As I wrote this editorial in Atlanta, the immediate focus of some 6,000 visitors from more than 30 countries was not on the Olympic Games but on an international event of a different kind. That event was CardTech/SecurTech, the world's largest card and security conference, where the focus was on the future of digital information.

The speakers and the exhibits at this show (as well as other trends I have observed in the last couple of years) suggest there are several factors that will shape the collector market for moneycards. So I'll stick my neck out here and make a few predictions.

While price, design and availability will always be important, the most important factor may be whether or not a given card bears a name or number that attaches it to a particular individual. Having a celebrity's VISA cash card would be great for anyone's collection but the supply would be too small and the celebrity-owner(s) of today are very reluctant to give them up. A "John Doe" card could be hard to obtain and yet have no real meaning for the collector. So I think all of this suggests that only cards without owner-identifying information will be collectible.

Also important will be the extent to which the card in question can be used where virtually any product or service is sold. In other words, the more the card truly performs as a direct replacement for cash the more collectible it should be. Ahem, not forgetting rarity either!

Phone cards already have qualified as collectible moneycards and will become even more so as the services they provide are enhanced beyond simple telephony and as the images on them become even more significant (e.g. through co-branding). The corollary of this is that the early significant cards will become even rarer and more expensive. I'll say it again, get those early cards for your collection now.

Also meeting this criteria are the disposable stored value moneycards issued already or in the future by banks (e.g. First Union, NationsBank and Wachovia with their VISA Cash cards) and near-banks (e.g. American Express). These likewise should continue to experience virtually instant adoption as collectibles. We can also expect continued collector interest in sports moneycards (e.g. The Score Board Inc. sports phone issues and Jacksonville Jaguar VISA Cash).

Cards that promote customer loyalty may gain a collector following, provided that they are not tied to a named person. Beverage and fast food companies would seem to be natural clients for such cards.

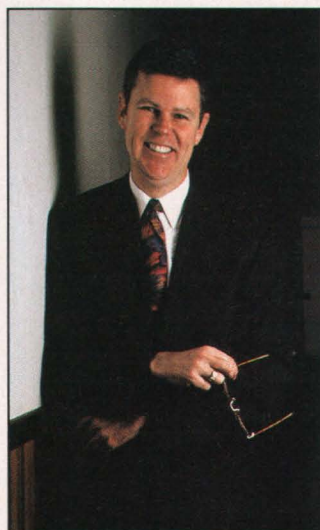

Transportation moneycards have always been collectible but may grow in popularity as their capabilities extend beyond fare collection. The same may turn out to be true for parking/bridge/toll payment cards. In this sector, reducing the percentage of fares paid with tokens and cash will be mandatory for reasons of cost. In Atlanta, for example, MARTA estimates its fare collection cost with tokens (minting, collection, sortation, counterfeiting) at 6.6%, whereas with VISA Cash the direct costs will be between three and four percent.

A relatively safe prediction, I think, is that there are going to be many cards that will be difficult to collect and for which there may be no aftermarket. Such cards will be issued for: educational institutions, health care and social benefits delivery. The same will be true for government ID cards and cards issued for facilitating cross-border travel between countries. Even though some of these cards will also have intrinsic monetary value and in fact be moneycards, it seems likely that virtually all such cards issued will be tied to particular individuals. This will curtail both collector supply and demand. Would not a collection of such cards be very interesting, you ask? Yes, I would think so. However, some of these cards would be illegal to collect and almost certainly all would be difficult to sell in the aftermarket.

Bottom line? Without exception, all speakers and exhibitors at CardTech/SecurTech based their futures on a trend we have talked about before: the cost of making and processing physical cash keeps increasing, while electronic cash costs keep decreasing. You, my dear collector friends, truly are involved in a ground floor collecting phenomenon. Wonderful!

Thanks to USTA

Thanks to the USTelecard Association for helping me with the Kmart (USA Calling) 30-minute phone card. Thought I had been ripped off when I traded for these cards. Thanks to USTA, you interceded on my behalf and got me the phone time I'm due.

It's nice to know you are the industry's "watchdogs" and crack down on deadbeat companies. I urge anyone having problems with phone cards to call or write your office. With all the new companies popping up almost daily, it is easy to get ripped off, since some companies could be fly-by-night.

With the awareness of phone cards growing daily, I urge every collector to be careful. Do business with the companies you are familiar with, and go to the telecard shows to meet the new companies who advertise in the trade magazines. A little common sense can save you valuable phone time, and keep your blood pressure in check. I also want to say thanks to Moneycard Collector for passing your name and number on to me, and for being a great source of telecard information.

Mario Mocerì, collector

The above letter was forwarded from the USTelecard Association.

NYNEX/Bell Atlantic Merger

I noticed in the media coverage of the recent NYNEX/Bell Atlantic merger that pre-paid phone cards were not even mentioned.

I would urge all collectors, especially those living in the 12 states affected by the merger, to write to their public utility boards with a view to forcing NYNEX/Bell Atlantic – kicking and screaming if necessary – to scrap their antique coin phones and install card phones.

This may be the only opportunity to put pressure on them, to give Americans the same quality of service that people enjoy in other countries around the world.

Smear campaign

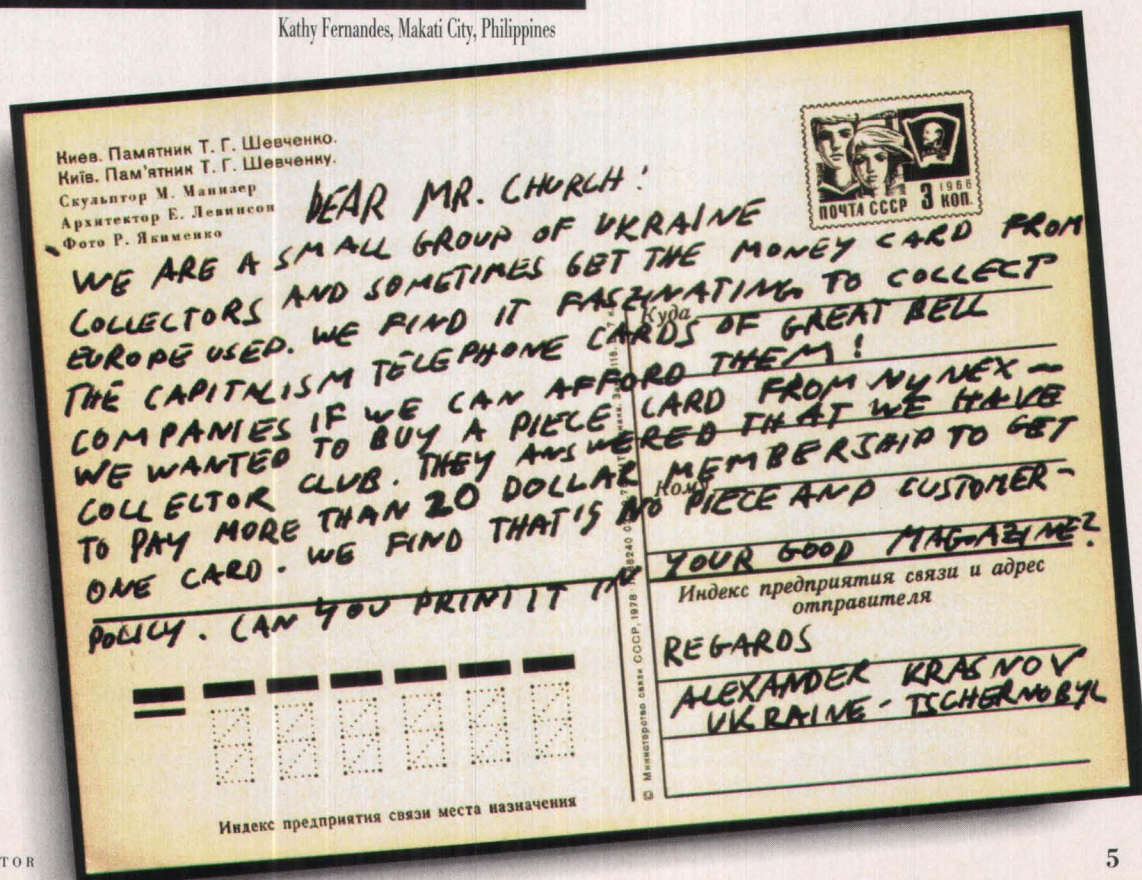

NYNEX has been in the forefront of the rapidly evolving prepaid phone card market since we launched the NYNEX Change Card product in 1991. We have built professional relationships with all customers and contacts during the last several years and it has been our pleasure to serve the industry.

Unfortunately, we have been made aware that someone has undertaken a campaign to stain our reputation in the marketplace. This was brought to our attention by many of our peers and colleagues. To date, NYNEX has information concerning the placement of false advertisements in industry publications; advertisements for false discounts of NYNEX Change Card editions; and the passage of invalid rumors to our distributors.

On behalf of NYNEX, I would like to thank those of you who have brought this information to our attention. If anyone has any further information on this subject, please contact me immediately so I may forward it to our legal department for appropriate action.

Michael McLaughlin, NYNEX, White Plains, NY

We received this lovely postcard from Alexander Krasnov, a phone card collector from Chernobyl, Ukraine. We always are excited to hear from our collector friends overseas. Concerning the NYNEX World Peace card, we gave Mr. Krasnov the names of some dealers who carry the card.

Carrying The Torch

Olympics-inspired moneycards go for gold

by Art Becker

Moneycard news doesn't get any bigger than this! Combining the introduction of VISA Stored Value Cards with the 1996 Olympic Summer Games produces a once-in-a-lifetime collecting opportunity. There are three different Olympic moneycard collectibles to choose from: VISA Cash, phone cards and VISA TravelMoney (Bet you never heard of this one before!).

VISA Cash, mentioned in our March 1996 issue, is a plastic card with an electronic integrated circuit, (or chip) that stores the value of the card. These are referred to as stored value cards (SVCs).

An SVC is the equivalent of cash. A user hands it to a cashier, the cashier inserts it into a reader, and in a few seconds the amount of the transaction is deducted, the card is electronically marked with the remaining value, and returned to the user. There are no PINs or signatures involved.

SVCs are available to the public in denominations from $10 to $100. Multiple cards can be used for the same transaction, and if there isn't enough value remaining on a card, cash can make up the difference. Only a bank can issue SVCs, and since VISA is not a bank, VISA Cash is distributed by three Atlanta-area banks: NationsBank, First Union and Wachovia. Since these are VISA cards, the banks can use the Atlanta Games logo, with the word VISA underneath. First NationsBank/VISA Cash; Ribbons of Color Series (set/2): Gymnast; $20 denomination; 25,000 issued; April 1996.

NationsBank/VISA Cash; Gold Medal U.S. Olympians Series (set/4): Mel Stewart/ Swimming; $20; 75,000 issued; May 1996.

Union displays the Atlanta logo with VISA under it. Wachovia uses the standard Atlanta logo for its own SVC, and uses a different version for its co-branded SVCs. Co-branded means yet another company logo is on the card, besides VISA and the name of the bank. Co-branded cards exist for First Union & Texaco (another official sponsor), plus NationsBank & the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority (MARTA, which is also the official Olympic Games Spectator Transportation System).

NATIONSBANK

NationsBank created an Olympic SVC, for a pilot program in September 1995. The card could be used at the Atlanta and Norfolk NationsBank Plaza employee cafeterias, and convenience stores. Since NationsBank is an official sponsor of the U.S. team, it is the only bank allowed to conduct business at Olympic venues. There will be 34 locations at the Olympics where NationsBank's VISA Cash SVC can be purchased. Twelve will be kiosks staffed by NationsBank personnel; the remaining 22 will be vending machines. Approximately 160 Olympic food and merchandise vendors will accept the SVCs. Of course, SVCs from any of the three banks, including co-branded cards, will be accepted. Further distinguishing NationsBank's issues are the use of the logo of the U.S. Olympic Committee and the phrase "Official Sponsor 1996 US Olympic

First Union/VISA Cash; Inaugural Series/CyberCash (set/4): $5 denomination; 7,000 issued; October 1995.

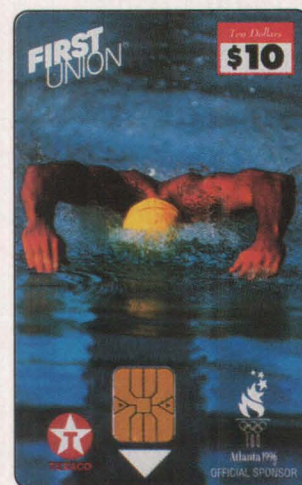

NationsBank/MARTA/VISA Cash; Atlanta Skyline: $20 denomination; 70,000 issued; May 1996.

MARTA Transcard; Olympic Games Series (set/12): Shannon Miller; 25,000 issued; February 1996.

First Union/VISA Cash; Geo Modern Series (set/4): $20 denomination; 5,000 issued; May 1996.

First Union Texaco; Olympic Athletes (set/4): swimmer; $10 denomination; 15,000 issued; March 1996.

Team" and on cards with the Atlanta Games logo the phrase "Centennial Olympic Games Partner." NationsBank estimates it will produce 1 million SVC for the Olympics. Although this might sound like a lot of cards, more than 2 million people are expected to attend the Games. Most of NationsBank cards are manufactured by the security printing firm of Giesecke & Devrient.

Note that there are 16 official U.S. Olympic coins being issued by the U.S. Mint in copper, silver, and gold. The NationsBank cards show four of these coins. The coins are available from the U.S. Mint, but purchasing the cards through NationsBank offers added benefits: commemorative packaging, and, in some cases, a pin. Part of the sales receipts will support the U.S. Olympic team and the Olympics in general, and the bank will make a contribution for each sale to the NationsBank Hopefuls Fund. The donation from coin sales to the Fund alone is expected to be $100,000. Call (800) 661-2646 for additional information.

The first on-site use of the NationsBank VISA Cash cards was at the U.S. Track & Field Trials, held June 14-23 at the Olympic Stadium. Cards were sold at three kiosks there.

MARTA's co-branded card has the most topics, or motifs, to collect, including Olympics, SVC, rapid transit and city skyline. An unconfirmed rumor has a $50 card being issued shortly. These SVCs will be sold at 21 stations having vending machines, and at the five Ride Stores, including one at the airport. While only NationsBank SVCs will be sold at MARTA, any card from any bank is valid for use.

NationsBank SVCs also can be ordered from dealers, purchased at 20 branches of the bank, or obtained through the mail by calling (800) 689-0229.

A final NationsBank Olympic moneycard will be a stand-alone reloadable version, or electronic wallet. Three hundred such Olympic-themed cards will be produced (for this internal pilot program.)

FIRST UNION

This bank has several sets of Olympic-related cards, all with the Atlanta Games logo. The first set has designs that resemble currency. Denominations are $10, $20, $50 and $100. A previously issued $5 card does not have an Olympic logo. Other First Union sets with the Atlanta logo include the Geo-Modern series ($10, $20, $50 & $100), Athletes ($10 Runners, $20 Female Gymnast, $50 Swimmer and $100 Cyclists), and the Flowers set. The quantities of some of these sets are limited to 5,000. In all cases, the Atlanta logo says VISA underneath it. First Union's information number is (800) 704-6923. You also might be able to order their SVCs through any First Union branch nationwide.

Co-branded Texaco cards have Olympic designs. These include a $10 Swimmer, $20 Hurdler, $50 Gymnast and $100 Jumper. These co-branded cards are only available for sale through card vending machines (CDMs) at selected Texaco Star Market stations, though they are valid at all SVC merchant locations.

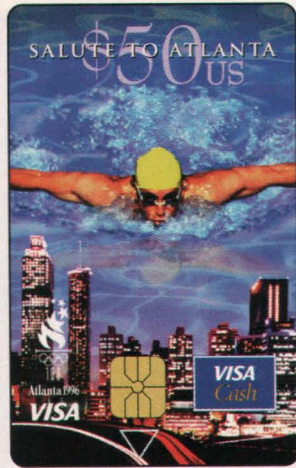

WACHOVIA BANK

This was the first bank to extensively advertise its Olympic SVCs to collectors.

The "Salute to Atlanta" set is in two parts, with 15,000 cards issued in each part. The first series consists of these cards: $10 Gymnast, $20 Hurdler and $50 Swimmer. The second series has a $20 Cyclist and $50 Soccer Player. All have the Atlanta/VISA logo, and all feature the Atlanta skyline with the Wachovia Bank headquarters in the background. Note that the Wachovia; Salute to Atlanta, Series 1 (set/3): hurdler; $20 denomination; 15,000 issued; January 1996.

Wachovia; Salute to Atlanta, Series 1 (set/3): swimmer; $50 denomination; 15,000 issued; January 1996.

Wachovia cards have "US" after the denomination. Since VISA Cash Cards are being issued worldwide, there is a need to indicate the currency used. In Australia, the pilot cards merely indicated "$," while the production cards now say "A$."

PHONE CARDS

As you would imagine, Greece has issued 1996 Atlanta Olympic phone cards. The Greek PTT's 7,500 sets consist of two 100-unit cards. U.S. dealers are selling the sets for $50.

Canadian telcos have also issued cards to commemorate the Atlanta Games. For details check out this month's Oh Canada! on page 10.

AT&T is a company in a unique situation regarding the Games. VISA is the Official Card of the Olympics, but AT&T is a "Centennial Olympic Games Partner" and a sponsor of the U.S. team. This gives them the right to put the U.S. Olympic Committee logo on their products. Now, when you think about this logically, the product AT&T sells is telephone time, not

AT&T; Prepaid Calls (set/4): Men's Basketball; 50 units; quantity unavailable; issued 1996

cards. In fact, cards are only incidental to the phone time, whereas they are crucial to the concept of SVC. Remote memory "phone cards" can really be anything you can put an 800 number and PIN on, including the head of a pin (pun?) or the side of an elephant. Thus, we now have the product known as "AT&T PrePaid Calls," available in four denominations: 10, 15, 25 and 50 units. Each unit, which costs $.45, is equal to one minute of time within the U.S. One cent from each unit purchased will be used to support the U.S. team. While all the PrePaid Calls will be available at the Olympics, the 25 and 50 unit products can also be obtained by calling (800) 462-1818. Through September 30, customers who purchase $22.50 worth of U.S. Olympic Team PrePaid Calls will receive an exclusive 10 minute Olympic collectible, uh, product.

VISA TRAVELMONEY

This might be new to you, since only one bank, Barnett Bank, is currently issuing VISA TravelMoney in the U.S. What is VISA TravelMoney? It is a prepaid card of no fixed denomination that a customer "loads" at his home bank in his own local currency, then can use at ATMs world-wide to obtain foreign cash denominated in local currency. This product should become a very popular mon-eycard product for consumers because it will provide the users with convenience plus an economical exchange rate.

Barnett Banks/VISA TravelMoney: Olympic Torch; denomination variable; 15,000 issued; June 1996.

Members of the VISA Cash Corps stand to play an important role in educating users of VISA Cash cards.

Its design features the flame portion of the Atlanta logo and VISA on the left, the Atlanta logo on the upper right, and has the five rings logo on the reverse. Under this logo it reads "Worldwide Partner 1996 Olympic Games." 10,000 cards were produced for sale to customers at Barnett Bank branches throughout Florida and in southern Georgia. An additional 5,000 promotional cards were made. The promo cards look identical to the real cards, except they are marked with a serial number "n of 5,000" and reads "Limited edition complimentary card with no real monetary value for promotional purposes only" on the reverse. They are not available by phone or mail but collectors will be able to obtain cards through Powell Associates in New York. It's a sure bet that as the first issue of VISA TravelMoney this Barnett card will be a prized addition to many collections.

The SVCs are new in the U.S., yet will play an important role in the Atlanta Olympics. All parties concerned cooperated and collectors have been taken into consideration from the start. There have been some preliminary glitches, and the initial list of participating merchants was mostly imaginary. But, every day, more companies are joining up and VISA is announcing more efforts aimed at consumer education. One idea that harkens back to the introduction of ATM cards is the creation of the VISA Cash Corps – college students who will greet visitors to Atlanta and answer questions about VISA Cash and how they might use the cards in some 5,000 terminals in the Atlanta area.

All of these Olympic VISA Cash cards are important and highly collectible. The downside is that a complete set of publicly available cards will cost more than $600. This, coupled with the fact that the cards do expire, will make it both practical and desirable for many collectors to seek used cards in good condition. Unfortunately, vending machines do scratch cards to some extent. Even cards sold by tellers are often scratched, due to extra handling during inventory control.

The best mint condition unused cards (i.e. least handled) will be enclosed in specially produced color folders available only through the three officially appointed collector distributors: in the U.S., KARS and B&B Fone Collector Cards, and in Europe, the DANMONT collector service.

Expiration dates are a characteristic of all of these early VISA Cash cards. The reason given for the expiration date has been that there is a possibility that new technology will replace the current one. This seems puzzling, since smart-card technology is mainly software driven, rather than hardware (e.g., chips and cards) oriented. Surely any new system could have provisions in it to accept "older" cards. On the other hand, most phone cards expire, and that doesn't seem to have stopped most people in this country from collecting mint U.S. cards exclusively. But, no matter what you finally decide, you better make your mind up quickly. Many of these cards, and the 1996 Summer Olympics, will be gone soon!

Cards purchased at CDM's (card dispensing machines) will likely be scratched. If you visit Atlanta during the games your best chance for purchasing cards with the fewest scratches will be at bank teller windows. Cards supplied to collector distributors have been almost free of scratches.

HELLO GOES INTERNATIONAL

Initially, the only way to purchase a Hello card was to be in Canada, in a particular province, and only the cards of that province could be purchased. Two new series from the Stentor Alliance of provincial telephone companies shatters those provincial and national barriers, so more collectors outside Canada can enjoy the remote memory Hello cards.

The Stentor companies are comprised of BC Tel, Alberta Government Telephones, Sasktel, MTS Netcom, Bell Canada, Québec-Téléphone, NBTel, Maritime Tel&Tel, Island Tel, Newtel Communications, and NorthwTel. Cards purchased in one province may be used anywhere in Canada, the United States and any country supporting Canada Direct dialing services to Canada.

To commemorate the Centennial Olympic Games this summer in Atlanta, and to publicize that the Stentor companies are official Canadian Olympic sponsors, a number of Olympic cards are available. The regular set contains eight different images on a white background — four $10 cards and four $20 cards. These are sold nationwide through Stentor's regular distribution channels. Diehard Olympic collectors take note: four versions of each design have been confirmed, and there is a possibility that a fifth will

AMERICA'S MOST WANTED

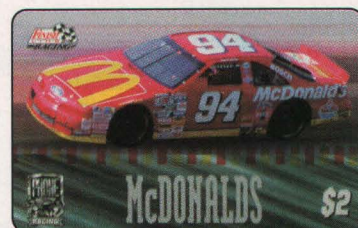

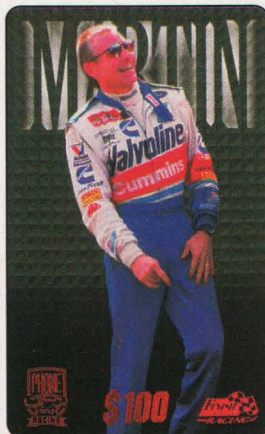

Well folks, we've changed America's Most Wanted again! When we began the column in February 1995, we used a ranking system to determine what cards would make the list. After a brief foray with actual retail sales data that was supplied to us by several dealers each month, we realized that the results were still not indicative of the industry's most wanted cards. So, we have returned to the ranking system, where dealers report their top-sellers and give their opinions of the best cards available. Any dealer who wishes to contribute needs only to call (513/498-0879) or fax (513/498-0876).

1 USACARD CRACKER JACK

USACard from Denver created three different versions of this colorful card: 10 (1,500 mintage), 12 (300 mintage) and 15 units (93 mintage). The sum equals 1,893; the year Cracker Jack was created. The most common card carries 10 units, but everyone gets a chance to win 12 or 15 units by scratching off a tiny box on the reverse. The design is a winner; the idea is a winner. This may be USACard's best issue so far. Watch this one to see how far it goes, and get yours NOW!

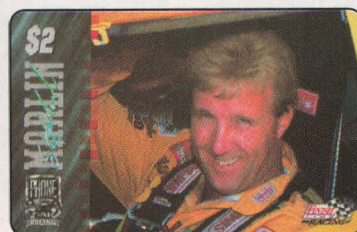

3 FINISH LINE PHONEPAKS The foil packs, which sell for $6, may contain some high value cards: $5, $10, $50, $100 and $1,000. The buyer is guaranteed at least three $2 cards in each pack. Since NASCAR is so popular, there will be plenty of takers for the 134 possible cards featuring 40 different drivers. For example, Jeff Gordon, 1995 Winston Cup winner, has 10 different cards! For collectors of NASCAR memorabilia who can spend $180 on a Dale Earnhardt jacket, $6 should seem like a bargain for three images of their heroes on something with intrinsic value. More new telecard collectors!

4 LDDS WORLD COM MICHAEL JORDAN 10-UNIT

You may have seen this card on the cover of April's Moneycard Collector. Air Jordan's card was such a hit, the April issue of the magazine sold out. The 10,000-issue card is much sought after, though easy to obtain. LDDS will continue to issue new, exciting Jordan cards, but this will always be their first. A 999-mintage jumbo card also bears the same image.

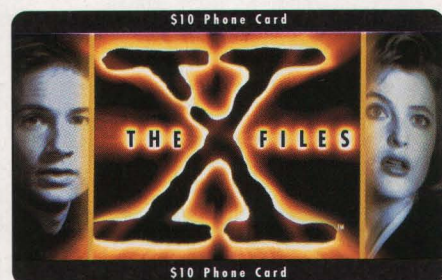

2 STS/CABLE & WIRELESS NASHVILLE ROUNDUP SET/3

STS, a multi-service worldwide telecommunications provider, is one of C&W's biggest prepaid clients. Together they issued a set for the first STS Convention called "Nashville Roundup." The set mintage of 4,300 can't come close to satisfying the demand of more than 100,000 STS independent representatives, so they're coming into the collectibles marketplace to find the sets. Although the face value for each card is only $5, the sets are now worth as much as $300.

5 FRONTIER X-FILES

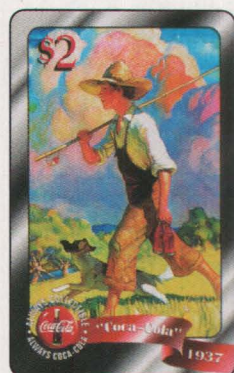

As the popularity of the TV series grows, so does the cult of avid X-Files followers. This single US card is a steady best-seller, and BT in England has just issued a set of six to whet collector appetites in the UK. The US card has a seemingly unlimited mintage, but at least three varieties have passed through my hands: a 1995 issue with scratch-off, a 1996 issue with no scratch-off and a large blister pack (peg pack) card. So, dedicated collectors, the hunt is on!

6 PROMOTEL BLIMPIE/COKE POLAR BEAR

The Coke Polar Bear is quite versatile: he hunts, sleds, skis, skates and still looks cute on the this set of four laminated-paper cards from Blimpie, a chain of sandwich restaurants. Each card has 25 minutes of time. Perhaps one thing could have made these cards better: 30 mil plastic. No doubt, as collectors demand higher quality, this will be taken into consideration.

7 THE SCORE BOARD INC./CLASSIC 1996 48-CARD $2 SET

One of several Coca Cola sets in their 1996 series. The price began at about 1.3 times face value. It has been a popular Classic set because of the low price per card and features delightful designs from the past.

8 AT&T DENNIS THE MENACE & DAIRY QUEEN.

Created for a New Jersey franchise promotion, the card was introduced to collectors at a high price, and will probably go higher. This is truly a low mintage for an AT&T Telecard at 750. The design is nice too, so it has everything going for it.

9 CLASSIC MCDONALD'S $1,000 PROMO

To introduce upcoming new issues, The Score Board, Inc. (Classic, Assets, et al) issues high value announcement or "promo" cards. This card is very popular and bears an artist's rendition of an early McDonalds. It will be found on the actual $1,000 cards, of which there will be very few... perhaps as few as five. This image will also be found with the words "Telecard World '96" foiled across the top. That version was created for TCW Atlanta; see Show Stoppers on page 70.

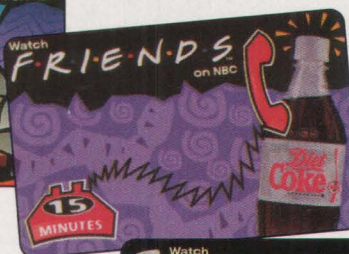

10 AT&T DISNEY'S POCAHONTAS

AT&T created 100,000 of these 5-minute cards. That should be ample to satisfy collector demand, which has been steady since the card's release last January.

11 TEKTEL MARKETING/CENTURY COMMUNICATIONS NBC FRIENDS

Gosh, these four 15-minute cards are hard to get! The promotion didn't last long enough to satisfy collector need. The cards were hidden in specially marked 12- and 24- packs of Diet Coke. Century and TekTel are the same folks who brought you the Dillons/United/Smith's Coca Cola series, which also weren't easy to obtain. Incidentally, these are only the second cards to have the "Friends" logo; the first card, which pictured cast members, was produced by Sprint in the fall of 1994, when the show first aired.

America's Most Wanted is compiled monthly by Moneycard Collector and written by dealer Steve Eyer of Mt. Zion, Ill. All dealers are welcome to participate by faxing a list of their company's top ten best-selling cards for the month. Please fax before the 20th of each month.

This month's rankings courtesy of: ACME Telecards, B&B Collectibles, Blue Ribbon, Freedman Collectibles, Griffin's Sports Cards, Ira's Cards, JR's Telecards, Keep the Change, Mish International Monetary, Promotional Phone Cards, TW Phonecards, TeleTalk Inc., Powell Associates, Sears Phone Card Department and United America Cards.

CORPORATE CORNER

GE EXCHANGE KICKS OFF THIS EDITION OF THE CORPORATE CORNER WITH TWO VERY TOUGH TO FIND CARDS.

Recently they issued 1,300 10-minute super-looking cards to promote the Sunday night debut of the popular NBC News magazine show, Dateline NBC. The cards were sent to NBC stations to ask for extra promotion for the show on local affiliates. The card also has a custom prompt featuring the NBC chimes and the voice of Stone Phillips, one of the show's hosts.

GE Exchange; Dateline NBC; 10 minutes; 1,300 issued; March 1996.

GE Exchange; Kricfalusi's NBC Peacock; 10-minute; quantity unavailable; March 1996.

Canada Telecom; Sealtest-Haagen Dazs; $5 denomination; 12,005 issued; March 1996.

Canada Telecom; Best Foods; $5 denomination; 3,000 issued; December 1995.

Canada Telecom; Pepcid AC; 20 minutes; 1,000 issued; April 1996.

Also from GE Exchange comes another NBC card featuring John Kricfalusi's version of the famous NBC peacock. (Kricfalusi is also the designer of "Ren & Stimpy"). This 10-minute card was available as a mail-in along with proofs of purchase and a cash register receipt for the purchase of some GE light bulbs.

From the Great White North, our friends at Canada Telecom Network (CTN) have issued a couple of cards that are good enough to eat! Both of them were issued to separate major players in the food business, and were handed out to store managers and clerks nationally to encourage them to better present the products on store shelves. Both are $5 cards, one for Best Foods (the makers of Skippy peanut butter and Hellmann's mayonnaise; 12,005 cards) and one for Sealtest (the Canadian distributor of Häagen-Dazs ice cream; 3000 cards). Additionally, CTN produced 1,000 20-minute Pepcid AC cards in French to promote the product to Canadian pharmacists.

If you've been scouring the aisles of your local stores, you may have noticed that Finesse shrink-wrapped 5-minute prepaids right to their shampoo and conditioner bottles. Each card's PIN may hold the key to prizes, ranging from trips to a Jeep. The truly lucky may win one of 6,500 15-minute phone cards. LDDS WorldCom produced 2,126,000 cards for this promotion.

Public Access Telephone Co. (PATCO) released a five-card set to promote Triumph Motorcycles. The cards feature Triumph motorcycles and actress Pamela Lee, star of the movie "Barb Wire". Only 750 sets were issued and can be purchased from any Triumph dealer or from PATCO. The set includes three cards with 10 units and two cards with 25 units of time and sells for $45.

LDDS/WorldCom; Finesse On Package card; 5 units; 2,162,000 issued; May 1996.

LDDS/WorldCom; Finesse Prize card; 15 units; 6,500 issued; May 1996.

AT&T; Dennis at Dairy Queen; 5 units; 750 issued; April 1996.

Dennis the Menace climbs a cup of Dairy Queen ice cream on one of the lowest minted AT&T cards ever produced, with a mintage of only 750. It was produced as a giveaway to customers at a Dairy Queen franchise in New Jersey. It's a cute card that will be tough to find.

That's it for this month. Keep your eyes open as promotional phonecards pop up in more places than ever before, especially in your Sunday newspaper coupon section. Above all, have fun collecting!

MONEYCARD COLLECTOR INTRODUCES THE NUMBERING SYSTEM OF THE FUTURE Do you dream of moneycards? When you close your eyes at night, do you see elusive Landis & Gyr trial cards dancing just out of your grasp? During your waking hours, do you hunt for pre-pays in the aisles of your local grocery, scan airports for vending machines and, of course, read Moneycard Collector to find out what new cards you just have to have?

You know you do. Admit it! But, that's just fine with the staff of Moneycard Collector, because we are all for collectors. We keep track of all the new cards and information in the prepaid collectibles industry, we revisit important historical cards and now, after two years of preparation, we are poised to bring you the definitive catalog of United States and Canadian collectible moneycards.

We intend to bring you the catalog in phases, introduced first in Moneycard Collector. During the next six months, you (and your postal carrier!) will notice that the magazine grows heavier and bigger, as we add about 1,000 new prices per issue. A Moneycard Collector Number (MCN) will accompany each new listing. Assigning numbers to the cards in the magazine will lead to a second phase: a catalog/reference guide to all United States and Canadian moneycards. The catalog will be available late this year.

Our cataloging system is our own creation. We've studied other systems from around the world and from other hobbies. In fact, we've worked closely with Scott Stamp Publishing, the folks who are responsible for the Scott Stamp Catalog Series and numbering system, used by collectors around the world. That part was easy: they are a sister division at our 120-year-old parent company, Amos Press Inc., a leader in collectibles publishing. Our consultants include stamp and coin cataloguers, the most knowledgeable collectors and dealers in the prepaid collectibles industry and of course, you. Our readers possess the most important opinions we will hear. What would you like to see in a definitive catalog of prepaid phone and moneycards? Consult page two of this issue to discover the many ways to get in touch with us. Your opinion is vital.

The first phase begins with this issue. The following issuers' prepaids have been catalogued: ACMI, American National Phone Card, Ameritech, AT&T, Bell Atlantic, Destiny Communications, Inc., LDDS, Prepaid Telecommunications International, and Southwestern Bell. In the coming months, we'll complete them all. But to start, we have a nice mix of small and large issuers.

The implementation of this copyrighted numbering system is important to you, our reader, because you will now be able to get more information about cards very quickly. All the numbers will eventually be used in stories and captions, and in advertisements, allowing our dealer/advertisers to serve you better by being able to convey more information about your next cards.

Basic Overview of Numbering System

Each of the cards will be listed in order of its release date, thus the first card released is the first numbered card, or "1."

Sets in which the cards are not released simultaneously will have numbers left open for them. Thus, a set of cards will be numbered sequentially, though the cards were not released at the same time. If the exact number of cards cannot be determined, we will approximate the number of slots to be left open.

The numerical portion of an MCN alludes to its release date — lower numbers are earlier cards. Another letter or combination of letters may follow the numerals. When scanning the columns for a particular card, keep your eyes on the numerical portion of the MCN. Although the letters surrounding the MCN may be different, the numerals remain constant and will guide you quickly to the card you want.

Sports Cards

If a card contains an image of an organized, competitive sport, the card will be denoted with a "S" before its number. Certain sporting activities will be given the "S"

Guide to Descriptors

J jumbo an oversized or jumbo card designation, such as hunting, fishing, archery and other like pursuits. Cards depicting well-known sports figures (even if they are not engaged in a sporting event) will be considered sports cards.

Sports cards will remain separated for the Price Guide but rejoin the issuer's non-sports listings in the catalog.

Proof, Test and Specimen Cards

We realize that some collectors value proof and specimen cards. If these cards exist, we will provide as much information about them as possible. Of course, quantity information is very valuable, but often unavailable. Regardless of whether quantities are known, we will attempt to confirm the existence of these cards. Inevitably, the most heavily traded proofs and specimens will be valued. However, the lack of a listing for such cards does not confirm or deny their existence.

Varieties and Errors

Cards with identical front images that have been reproduced with different text on either the front or reverse of the card are varieties. These will be denoted by lowercase letters, starting with "a," which falls after the numerical descriptor (i.e. 123a; 123b; etc.) Card series with identical fronts yet different denominations will be significantly different and will warrant their own number.

Errors are often recalled or destroyed. Those cards will be documented to the best of our ability, and be designated with an "E" after the numerals. We will attempt to document how many cards were made initially and how many still exist.

The most important aspect of our new numbering system and the upcoming catalog remains its accuracy. Industry experts and issuers are consulted during this process to minimize chances for errors. Our catalog will be more than just a showcase for collector cards — we aim to make it a definitive guide that will make history along with this growing industry. We're glad you can share it with us!

And above all, we hope to continue to help you find those elusive cards, and to make your collecting not only easier, but more fun.

Tori Stone

Readers: we want to know what you think! This is your numbering system, this is your magazine, and we'll be creating your catalog. Issuers: Don't miss out! To ensure your cards are catalogued, please contact Cataloguer Tori Stone for more information.

How to Use The Moneycard Collector Price Guide

Price listings in the Moneycard Collector Price Guide are provided only as a guide and are set based on price lists supplied by some 30 dealers around the world and on other market information. Listings without prices will be completed as suitable market information becomes available.

As you know, our price guide is divided into Non-Sports, Sports, Jumbo and Foreign cards for your convenience. You may notice that some issuers' cards appear in the Sports section with a MCN (Moneycard Collector Number), such as Ameritech's first sports card: S30. Please note that 29 cards of the Non-sports variety preceded that card, and the number 30 means that the card is the 30th Ameritech card, not the 30th Ameritech Sports card. You'll witness the same in the Jumbo section.

Visa TravelMoney Card

Special 1996 Olympic Limited Edition of 5,000 Pieces

(This is a Complimentary Serial Numbered Card with no Real Monetary Value)

Barnett Bank and Visa have teamed up to offer consumers a new, convenient way to get cash when traveling on business or vacation. Barnett is the first bank in the Southeast to offer Visa TravelMoney, a pre-paid debit card that travelers can use to "carry" cash worldwide through access at any of the 280,000 Visa/Plus ATMs. Barnett Visa TravelMoney is a disposable card - designed to be discarded when its value is depleted.

The first 10,000 cards sold by Barnett will be a limited Olympic edition. Barnett Visa TravelMoney can be purchased at any of Barnett's 612 offices in Florida and South Georgia beginning June 10. In addition, the 5,000 special edition cards pictured will be made available to collectors through Powell Associates Inc. at the following prices: Single cards at $6.50 each, 20 or more cards at $5.50 plus shipping charges.

The most important new feature of this card is the new Holographic image which totally covers the black magnetic stripe on the reverse. To our knowledge, this is the first time that such a large high grade hologram is being used on a card.

To purchase the above and other collector's cards, call:

BABY BELL NOTES

AMERITECH

Art Van Furniture gave away 5-minute "Call Mom On Us" Ameritech phonecards in their more than 25 Michigan stores during Mother's Day weekend.

Another exciting university trial is under way, at the University of Chicago. Five payphones with magnetic readers have been installed in the new student communication center. Special 25-unit magnetic stripe cards will be used to introduce a new PrePaid line of cards. This same technology was used by the CoinSaver cards, where the 800 access number and PIN are stored on the card's magnetic stripe. When inserted into the special payphones, the 800 number is automatically dialed, and the PIN automatically entered. Otherwise, the cards are the same as any other remote memory product, with the 800 number and PIN also printed on the card, so that they can be used with any phone.

BELL SOUTH

Just a reminder that the VISA Stored Value Cards now being used at the Olympics in Atlanta will be valid for use in 200 special Bell South payphones.

NEVADA BELL

The inaugural cards from this Pacific Telesis (and now Southwestern Bell) company will consist of a set of four definitive cards, using the same designs as the current Pacific Bell cards, illustrated in this column in the April 1996 issue. Stored memory cards will eventually be available. These will be in the form of both general stored value cards, like the VISA SVC, and payphone only chip cards, like those used by U S WEST. Collector ordering information is expected to be available soon.

NYNEX

Finishing touches are still being applied to the only NYNEX Change Cards on the horizon. These are the Radio City Music Hall cards and the Jacob Javits Center cards, the latter having been delayed since September 1995. There is still no word on the fate of the remaining 1995 NYNEX Collector Club phonecards, which were only supposed to go to members who joined during 1995.

PACIFIC BELL

Pac Bell has assumed an aggressive stance when it comes to issuing new and important phonecards. Rumors that the staff have been working long hours for quite some time have been confirmed. Cards recently issued, such as the two Mother's Day cards and the San Francisco Public Library Cards (3,000), are very attractive. Two images were issued for Father's Day, a classic red '57 Chevy and a red '61 Corvette. There were about 30,000 Mother's Day cards printed (with somewhat uneven distribution between the two designs), while there were 10,000 of each Father's Day card. All cards came with a greeting card, which was available in either English or Spanish.

A special event, known as the Executive Forum, was held by PacBell for executives from major corporations. One session was conducted in northern California, and the other in the southern portion of the state. Distributed to the attendees only, 1,400 $10 cards were issued and were not available to the general public. It should be mentioned here that there is never any guarantee that a phone company will make all its cards available to collectors. What is appreciated, though, is information about all cards that a company issues, for whatever reasons. PacBell is to be congratulated for providing this information to us collectors.

A new special series of cards, the San Francisco Visitors phonecards, feature a series of San Francisco photo montages in denominations of $10, $20 and $50. While a total of 100,000 cards will be produced, 5,000 have been made available to collectors in a special folder that resembles a CD. Voice prompts for those using the cards will be in English, Japanese and German. Only retail outlets in the San Francisco area sell the cards, though they are also for sale from PacBell at (800) 600-0094. These trial cards will determine whether there is a need to supply the tourist market with "in-language" prompts in specific geographic locations. The trial began May 24th, and will run until September 30th.

Finally, news about the cards we all knew would come: the 1996 San Diego Republican National Convention. A total of 65,000 cards were produced in denominations of $10, $20 and $50. All have the same design, consisting of a collage of the San Diego Skyline, the Mission Basilica San Diego de Alcalá (founded in 1769 by Father Junipero) and sailboats. These are available now from the PacBell 800 number.

It now appears that three different versions of the $2 Spectrum card have been issued, as well as two different versions of the $5 value. If you didn't get a poster, call their sales number at (800) 600-2355. Speaking of the Spectrum cards, the $10, $20 and $50 cards were withdrawn from sale at the end of June. This is due to SBC's new controversial policy of only issuing phonecards with a six month expiration date.

U S WEST

The $1 complimentary card issued for CardTech/SecurTech in Atlanta last May proved to be elusive. Only those collectors who read this column even knew of their existence, and those aggressive enough to ask actually got one. Fortunately, this also means that a large number are still available to collectors. You can get one at no additional charge by purchasing a $20 U S WEST Telecard World 1996 Atlanta card. The sales ordering number is (800) 739-3339.

An interesting upcoming contest will be to design the U S WEST Holiday Card for 1996. Art schools in five of the cities where U S WEST special payphones are installed will compete for a $1,000 prize, as will the school. Both the artist and school will be mentioned on the reverse of the card, to be issued in November. The schools are in Seattle, Portland, Denver, Phoenix and Minneapolis.

Smart-card technology grows in United Kingdom

By Eric Elias

Citizens of the United Kingdom now feel the winds of change: Smart-card technology, what may be the future of money as we know it, is growing in the British Isles. A new chapter in the history of UK telecommunications, the technology is being programmed throughout the payphone system in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. British Telecoms heralds it as "a new generation of BT phone cards and payphones."

The technology has been used in Ireland since 1990 for Telecom Eireann, Ireland's National Telephone Company, and many countries around the world also are introducing chip cards to their public payphone systems. Recently, Gemplus, a manufacturer of chip cards, announced it will supply cards for telephone systems in numerous African states including Lesotho, Namibia, Zambia, Malawi, Tanzania, Kenya, Uganda and Mauritius. Already the technology is the norm for France, Germany and Chile, among many others.

So what will this mean for collectors of United Kingdom pre-pays? First, we need to take a look at the history of UK cards.

Concern from the British public and the telephone company about the high level of broken and vandalized payphones resulted in intensive work at the Landis & Gyr research laboratory in the 1980s. For several decades, Landis & Gyr has been the main supplier of payphone equipment to British Telecom, and prior to that, to Britain's Post Office (GPO), which ran Britain's telecommunications before the breakup of "Posts" from "Telecommunications" in 1969.

At that time, Landis & Gyr developed a prepaid card that utilized a laser, which "deletes" units from a track on the card so that the track cannot be reused. This system has been extremely secure and has solved the problem, but managing the system is expensive. What was "in the right place at the right time" in the early 1980s no longer holds good in the "high-tech" 1990s, when the latest super chips manage information more efficiently and inexpensively.

British Telecom/Landis & Gyr

British Landis & Gyr cards have gone through various phases.

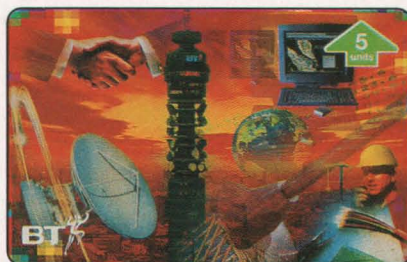

Collectors and users find them in three formats: the original green silk-screened band; white, thermographic cards, and those with full-color fronts and backs with an optical track on the reverse. The full-color cards are a pleasing product that will have a very short life span due to the new chip technology. Many collectors specialize in just this last phase because the mintages are attractively low.

Because there are so many modern British cards, collectors often specialize in specific thematic areas: definitives, pictorials, commemoratives or advertising cards.

The 1995 Standard Catalogue of UK Telephone Cards uses the following categories and has developed its own numbering system based upon the divisions: advertising, commemorative, definitive, general promotional, internal/special, medical cards, overseas, cards, "BTC" for commemorative cards, etc.).

To identify their cards as well as to gather more specific information, collectors consult the cards' control number. Landis & Gyr stamps a control or batch number on the reverse of every card it produces. This multi-digit number reveals the month and year of issue, the total quantity produced and that card's place within the total number (i.e. 23 out of 10,000). There are variants on this system from country to country, but the collector can have hours of fun trying to collect cards from each batch when long runs are produced.

Mercury Communications

For several years, Mercury Communications Ltd., part of the Cable & Wireless empire – another company sold off some years back by the British government – ran a competing payphone network that used magnetic-stripe cards in their machines. The system ran on cards produced by GPT (formerly Plessey, but now were those developed for use at football (soccer) league grounds around the country. Unfortunately, the fans did not use the innovative kiosks to "phone home," hence very few cards were used. Very few were bought by collectors and dealers due to the numerous problems encountered in dealing with Mercury at the time.

Collectors in Mind

On the British scene, remote memory cards are not yet popular amongst users or collectors. Currently, numerous companies are buying time from Mercury company promotional, business visiting, service and test cards. Each division is labeled with a three-letter code, "BT" followed by a third letter defining the area ("BTA" for advertising part of the Siemens empire). The cards were attractive and widely collected. A collector service was developed and handled for a time by Stanley Gibbons Ltd., the renowned philatelic company. Gibbons worked hard to promote the hobby for a number of years, including publishing catalogues in collaboration with S.E.R. Hiscocks.

Amongst the most popular Mercury cards and BT and issuing cards – often with the collector in mind. Remote memory cards are substantially cheaper to produce than stored memory cards. No doubt we can expect to see the production of large numbers of these cards soon.

The collector market for remote memory cards in Great Britain may go up if we have restrained issuing policies and quality licensed images, or down if the free-for-all ensues as anything and everything is printed on cards that offer uncertain utility.

We already are seeing skepticism concerning remotes in the UK. Early collectors came into the hobby by acquiring utilitarian cards that were often quite ugly, but did not have a marketing hype. Many of these collectors still collect and exhibit a basic mistrust for remote prepaids, which do not have their value stored on the card.

Jersey, Guernsey, Isle of Man

Philatelist readers of Moneycard Collector will know that in the postal arena, Jersey, Guernsey and the Isle of Man have had postal independence since 1969. Each territory has its own tax scenario and independent telephone companies. Manx Telecom has produced prepaids since 1987, Jersey Telecoms followed in 1988 and Guernsey Telecoms caught up in 1993.

Some collectors find the cards from these regional telcos far more interesting and collectible than mainstream British cards. A collection of cards from these three territories, used or unused, will bring financial dividends and enjoyment. The attractive, relatively small-run cards have modest face values and are generally issued for residents and tourists.

Although we've given you only an overview of the state of things in the UK, look for more in depth reports in future issues of Moneycard Collector. We hope this feature will get you talking. Consider bringing some UK cards into your portfolio!

Money Reinvented

by Gerald Trebben

One thousand years from now our money card collections may be extraordinary artifacts from the dawn of an age when the very nature of money changed. Perhaps we could compare the fantastic changes occurring with money today to those that occurred during 7th century B.C. in Ancient Greece, when lumps of metal gave way to coins.

In this new age, our coins and paper are giving way to plastic.

Special money cards will hold digital money, a kind of money that will drive commerce in the 21st century. Utilizing long streams of numbers that will zip through cyberspace, cards will be used to buy everything from penny candy to hundred million dollar satellites.

Daniel C. Lynch, chairman of CyberCash Inc., and Consultant Leslie Lundquist explore the subject in Digital Money: the New Era of Internet Commerce. The 285-page, $24.95 soft-bound book is published by John Wiley & Sons Inc. of New York and is available in book and computer stores.

Lynch's CyberCash has developed a form of electronic money that adeptly handles credit card, debit card and digital cash transactions on the Internet and secure computer networks. About a half dozen competing digital cash systems exist now, with more surely to come. The systems differ in how they achieve their ends, but all share the goal to efficiently move money from one place to another at minimal cost. Most do not create money, but merely facilitate the transfer of money from the buyer's bank account to the seller's.

Digital money, in the end, may be a local currency, a national currency, an international currency or all of the above.

Phone cards, for example, are a form of local currency. The "money" contained on a phone card — telecommunications time — can be spent with only one company. Other such local currencies include road tolls or mass transit, and work only within specific geographic localities.

Lynch and Lundquist view the banking system of 18th-century Scotland as a model for digital cash. Chartered in 1695, the Bank of Scotland was that nation's first bank. It was joined in 1727 by the Royal Bank of Scotland.

"Warfare between the banks broke out on the same day the second bank opened," Lynch and Lundquist write. "Each bank tried to drive the other out of business by collecting the other's notes and presenting them for redemption in gold. Although these note duels inflicted considerable damage, it became apparent that neither bank was going to put the other out of business. The banks gradually developed a more peaceful note exchange, which led to a formal agreement in 1751." Newer banks were brought into the fold, resulting in a stable currency that was accepted not just in Scotland but in much of northern England.

"In many respects, the development of digital money for Internet commerce seems to parallel the development of the Scottish banking system," Lynch and Lundquist write. While inter-operability agreements will have to be worked out for digital currency – especially an international digital currency – to work, all digital systems have one thing in common: numbers, lots of numbers.

Numbers will make up codes – codes readable by only the person who is being paid. The codes will contain the amount of money being transferred; the identity of the money's source, though not necessarily the identity of the person spending it; a way of determining if the money is authentic; and a way to prevent repudiation of the transfer.

Encryption, the ability to hide all that information in a number, is the engine that will make digital money work. "Digital Money" does an excellent job of explaining cryptography in layman's terms. Cryptography will enable digital money to possess many of the qualities of paper money.

The humble dollar bill says what it's worth and who issued it, contains safeguards against counterfeiting and once tendered cannot be repudiated or declared invalid.

The political and economic implications of the potential for instantaneous and free global flow of money are enormous. Questions range from the philosophical – "What is money?" to the practical – "Who will control it?"

Many minds and much time will be needed to answer these questions, but as collectors, we can know that no matter what the answers will be, now is not only a time to witness great change, but a great time to collect.

S CORE BOARD/NMC INFOMERCIALS The Score Board, Inc. and Philadelphia-based National Media Corporation will produce television infomercials featuring Score Board's products, including prepaid phone cards. Plans include the production of a Dale Earnhardt infomercial to be aired on The Nashville Network (TNN), which broadcasts many NASCAR events, and an infomercial for Japanese television featuring Cal Ripkin Jr. The infomercials bring new exposure in foreign markets for Score Board and may reach as many as 262 million households in 60 countries worldwide.

L OWER RATES AND SWEEPSTAKES FROM GTE Irving-based GTE Card Services introduced a new lower rate of 33 cents per minute for its prepaid phone cards. The new rate applies to all card denominations ($10, $20, $30 and $50) and represents a 27% reduction from the previous level of 45 cents per minute. A GTE spokesperson noted "Retailers, and in turn their customers, especially in the convenience store sector, are very price sensitive and we expect the new rate to make us much more competitive."

GTE also announced a half-price day promotion and a special $10,000 PIN sweepstakes. For seasonal family holidays (like Mother's Day) GTE prepaid users will receive a 50% reduction in the per minute rate charged on long distance prepaid calls. To further help promote its prepaid business GTE sponsored a "Cash in the Cards" national sweepstakes with a $10,000 grand prize and more than 12,000 other cash, phone time and phone card prizes. The contest ran from May 13 through June 17.

S CORE BOARD VARIETIES APPEAR Scott Dupont of Keep the Change! in Orlando, Fla. recently filed this report with Moneycard Collector:

"I've come across what could be a rare find: a few replacement cards" for the two hottest Classic/Assets II cards. Luckily, they happened to be Shaquille O'Neal and Anfernee "Penny" Hardaway, which are undoubtedly the hottest cards in the series.

The $2 cards I found were limited and individually numbered up to 3,117, unlike the one-minute cards. I recently found about twenty $2 O'Neal and Hardaway cards that were not numbered on the back.

It appears that these cards were printed at a later date, from possibly a different printer due to the following:

- 1) No individual numbering on the back of the cards,
- 2) A slightly different color of the front of the card.
- 3) The scratch off on the reprinted cards is different and in a different location on the back of the cards.

Unfortunately, I only found a few, but Classic says there could be about 100 that were reprinted to exchange with defective cards that customers received. I would call these reprinted cards a rare and valuable find!"

C ONQUEST GROWS AGAIN Dublin, Ohio-based ConQuest Telecommunications Corp. announced its acquisition of Convenience Products

Corporation of Boca Raton, Fla., a firm specializing in the marketing and sales of prepaid calling cards to large retail chains. The deal means that ConQuest's prepaid products will now be handled by more than 6,000 retail locations. Sales and Marketing VP Peter Buonaiuto commented "The growth of prepaid calling cards in the US is nothing less than explosive. In my opinion it is the greatest consumer-related telecommunications service to come along since the advent of toll-free 800 numbers."

SOUTHWESTERN BELL SPECTRUM CARDS DISCONTINUED

Without much fanfare, Southwestern Bell announced their Spectrum prepaid calling card program would discontinue late last June. About eight Spectrum cards, the original generic design card, were produced since Southwestern began their prepaid program in July 1995. With Spectrum's untimely demise, collectors might find themselves with some valuable cards.

Southwestern Bell; Spectrum Paper Complimentary; $2 denomination; 200,000 issued; October 1995.

Customers who use Spectrum cards should not expect an interruption in service. Spectrum cards expire one year from the date of issue and since the final issue of cards occurred in October 1995, all the remaining cards will expire this October.

The company ended Spectrum in the interest of uniformity: all of Southwestern's cards, excluding the Spectrum cards, hold a six-month expiry. Southwestern believes establishing uniformity will bring better service to its customers.

All cards remaining in Southwestern Bell's stock will be destroyed. The company declines to disclose the actual number of cards destroyed.

FIRST UNION SIGNS MORE ATLANTA VISA CASH MERCHANTS First Union signed up several new Atlanta-area companies to accept VISA Cash: Burger King, Dunkin' Donuts, Hardee's, Amoco, General Cinema Theatres, Majik Market and E-Z Serve convenience stores. At press time, 17 total merchants now accept VISA cash. Cards are available for purchase at several locations, and card dispensing machines (CDMs) are located in shopping centers and at 79 First Union branches in the Atlanta area. VISA expects that during the Games some 5,000 terminals and card acceptor devices will be available throughout the Atlanta area.

SHOW STOPPERS

The Telecard World™ '96 and Smart Card/Debit Card '96 Conference & Exposition, held in late April in Atlanta, produced a number of collectible pre-pays. Telecard World (TCW), a show organized by the industry magazine of the same name, offers seminars for telecom industry professionals and an exhibition area populated by card manufacturers, printers, service-oriented providers and dealers. Although the number of collectors attending was far from great, many special cards were released. Popular image themes included Georgia peaches, the Atlanta skyline, athletes and many variations on the Olympic rings that deftly danced around the officially licensed image, without stepping on any corporate toes.
