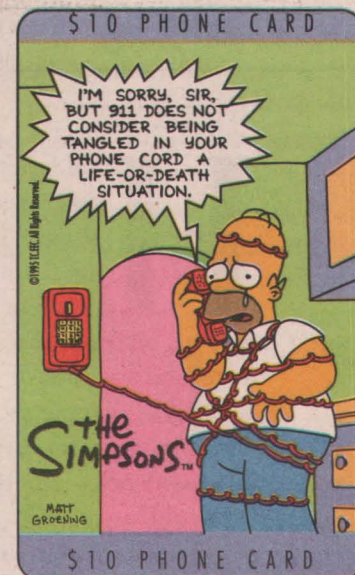

Frontier's origins

So, how did Frontier start? For about 100 years, until 1995, it was known as the Rochester Telephone Co. Eventually, it became the fifth-largest long distance company in the United States. However, things change, and by late 1997, the company's new chairman, Joseph Clayton, announced a major restructuring of the firm. How major? More than 700 employees were laid off.

One of the first business units to go was prepaid phonecards. Said Clayton, "Product lines that distract from our core business and inefficiently utilize our resources can no longer be part of our business portfolio." He's talking about phonecards, folks. As a business unit, they just plain can't compete with large scale local, long distance, cellular, and data services. Why not sell this product line to a company who is already a major player in the phonecard industry? So, in December, Frontier sold its retail prepaid phonecard business to Smartalk (STI).

Smartalk has only a single page in the Moneycard Collector Catalog. The company is best known for its generic phonecard line (STI 3-7), and custom overprinted generic line (STI Pr7-16). You can find Smartalk phonecards at retailers such as Office Depot, Staples, Service Merchandise, Best Buy, Osco Drugs, Sav-On Drug, Office Max, Robinsons-May, Builders Square, and many others.

However, there's a lot more to their story than just this. For starters, they now own Smartel Communications Inc. (SMR). If there is one company that can be named as the top promotional phonecard issuer in the United States, it is probably Smartel. This company has a full 30 pages of phonecards listed in the Moneycard Collector Catalog. Go to any phonecard trade show, and you'll see a Smartel booth. Try to think of a major industry, or even a major company, that hasn't had a phonecard produced by Smartel; you will probably be unsuccessful. These people must all work around the clock drumming up business. Their motto could easily be that no company is too big or too small to have a Smartel phonecard produced for them. Smartalk uses long distance service by AT&T (AIT) for many of its cards, such as those great promotional phonecards currently produced for Walgreens.

Smartel makes extensive use of model cards, which have standard backgrounds or designs. It then overprints the model cards with specific information, to make a private phonecard. This is a great way to manufacture less expensive and quickly produced phonecards. Interestingly enough, Japan has been using this same approach to phonecards since 1985.

New catalogs of Japanese model designs are always being published by NTT. In fact, a customer can walk into a large NTT office in Frontier; The X-Files; $10 denomination; quantity unavailable; March 1995.

Japan and get some custom printed phonecards produced right on the spot. Check out the Sirius Japan Phonecard Guidebook, by Helmut Treude, on page 18 for additional information (see Moneycard Collector, December 1997, Page 6). These model cards also make a great theme/ topic/motif in themselves. Collect the standard background with as many different overprints as possible.

Want an example using SmartTel? Look at the first card illustrated in the Moneycard Collector Catalog (SMR Pr4). It has a gray marble background. Now check the rest of the SmartTel pages to see how many other cards you can find with the same background. No doubt you can go through your own collection of phonecards, and find some of these model cards.

Smartalk's acquisitions

Shortly after acquiring Frontier's phonecard business, Smartalk signed an agreement to purchase American Express Telecom (AMX). One of American Express' most visible products is the U.S. Postal Service's (USP) First Class Phonecards. Want to guess what the selling price was? How about $44 million? While we're at it, the Postal Service has made some changes to its First Class Phonecard operation. These changes include a new flat rate of 38.5 cents a minute, with a 33 cents a minute recharge rate, and toll-free calling from more than 25 foreign countries, including France, Germany, Japan, Mexico and Canada.

While there may be companies who sell phonecard time for less money, few can match the Postal Services features of cards being replaceable if lost or stolen, speed dialing, detailed activity reports, multi-language assistance, international to USA calling, and 24-hour customer support. Buying a phonecard is as easy as visiting the nearest post office, or calling (800) 297-7678.

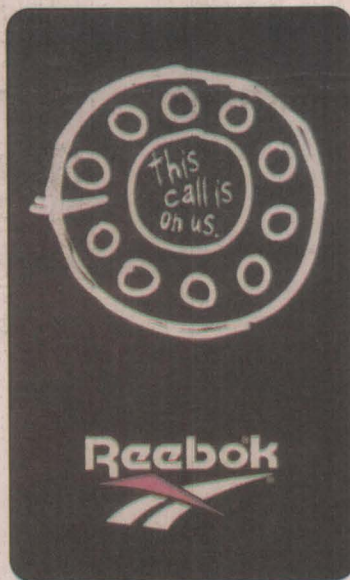

The story doesn't end here, either. Besides these transactions, Smartalk previously had agreed to buy ConQuest Telecommunications (CQU). Collectors might remember that in December 1995, ConQuest had merged with ACMI (ACI), a deal that was reversed in April 1997. (ACMI, of course, itself has more than 18 pages of phonecards listed in the Moneycard Collector Catalog, including cards for Moneycard Collector (ACI Pr157, Pr190J), Compuserve's Phonecard Forum (Pr42 & 43), and the Washington DC Phone Card Collectors Group (Pr171), not to mention plenty of wonderful phonecard show cards.)

Want some more branches of this huge family tree to research? Well, Continental Plastics (CNP) produced the Moneycard Collector phonecard, and this company consistently produces award-winning phonecard show cards.

While phonecard collectors may lament the end of any new issues from Frontier, there are still plenty of previous ones to track down. Most are available at reasonable prices, and by swapping. You can also have fun going over your collection again, this time inspecting the reverse of the cards. Check out which companies have been mentioned in this article. Look to see how many Frontier cards you have. Chances are, you might have more than you think.

QUICK TAKES

UPPER WESTSIDE CARD VARIATIONS REPORTED.

Variations on two of the four cards in Citibank's Upper Westside Visa Cash series have been reported by Com-Gal Ltd. of Schenectady, N.Y. and and SLSC Inc. of Buffalo, N.Y.

According to both dealers, the $10 Ansonia Condominium "Sax Player" card has now surfaced with a new expiration date. Originally distributed since the launch of the Citibank Visa Cash Program in early October 1997 with an expiration date of 11/99, the $10 Ansonia Condominium "Sax Player" card has now surfaced with an expiration date of 02/00. Both cards carry the same SV#019742 and the same printer number of Giesecke & Devrient (G&D): 42964.

The $20 72nd Street Station "Bongo Player" card has also surfaced with a new expiration date. The original expiration date of this card was 02/29/00, and it has now been discovered with an expiration date of 01/31/00. Like the Ansonia Condominium card the 72nd Street Station "Bongo Player" card also carries the same SV#019741 and the same G&D number 42962.

Mark Rodgers, senior corporate affairs specialist at Citibank, says he did not know if there were additional quantities issued, or if the cards with different expiration dates reflected original-issue cards released in smaller batches. There originally were 6,250 of each design issued.

Two dealers have reported variations on expiration dates for both the $20 denomination 72nd Street Station card, above, and the $10 denomination Ansonia Condominium card, right.

A T&T LAUNCHES 'STAR TREK' SERIES. Starting the first week in April, phonecard collectors and Trekkies alike should be able to buy the first four AT&T prepaid phonecards with a "Star Trek" theme. The "Star Trek" name and logos were made available to AT&T through an arrangement with Future Call Company Inc., which has issued dozens of AT&T cards.

The initial cards include James T. Kirk, 15 minutes; Sisko and Dax from "Deep Space Nine," 30 minutes; Seven of Nine from "Voyager," 60 minutes; and Data and Worf from "Next Generation," 100 minutes. AT&T did not respond to requests by Moneycard Collector for images of the cards.

All four cards can be ordered through the Internet, beginning the week of March 16, at AT&T's "www.att.com/prepaidcard/" website. The first retailer to commit to selling the cards is Spencer Gifts.

To celebrate the release of the cards, AT&T WorldNet Service will host an on-line chat session with William Shatner on April 6 at 9 p.m.

W HOPPING DENOMINATION ON AT&T CARD.

When Tradco, a Miami-based travel club, began considering premiums to reward membership renewals, it decided to pick something that was perceived as valuable but also linked to the travel industry.

What Tradco and AT&T came up with was 20,000 prepaid cards, each with 500 units of domestic time.

"In the marketplace, everyone is giving away 10- or 15-unit cards," Tradco President Lourdes Rodriguez said in an AT&T newsletter. "We chose 500 units because we wanted to make our cards very attractive."

P REPAIDS LINKED TO SWEEPSTAKES. A pre-paid calling service that eliminates any retailer inventory and offers instant prizes. That is the goal of a new agreement between Charter Communications International Inc., RealTIME Media Inc., and CompuScan Marketing Inc.

Charter CEO Stephen E. Raville said that Atlanta-based Charter will create a custom database of personal identification numbers (PINs) for distribution by RealTIME. The PINs will be used on products that combine sweepstakes with prepaid calling.

RealTIME Media President Peter Jensen said these Instant Win Phone Cards may be purchased in one of three ways: point-of-sale systems at supermarkets and convenience chains, through ATM networks, and over the Internet at teleprizes.com. At retail and ATM networks, the PIN and 800 number for instant winners is printed on the receipt.

RealTIME Media Inc., based in Haverford, Pa., designs and implements prize and incentive-based promotions for firms operating on the Internet. Charter Communications creates telecommunications solutions for individuals and businesses operating throughout the Americas.

Charter Communications also maintains a network operations center in Houston, and offices and facilities throughout Latin America.

ALFACARD, JERICO COMBINE. AlfaCard Inc. has announced final plans to acquire Jericho Printing Systems. The merged operation was to take effect March 2.

"By substantially increasing our production capabilities, we will be able to serve our customers more efficiently," says AlfaCard President George Chase. "While continuing to specialize in short run and fast turn-around orders, larger orders in shorter turn-around time will put us ahead of our competition."

"With the latest technology in off-set printing and a true commitment to customer service, we have positioned ourselves as a manufacturing leader," says Eric Strom, Jericho's president.

Strom will stay on as chief operating officer of the merged business.

AlfaCard's current Glendale, N.Y., location will serve as corporate headquarters and production facility. Sales, marketing and customer service will be handled out of a Stamford, Conn., branch office.

C ALIFORNIA FIRM ACQUIRES HT TECHNOLOGIES CARDS. Interactive Fundraising, located in San Jose, Calif., has announced the acquisition of collectible phonecards from bankrupt HT Technologies Inc.

HT Technologies Inc. was a pioneer in the collectible phone card market beginning in 1994, and produced dozens of collectible images before filing for reorganization under the federal bankruptcy code in 1997.

Officials at the company did not return messages from Moneycard Collector as to how many HT Technology cards they had acquired and what their plans were for the telecards.

ATLANTIC-ACM ON THE MOVE. Boston-based consulting firm ATLANTIC-ACM has relocated to larger facilities to accommodate its growing consulting practice, the firm has announced. ATLANTIC-ACM serves the communications and information industries.

The company's new address is One State Street, Suite 1000, Boston, Mass., 02109. Telephone and fax numbers remain the same, as do e-mail and web addresses.

ATLANTIC-ACM is best known for its exclusive research on the competitive telecommunications industry in the United States. The company has published dozens of industry studies based on its research also also provides proprietary research and consulting services to companies in the information and communications services worldwide.

The globalization and convergence of information and communications industries has increased the call for the kind of services ATLANTIC-ACM provides, says Chief Executive Officer Judy Reed Smith. "We have expanded our global alliances as well as our internal expertise to fulfill that need."

PHONE CARD GROUP OFFERS SERVICES. The Phone Card Group, which was formed by a joint initiative of postage-stamp distributor Amplex and 7-Eleven phonecard distributor Front-End Services (Moneycard Collector, "Quik Takes," February 1998), has announced a strategic relationship with PT-1 Communications Inc. of New York, as well as the development of new products - a prepaid cellular phonecard, a prepaid residential service phonecard and a prepaid floral service card program. The prepaid cellular program was developed in cooperation with Boston Communications Group and is available in most major markets in the United States. The residential service prepaid was developed in conjunction with Phones For All of Dallas. It is designed to give flexibility for users in short-term phone service situations, such as when changing residences.

Under a partnership with the American Floral Company, the Phone Card Group has introduced its prepaid floral service program, giving customers a way to use floral delivery services without the need for a major credit card.

The Phone Card Group is located in Grand Prairie, Texas.

BELL MOBILITY PLANS ON HOLD. Plans to roll out the Mobility prepaid cellular cards nationally have been temporarily shelved. These cards can only be used on a cellular phone activated by Bell Mobility in Ontario and parts of Quebec. For Christmas, the slogan "Toys for Big Kids" appeared on both English- and French-language cards. Also being tested are low-mintage business cards /phonecards for Bell Mobility staff members.

CALLSELECT GRINNING OVER DIAL A SMILE. Dentists in Ontario have cottoned to the Dial A Smile card, handed out to patients who offer a referral or are obliged to wait a long time. Like the AC Delco cards, each dental office has personalized cards. Two series of cards were produced: 5- and 10-minute cards in 1997 and 10-minute cards in 1998.

CallSelect's first retail cards, sold by independent grocers who were not yet ready for personalized cards, picture the Rockies, Niagara Falls, and a harbor. The first series uses AT&T Canada as a carrier, the second uses Canquest.

VOCALL LAUNCHES PROMO GOLD. Show cards promote the issuer's new Promo Gold promotional phonecard program. With hundreds of stock images to choose from, retailers and distributors can obtain competitive priced cards quickly and affordably, the company says. Three show cards helped launch the program at the 1998 Promotional Products Association Winter Show, held in January in Dallas.

VoCall Communications; Promo Gold show cards; 5 minutes each; 500 issued (PPA '98 Show Card) 250 each issued (Promo Gold key ring, Liberty key ring); January 1998.

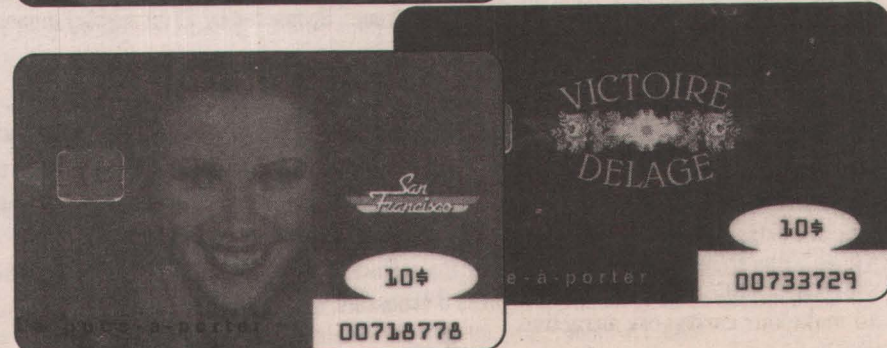

SAN FRANCISCO CARDS FROM CANADA. Based in Boucherville, Quebec, San Francisco is a clothing retailer. The group includes seven chains of stores selling clothes for the whole family, from West Coast for men to Frisco Kids to specialty shops for lingerie (Victoire Delage) and bathing suits (San Francisco Maillots). From informal discussions with other Canadian collectors, the chain appears to be unknown outside Quebec.

The stores have begun to issue payment cards that are marketed as gift certificates, in denominations from $10 to $200. The disposable chip-based cards are sent back to head office when fully drained, but if you are lucky (as I was!) you may get your completely used cards back. The cards are inter-operable among all the stores in the group. Besides each store's definitive, available in all denominations, there have been two known special-occasion cards so far in selected denominations: a Christmas-theme from Les Ailes de la Mode (The Wings of Fashion) and a Valentine theme from Victoire Delage, picturing a deep red rose.

CURIOUS CARDS

"We're sorry, the number you have dialed is a non-working number. Please hang up, check your number and try your call again ..."

When you purchase a phonecard and dial the access number, only to get that kind of message, it makes you wonder. ...

I was fortunate enough to travel to Brussels for CardEx '97, a trip not only to make better international contacts, but also to find lower mintage cards that sometimes are hard to find outside the issuer's country. Armed with the practice of building a thematic collection considered large by some, several years' experience in collecting phonecards, and a knowledge of what to watch for, I arrived at les Pyramides in Brussels almost two hours before the CardEx doors opened.

Immediately, I was approached by a few disheveled eastern European types, some toting multiple briefcases on luggage dollies. "You want phonecard? ... I have phonecard you look for ... I have perfect phonecard for you ... How much you pay? ... I have number one U.S. phonecards for you."

My curiosity piqued, I expressed my interest and viewed their wares. I announced that their prices were too high and walked away, anticipating their next line. I wasn't disappointed.

"How much you pay? ... These good U.S. cards ... How much you pay?"

On the first day, I visited the legitimate booths in the bourse. The curb-side "collectors" (read "dealers") never came inside. On the second day, the briefcase-toting individuals were inside the bourse, in the foyer. They started going person to person, trying to hawk their cards, and even laid out floor pallets of their goods, forcing collectors to maneuver around them to get to legitimate booths.

Finally, on the third day, two of the boldest took over booth space left by dealers who had left early. The cards, previously rubber-banded together in slightly opened suitcases, were spread out for inspection.

These were phonecards I did not have. The question is, did I want them? On many, the poor artwork was obvious, and the printing very poor. The warning bells were ringing loudly now. There were no gross errors, but there were far too many "little things" that, when added up, planted the seeds of suspicion in my mind. How did I come to the conclusion that these cards might not be reputable? It simply is a matter of using my head and eyes.

On a set of 10 motorcar phonecards from "B.E.L. International Telecommunication," here's what I observed:

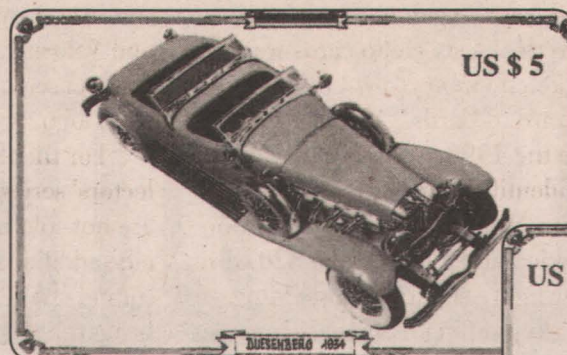

- The layout and printing of the art was so poor that it would send up a red flag to most knowledgeable collectors.

- The reverse looks like a poor duplicate of a typical American card back, with the type running slightly downhill. The address simply says "B.E.L. International Telecommunication, Los Angeles, CA." The advisory at the card's lower left reads "Touchtone telephones only. Protect this card as you would any credit (sic) card. Intended for interstate (sic) use only." Other text includes the line "Ti (sic) place additional calls..."

- On the obverse, the cards' denomination reads "U.S. $5." Why a card being sold as a genuine United States card — and one that the reverse says is intended for interstate use — would need that "U.S." reminder, is suspicious.

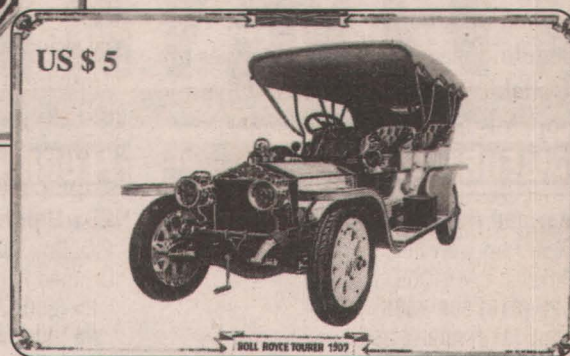

- On one card, an old Rolls-Royce is labeled as a "Roll Royce" and the lettering is inconsistent from card to card.

- The cards are marked "This card expires June 1997." Certainly, there is nothing wrong with buying expired cards, and many of the most

US $ 5

Careless workmanship should be a warning sign that a moneycard might not be what it claims to be. The Duesenberg card, left, has a German flag worked into the upper border — it is an American car. The caption on the Rolls-Royce, below, reads "Roll Royce."

US $ 5

desirable phonecards fit this category. But there is a chance that such an expiration date, conveniently placed a few months before the October CardEx show, would dissuade a collector from bothering to call the 1-800 number.

- And that leads us to the matter of the phone numbers. The number listed under "B.E.L. International Telecommunication, Los Angeles, CA." is "168(669)619-1281." While other countries have long-distance access codes, for the United States, it is just "1." And there is no "669" area code in the U.S., nor did dialing any combination of that number turn up anything other than wrong-number recordings. The 1-800 number, by the way, connects to the reservations desk at the Wyndham Hotel chain, and has for quite some time, according to representatives.

A second set of automobile thematic cards was being sold in shrink-wrapped packs. When opened, their backs were blank.

If that is the case with automobiles on cards, a collector can just imagine what might be floating around out there with Coca-Cola or Disney themes. What's a collector traveling abroad to do?

Here are some tips that should be valid not only for collectors but for phonecard users as well.

1. Look the card over. Use common sense.

2. Always collect only the cards you personally like and wish to add to your collection. Remember, this is a hobby. Don't go to a foreign company expecting to bring back cards that will pay for the trip. If you like a card that you suspect is bogus, buy it with that understanding.

3. Always make sure that cards list both the units of time and the cost somewhere on the card and/or the packaging.

4. Always check for an expiration date on the reverse. If you are going to use the card prior to adding it to your collection, make sure you have enough time to use it before that expiration date.

5. Always check the reverse (in the case of remote-memory cards) for a 1-800 or 1-888 access number and a PIN. If you can copy down and try those numbers before you purchase, do so.

6. If the card is packaged so that the PIN is hidden or is covered by a scratch-off patch, consider buying a used card until you can verify the validity of a PIN, especially if you don't recognize the issuer.

7. Always check the reverse of a card for a customer service number.

8. Look for simple spelling errors, bad grammar and obvious points (like a U.S. use-only card that reads "U.S. $5).

9. Examine the printing quality. Reputable issuers should take pride in their products' appearance.

10. Remember these two tried-and-true cautions: If it looks too good to be true, it probably is, and "Caveat Emptor."

OH CANADA

Some of the news about Canadian Winter Olympic telecards turned up after the March issue deadline. A number of card series are available picturing Canada's Olympic hopefuls for the Nagano games.

Let's start with an intriguing story featuring the licensee from the 1996 Atlanta Games. IDC Telecommunications, in conjunction with Delta Hotels, designed a set of six $10 cards. These cards can be purchased individually at the front desk of any Delta Hotel in Canada; two dollars from every purchase benefits the Canadian Olympic Association (COA). Athletes pictured include curling skip and gold medalist Sandra Schmirler, bobsled gold medalist Pierre Lueders, alpine skier Melanie Turgeon, and fourth-place "Riverdance" ice dancers Shae-Lynn Bourne and Victor Kraatz.

As the card program was about to begin, the saleswoman responsible for the deal left IDC and joined Agon, releasing the cards through Agon. Although the COA license expired at the end of 1996, because the negotiations had begun prior to expiration in fairness these cards could still bear the COA logo and be executed. Network time is provided by BCS; IDC normally uses Canquest as a carrier. No identifying brand names appear on the cards or packaging - the outcome of a pending lawsuit will formally settle the issuer question.

In the meantime, Stentor signed on as an official licensee for the 1998 Nagano games. Focusing on retail issues, six Hello cards were marketed (Moneycard Collector, "A Blizzard of Cards," March 1998). Like the 1996 series, athletes were not identified. The three $10 cards picture a speed skater, a cross-country skier, and a curler; the $20 cards show figure skating, bobsledding, and ski jumping. Each design comes in three varieties: English magnetic stripe packaged in cellophane or blister packaging, or French magnetic stripe in cello wrap only.

A member of Stentor, Bell Canada issued two of the earliest retail chip cards branded with both the LaPuce and QuickChange names. Two Quebec-born aerial skiers were chosen: Caroline Olivier flips for the $5 card and Lloyd Langlois, bronze medalist in 1994, graces the $10 card.

Even if the hockey team disappointed, the cards won't. Valu-net has four series of hockey cards to tempt you. Some incomplete information was included in the March edition. Here are the details: The Canadian men's hockey team was composed mainly of NHL players, including stars such as Wayne Gretzky, Eric Lindros, and the in-again, out-again Paul Kariya. Twenty-three of them went to Japan, along with coach Marc Crawford. These 24 men are pictured on the Valu-net retail series, sold individually and exclusively through Shopper's Drug Mart and Pharmaprix drugstores. (Half the set was released in December 1997, and the remainder in January 1998. Quantities issued of each card are not yet available, and will be determined by player popularity.) Stentor serves as a carrier, and Valu-net is a sublicensee of the COA logo.

For the three collectors' series, which are not sold individually, additional personnel are added to bring the sets to 30 cards each and quantities are limited. The Players (10 units each) and Premium (12 units each) series feature different poses from the retail set, while the Signature series (15 units each) picture the players in white Canadian Hockey Association uniforms. The Signature series is personally autographed by each person, and includes an interactive CD-ROM written by Hall of Famer Brian MacFarlane. The CD-ROM is also included with the Premium set.

Telesonic

Turning now to winter sports on this continent: TCI and the Canada West Ski Areas Association signed a long-term marketing agreement to issue retail cards promoting skiing. The first three cards were released in December and January, with more to follow. These cards can be purchased at ski resorts in western Canada.

Do you prefer a warmer phonecard theme? Guess Jeans is offering a 20-minute phonecard with a minimum $72 purchase at Guess stores and some Eaton department stores.

Club news

The Greater Toronto Phonecard Club will be holding its first all-phonecard exhibition on Sunday, June 7, at the Ramada Hotel 400/401 in North York, Ontario. Admission is free. Booth space has been increased to 50 tables. Attendees are entitled to a special rate of $75 per night at the Ramada. At 30 members, the club claims to be the largest in North America. A commemorative Bell QuickChange card is planned, designed by club Vice President Dave Evans. The club also would like to have a twinned meeting later this year with the smaller Phonecard Collectors' Club of Montreal.

It's TITANIC!

Previewing Our Fabulous New Die-Cut TITANIC Phone Card

Die-Cut Phone Card

Composite Illustration of Card and Carrier

Illustrations above are actual size. Commemorating the Glory of the TITANIC, when in 1912 it represented one of mankind's greatest achievements. Never before was there such a magnificent passenger liner, and never before has there been such a Phone Card! When the Die-Cut TITANIC Phone Card is seen on it's carrier card it has the appearance of a Full Color Post Card of 1912 issued to commemorate the TITANIC's maiden voyage - yet the Die-Cut TITANIC itself is fully removable from the carrier card. The card is a 12 minute card to
