ON THE MONEY

ccasionally I hear a collector lament that he cannot collect all the phone cards being issued, that there are just too many issuers and too many issues. Isn't this one of those questions that depends on your perspective - is the glass half full or half empty?

I for one am convinced that our rich and varied supply of phone card issues has brought about three important benefits for the collector:

- Collectors, having this increasingly rich and varied amount of material from which to choose, have been able to build their collections on virtually any criteria.
- · From the outset, collectors of U.S. cards have had to develop a focus for their collections, and thus have had to learn how to be highly discriminating, choosing the cards they really desire for their collections.
  - Issuers have had to compete with each other for retail sales and the collector's dollar, forcing everhigher standards in themes, design, product quality and distribution.

This is an exciting hobby now and it will be even more exciting in the years ahead. Further deregulation of the telecommunications industry is on the near horizon. When it happens, we should see some great new issues, especially from the Regional Bells. We can also expect to see more sports card issuing companies come to appreciate the superior product fundamentals of phone cards and then enter the market. And it should not be much longer before we start to see chip-based cards that do much more than permit the user to make phone calls. Such innovative cards for the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games are already in the planning stages.

So fellow collectors, revel in the variety, and sharpen your abilities as a discriminating collector. But above all, continue to enjoy this terrific hobby!

To find or get Moneycard Collector at a book store or newsstand near you, please call 1-800-221-3148.

This month we grow again - eight more pages in the Price Guide/Classified section. To experienced collectors, the growth in this part of the magazine indicates two things: that Moneycard Collector is indeed the top phone card collector magazine with the best Price Guide; and secondly that the dealer and collector community in general is growing.

We're delighted that we will be able to bring you more content each month - especially more pricing information about the most popularly traded cards on the market today.

We had an enormous response to our reader survey, and next month we will announce the winners of the NYNEX phone cards and the NYNEX phone. Meantime, thanks to all who participated.

READERS ALWAYS WRITE

Promotional perils

I have become upset with a few companies who make special phone card offers, only to find these companies either not delivering what they advertise, or worse yet, delivering nothing at all.

One of the problems I've encountered was with an offer from 3M for a free Post-It Notes phone card. Various ads were placed in newspapers all across the country showing a picture of the phone card. What everybody received was a TOTALLY Another problem is companies not delivering on their promises. For example, Arm and Hammer clearly states in their ad that no purchase is necessary to receive their free phone card, as long as you comply with the rules. The offer required proofs of purchase and a cash register receipt. When I mailed in the materials, I received a letter with one of my cash register receipts explaining that I did not follow the rules and therefore was not eligible for a card.

I followed their rules to the letter – right down to having each card sent to different addresses. The company, Renuzit, invested all that time sending me a letter telling me that I did not enclose the proofs of purchase (which I did), without sending any of the cards.

Another situation occurred with some damaged Gillette cards. These cards came packaged inside multi-packs of razors. Trying to replace badly damaged cards has been next to impossible. When you call for information on replacements, you not only get a run-around but you hear such statements from company representatives as, "Well, you have the free phone time, so why does the card have to be in good shape?" The irony in that statement is that the package clearly states, "COLLECTIBLE" phone card inside.

It seems to me that a lot of these companies offering promotional phone cards really don't understand them or how to market them properly. As a phone card dealer, I am always trying to educate the consumer and help them understand why cards are collectible and why it makes sense to use them. It's even harder to do when you don't get what is advertised or are unable to get answers from the companies involved.

Bruce Harmon, Acme Telecards Inc., Sunrise, Fla.

You make some excellent points. Many consumer product manufacturers are starting to get their feet wet in this area. Unfortunately, some of them are jumping in without first learning how to swim. My advice to these companies is to do their homework (research) first. Ask industry experts; many are more than willing to offer good, sound advice.

As for collectors, I'm afraid the outlook is a little less optimistic. Until this learning curve is shortened, you only have three choices — decline to participate in the promotional giveaways; grin and suffer through the headaches; or continue to inform and educate the public (in this case, the corporate community) as you are doing with this letter.

Foreign flavor

For the past few months, we at B&B have watched Moneycard Collector grow and become a well-read and respected magazine, not only in the United States, but world-wide. As much as we agree with much of what Moneycard writes, it has become increasingly a concern to us why the publication disregards important international phone card issues. We are continually advising our customers not to ignore these issues — especially those with the ever important Coca-Cola, McDonald's and Disney logos. This has become a monthly conversation between ourselves and your staff, and we would seriously request Moneycard to provide its customers with complete information, so that we may make decisions that will enhance their collections and investments.

Betty and Buzz Houghtaling, B&B Collectibles, Alta Loma, Calif.

Okay, we give in! As a U.S. magazine with most of its subscribers in the states, we initially decided to stick (predominantly) to American issues. The virtual cornucopia of U.S. cards has certainly kept us busy through our first 16 issues. During the past few months, however, two new factors have emerged: 1) an increasing number of foreign-based issuers featuring Americana-type images; and 2) an increased interest in collecting some of these cards. Therefore, we are proud to announce that beginning next month, we will begin a new bimonthly feature called "International Flavor." Hope-fully, the column will serve up some of the hottest foreign cards in the U.S. Bon appetit!

Gillette nightmare

As a recent phone card collector, I waited and watched patiently for the specially marked packages of Gillette razors with the Sprint NCAA promotional phone cards. I noticed that some had square NCAA insignias and others round ones (designating Women's or Men's teams). There were so many different designs, and yet some cards were exact duplicates, except for the insignias. I called up Gillette to ask "How many different cards are in the complete set?" What a surprise when I was told "35," making it nearly impossible, on one's own, to assemble a complete set.

Someone ought to set up something on the Internet, or even someone who sells phone cards, to centralize a collection and distribution network on this impossible set to collect. If I could send my duplicates to someone in exchange for someone else's duplicates, I'd be willing to pay for this service (instead of making Gillette rich by buying their blades/razors).

Also, I think Gillette should have done their promotion differently. For instance, purchase 25 packages of blades, send in $5 and obtain the complete set of 35 phone cards (by sending in proofs of purchase). Anyone else wishing to voice their frustration, call Gillette at (800)890-2067.

Lance Greenfield, San Francisco, Calif.

Many of the details that frustrate you are the very attraction to others. The chase for these 35 variations made the Gillette promotion one of the hottest American phone card programs ever created. As for your suggestion that a communications network be started to trade these duplicate cards, there has been one in existence almost since the inception of this program. Contact Art Becker at P.O. Box 34614, Washington D.C. 20043. He developed a newsletter devoted to these phone cards. You can also use the classified ads in phone card magazines to trade with other collectors.

In regard to your suggestion that Gillette should be able send all 35 of the cards for $5 and proofs of purchase, it just doesn't add up. When you consider that Sprint phone time ($.60 per minute) makes each card worth $3 in phone time alone, the complete set would have to go for around $105.

Keep trading.

Did you see the sign of that card? Jumbos add new dimension to hobby

By Steve Eyer

oversized telecards that are becoming so popular among collectors – have been around since almost the beginning of phone card conventions and expositions in the U.S. Some of those first cards are very valuable, and thanks to a new pricing section in Moneycard Collector, everybody should be able to spot good buys in this increasingly popular segment.

Basically, a jumbo card is any telecard too large to fit into a standard telecard holder. Jumbos are approximately 5x7 inches, or about four times the size of a standard phone card. So, you can see that some special storage arrangements need to be made.

The very first Jumbo card was the result of a need for fresh telecard marketing ideas by Brilliant Color Cards. Jacob Rubensack is credited with suggesting the large size, and a new product was born.

The subject of Brilliant's historic first Jumbo was Telecard Man, based on a design concept by Larry Brilliant's son, Jon. Released at the first telecard convention in Richmond, Va. during the summer of 1993 it created quite a stir among dealers and collectors. Instant popularity!

One hundred fifty of the Jumbos were issued at that convention — all of them hand-cut. Since then, most Jumbos have been manufactured at the standard size of 5 x 7 inches, although some vary slightly.

Brilliant Color Cards; Telecard Man; 7 units; 150 issued; September 1993.

TeleCard Man was 48 mils thick, or about 1.5 times thicker than standard cards. The extra thickness gave stability to the card, which reduced the danger of creasing by careless handling.

The 150 cards were offered to convention attendees as a present. The only requirement was to wear a "Brilliant Green" (environmentally sound) T-shirt the second day of the convention. Moneycard Collector currently lists the value of this card at $950.

Even rarer is the second Jumbo card. Created by the staff of Brilliant Color Cards for the AmeriVox staff Christmas party in 1993, 100 Jumbo cards were produced using a collage of Elvis images from seven different standard sized telecards. These Elvis Collage Jumbos have been slowly reaching the market and the Moneycard Price Guide now lists them at $1,000.

The third Jumbo was quite different. The card was released at the 1994 San Francisco Phone Pfair, the Amerinet NATSO Trucking Convention. But only one used sample of the Mini Jumbo appeared there. Because a semi trailer truck would look rather small on a standard size telecard, the larger 3 x 5 inch format was selected.

One thousand $5 Mini Jumbos were produced for the giveaway, but only 750 of them were actually handed out, leaving 250 for the collector market. The cards currently catalog for $25 on the secondary market.

AT&T/Brilliant Color Cards; Snoopy Santa; 5 minutes; 1,000 issued; December 1994.

Collector's Advantage; NY Phonecard Expo; $25 denomination; 500 issued; June 1995.

Since the advent of the Amerinet Mini Jumbo, several other card sizes and shapes have appeared. Some of the most popular and still reasonably priced Jumbos are the die-cut heart-shaped Brilliant Color Cards/LDDS/HT Environmental Series (Keebler Pass, Oil in the Sand, and New Frontiers).

Another Brilliant/Innovative Telecom Mini Jumbo that isn't listed yet is the TeleCard World West star. It is almost 4 3/4 inches high and sells for approximately $36. Now that the technique has been perfected for cutting Jumbo cards to size, economically printing them, and even creating special shapes with ease, the number of special shapes will be limited only by imagination.

AmeriVox recently introduced a die-cut U.S. map in Jumbo size to complement die-cut maps in regular telecard size. Another card that I saw — although a paper breakout telecard — was shaped like a jar of Tasters Choice Coffee.

The great advantage of a remote memory card is that it does not need to conform to a given size to insert into a special telephone. Thus, it can be any size or shape that the issuer desires.

In all, more than 20 American issuers have produced in excess of 130 different Jumbos and Mini Jumbos. Planet Telecom alone has issued 73 different comic book covers on the Jumbos, each with a mintage of 100.

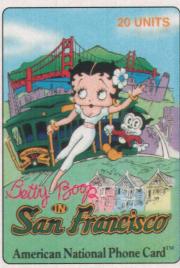

Among some of the more popular Jumbos are the Snoopy issues from AT&T; the new Marilyn Jumbo from American National Phone Card; the eight different AmeriVox Jumbos; and the Telecard and Debit Card family of Jumbos created for convention attendees.

If you've ever held a Jumbo in your hand, you'll know the reason collectors treasure them. The images that we were accustomed to seeing on the small area of a standard-sized telecard suddenly jump to life on an area four times larger.

Collectors also appreciate the low mintage of most Jumbos. Because it was so cost prohibitive to hand manufacture early Jumbos, all have very low mintages. Most issuers have continued that tradition, even though costs have been reduced dramatically.

Prices are initially determined by the production cost of the card, the telephone time represented by the PIN number on the card, the licensing fee paid for the celebrity or image on the card, and a fair mark-up for the issuer.

The first Jumbos probably cost $20 for the materials and production alone. The high cost was due to the experimental nature of the Jumbo product, and the low mintage.

The overall expenses associated with the early cards, most of which were complimentary, illustrates that the Jumbo issuers were really quite generous with their first few cards.

Production capabilities have now caught up and card manufacturers can produce a limited edition card for less than $10 apiece. When telephone time is added, the retail price of most Jumbos is still less than $30, unless additional telephone time is added, or licensing fees are necessary. Most licensing fees are now less than $2 per card, with many much less.

How does a professional determine the value or the asking price of a Jumbo? It is an imprecise art at best, and different estimators will often reach different conclusions.

Mintage is important, and just as important is where that mintage was distributed. The original cost of the card, how old it is, the complexity of the shape, packaging, subject matter and the carrier all affect the value of the card.

The future of the Jumbo is indeed bright. If issuers are extremely careful to respect the wishes of collectors, this area will undoubtedly flourish. Those issuers who respect the collectors will find a ready market; those who issue cards for their own enrichment will be ignored by the smart collector.

My advice is to collect the early cards within your collecting area. Lock up the cards you want today while the opportunity exists. But most of all, remember your initial reaction upon picking up your very first Jumbo card: "Wow!" And remember, Jumbo collecting is mainly for fun!

HAWAII CALLING

TE-HAWAIIAN TEL OPTS FOR REMOTE CARDS GTE Hawaiian Tel remote memory cards made their debut at the Honolulu phone marts in July 1995, and have had a low key existence ever since.

According to Hawtel officials, the primary function of the division is to sell phone time, not to cater to the collector market. As of September, few tourist outlets had received any cards.

The remote memory products are long term "workhorse" cards which provide flexibility and a call-back feature, bringing them in line with other remote memory cards already well established in Hawaii's tourist market.

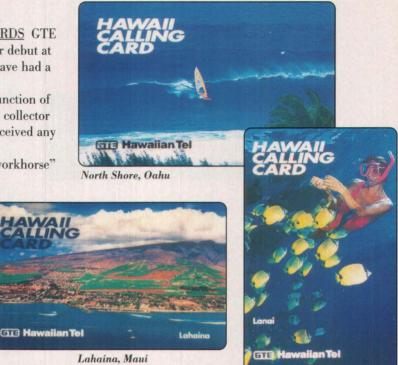

The new cards face stiff competition in all directions, however. An overall total of 30,000 cards is a relatively high quantity of cards for the user market to absorb. Their more glamorous cousins, the GTE Hawtel magnetic cards by Tamura of Japan, are preferred by Pacific area and European tourists because of the familiarity with their own systems.

The following is a guide to card specifications and prices:

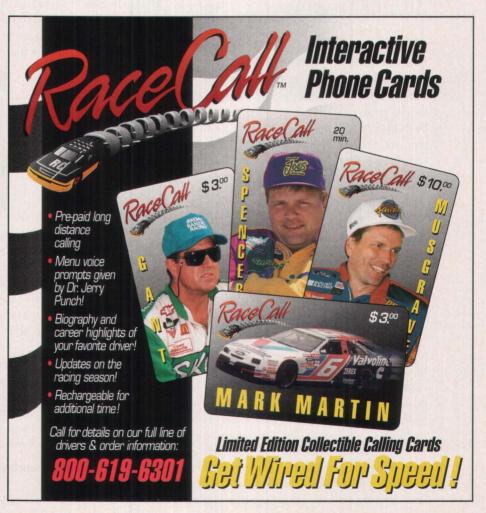

- Lanai: Skin Diver and fish (10,000) vertical format) $27.
- North Shore, Oahu: Windsurfer riding on wave (10,000) horizontal format $27.
- Lahaina, Maui: Coastal scene showing Lahaina (10,000) horizontal format $18.
- Total for set $72, plus Hawaii general excise tax of 4.16% in Hawaii $3.
- Prices include a 10 percent promotional discount for an indefinite period.

As of September 1995, cards became available to out-of-state and overseas dealers and collectors with a minimum purchase of five cards per design. Orders and inquiries may be addressed to the company. The remote memory cards are sold separately from the Tamura magnetic cards. It may take some time to give the kind of service the phone card market expects.

BABY BELL NOTES

Ameritech

The new paper prepaid phone cards were available upon request to all members of CompuServe's telecard forum. These are the cards that were inserted in a half million Ameritech phone bills in test areas of Illinois and Wisconsin. Shipped cold, they initially have to be activated via a credit card. A bonus complimentary 50¢ Robin Yount Tribute Day Coin$aver card was also included.

Bell Atlantic

Out of the phone card business for now, Bell Atlantic's inventory of cards has been largely destroyed, except for a maximum of 7,500 per card, which was sold to National Communications Consultants, Bell Atlantic's fulfillment house. NCC managed to obtain a very small quantity of the scarce Bell Atlantic test cards, which some dealers had been offering for up to $300 each. Denominated at $3 each, the test cards were valid for use only by Bell Atlantic employees, and expired April 15, 1994. There are two major varieties of these cards. While the obverses are identical, one reverse has instructions only in English, while the second variety has instructions in both English and Spanish.

In August, NCC received a quantity of the 1995 Premier Edition series that had been packaged for sale in vending machines. These cards are shrink-wrapped, like the James Earl Jones cards. The vending machine cards have the serial numbers printed on the obverses, just as with the James Earl Jones cards. This leads to speculation that the James Earl Jones cards might originally have been slated for vending machine sales.

NCC has been offering the test cards, as well as a few remaining autographed James Earl Jones cards, on an auction basis, while the rest of the Bell Atlantic cards are available at a markup over face value. The cards are not guaranteed for phone time, and are being sold strictly as a collectible item. NCC can be reached by contacting Estelle Minor at (800)332-0992.

Bell South

An equipment failure led to major delays in fulfilling customer orders for the Atlanta remote memory cards. These problems are reported to have now been corrected.

NYNEX

A new three-card set was issued for the TeleCard World East show in New York. The cards feature Radio City Music Hall, in denominations of $1 (comp), $5, and $10. A United Nations 50th anniversary card, designed by Nicole Miller, has also been issued.

All the magnetic cards issued by NYNEX include codes on the reverse which indicate the issue date, type of card, and quantity. For example, the card issued for the Telecard Times Expo '95 has a code of 8 95 C 10. The 8 95 is the August 1995 issue date; the C indicates a client card (G = gratis, and P = public); and 10 identifies the quantity of 10,000 cards. The card was sold to the public for $5, even though the actual face value is only $2. Ten thousand is the smallest quantity printed of the new magnetic Change Cards.

US West

Installation of the NORTEL Millennium
payphones continues in Denver and Phoenix. All of the new phones should be installed by the end of 1995. Each city where the phones are being installed will have a set of three chip phone cards issued, featuring the skyline of the city. A single, $1 generic complimentary card has been issued, with a total mintage of 10,000 cards. Unlike their previous complimentary card, this one isn't available to the general public.

NORTEL (Northern Telecom) issued its own demonstration chip card, to be used at industry exhibitions of the Millennium phone. Ten thousand cards were printed in June. The card has a $3 value, and is valid for local or select North American calls, only at Millennium phones during exhibitions.

collectors whether lector-oriented that I'm skittish about removing the scratch-off, even on a common phone card."

Sound familiar? Many U.S. collectors have a similar mentality, due to a market that is collector-driven rather than usage-driven.

The rest of the world didn't have this problem when phone cards were introduced in the '70s and '80s. The telephone companies needed ways to efficiently handle calls placed at public pay phones. The hassles of counting and handling mountains of coins were literally weighing down the national telephone companies and providing thieves with an incentive to break into the phones and render them inoperable.

By the time NYNEX issued its first major trial of phone cards during the early '90s, collectors in the rest of the world were starting to go a little "card crazy." It was during this period that our friend, John Walker, discovered NYNEX phone cards.

Many of John's friends are of a practical bent and actually use them. Others spot an investment opportunity they think may pay for little Mary's college education. Our first U.S. phone card speculators are born.

Why use the time on a collectible phone card? Doesn't that lower the value of the card? It all depends on how you look at it. The value doesn't disappear. We simply exchange it for something else — long distance time — which otherwise would require cash or, in some localities, a credit card.

Of course, I don't mean to suggest that you should take a high-value optical card and run it through a pay phone. The vast majority of phone cards within the U.S. show no sign of wear unless we remove the scratch-off panel that hides the PIN. And, on a high-volume card, who cares?

For example, purchase a common $10 card at face value. After the issue has sold out, it may eventually wholesale for $12 on the aftermarket. Keep it in prime condition and you can make two bucks on the sale.

Now, buy the same card, get rid of the scratch-off and use it to make calls. Once the time is gone, sell the card as used for $3. That's an easy feat in a U.S. collectibles market starved for used phone cards. And you've just increased your profit over the mint card by 50 percent.

Another myth about unused phone cards is that many believe the producers make more money when phone time goes unused. While that may be true among smaller companies which broker telephone time, it's not generally an accurate analysis of the way telephone companies operate.

"Any company in the telecom business has one driving force and that is to work once and get paid multiple times," points out Kevin Pirolo, president of ACMI. "So, the easier it is to use the time, the better it is for the telco."

When a collector puts a phone card away, it may never be used, Pirolo points out. When that happens, any potential for continuing profit through recharging disappears.

Currently, ACMI's cards contain removable strips onto which the PIN code is printed. Collectors may remove the strip but still preserve the card in an album.

Sears Phone Card Department in Clearwater, Fla. recently produced a new promotional telephone card. "We give these cards away to customers and I felt it was important that they be usable AND collectible," explained Manager Stephen Schwartz. "We designed an attractive card with an exposed PIN so the cards could be used and recharged."

Oh, and what about John Walker? Well, John could always spot an opportunity. Now he's busy convincing his bosses at his pharmaceutical company that all their on-the-road employees should be "using" prepaid phone cards to keep costs down.

He also had an epiphany of sorts about collecting: "I came to realize that I'd never purposely flipped a card over to view the reverse unless I'd already decided to add it to my collection. After all, it's the image that catches my attention, and I collect phone card images, not mint scratch-off panels."

Couldn't have said it better myself, John.

HE CASE FOR COLLECTIBLES Some believe phone cards should be produced primarily for long distance usage. Others feel there is nothing wrong with producing phone cards primarily as collectibles.

Why shouldn't phone cards be produced as collectibles? Can they further the growth of the industry if they are primarily collectibles?

Most foreign countries issue cards first and foremost to be used. While in theory that would seem the most logical reason for producing cards, a high percentage of U.S. issuers are primarily producing collectible phone cards — those with a low mintage and usually packaged in albums, folders or some other kind of unique holders.

Some believe that unless issuers produce cards and urge the public to use them, that the hobby/industry might suffer. The truth is that limited-edition phone cards do, in fact, help the hobby in a big way.

Hobbyists collect baseball cards, stamps, coins, antiques, postcards, pins and much more. Most of these items don't have any built-in monetary value other than what people are willing to pay for them. Phone cards, like stamps and coins, however, have a built-in monetary value — their telephone time.

Currently, there are many baseball card collectors who are just now discovering that due to the millions of cards produced each year, their cards can't even be given away. Some of these same people are just discovering phone cards, and a lot of them have already started collecting.

If only a small percentage of the (literally) millions of baseball card collectors turns to phone cards, it only stands to reason that it will be beneficial to the hobby. The obvious reason will be the increase in public awareness of phone cards. As education increases, everyone in the phone card industry benefits.

Of course, baseball cards is just one example. Since there is no limit as to what can be depicted on a phone card — everything from animals, entertainers and athletes to comics, stamps, scenery and even nationally advertised products.

Even though some of these types of cards may not be as limited in quantity, there is a growing number of collectors focusing on certain types of cards that they wish to collect. Since most real collectors will never use the phone time on the cards that they keep, what is wrong with issuers producing phone cards primarily as a collectible?

Nearly all the foreign countries producing usage phone cards are issuing collectible series, as well. For example, New Zealand issues Collectors Packs — limited edition sets of cards produced in quantities of 5,000 - 10,000 and packaged in beautiful glossy folders or albums. These cards, which can be used from any New Zealand phone, are produced primarily as collectibles.

GTS; 1969 NY Mets; 32-card set; 3 units on each card; 1,000 sets issued; February 1994.

AmeriVox; JFK Memorial Album; 16card set; $217 total face value; 10,000 sets issued; December 1994.

There are many good examples of collectible phone cards from the U.S. Among the best is GTS' 32-card set of the 1969 Miracle Mets baseball team, complete with a custom binder. Only 1,000 of these sets were originally issued at $60. The sets now retail – if you can find them – for around $225.

Earlier this year, AmeriVox, one of the largest American manufacturers of prepaid cards, issued a limited edition John F. Kennedy set of cards with a custom album. The sets currently retail for over $300 apiece.

These are just two examples of phone cards produced primarily for the collectible, rather than the usage market.

Everyone in the phone card hobby/industry would like to see continued growth. The truth is, there is plenty of room for both collector cards and usage cards. If you become both a collector and a user, then you benefit twice as much.

Go ahead, start collecting and see how much fun it is. And use the phone time on cards that you don't intend to collect. You'll be glad you did.

CORPORATE CORNER

elcome to the Corporate Corner for another peek into some exciting new cards. OmniTel continues to issue some of the hottest promotional cards around and their latest is certainly no exception. The company recently produced

5,000 promotional five-minute cards for the Miller Brewing Co. The cards are being used by Miller to promote safe driving, contests, grand openings and brand awareness. Check with your local bartender for these cards.

The makers of Sue Bee Honey are celebrating their 75th Anniversary with a 10 minute promotional card. JD Services produced 10,000 of these cards for the Sioux Honey Association. The card was made available to employees of the company and various supermarkets across the country.

Some interesting cards crossed my desk this month from the fine folks at Bell Canada. Production numbers were not available, but these are some pretty sharp cards. The Post Cereal card, which features four different varieties of cereal, was available to customers with proof of purchase. Two versions of these 10minute cards were produced for Loblaws and Zehrs supermarkets.

Also from Bell Canada is an interesting 3M Post-It Notes card. The card has a face value of $5 (Canadian) and is much nicer than the American version. The plastic card was available to customers who purchased Post-It Notes.

HT Technologies issued an interesting card for the Millbrae Art & Wine Festival, which was held over Labor Day weekend. Thirty-five hundred 10-minute cards were produced. On the front of the card are popular sponsor logos from Clearly Canadian, Haagen Daaz and Coors.

Back in the U.S., among the many other notable promotional prepaids are the Kit Kat candy bar cards, which are randomly inserted one in every 600 of the specially marked bars. Snapple is offering a 20-minute card in exchange for 45 (that's right, 45!) complete labels off individual bottles. The hardest part about the promotion is removing the labels in one piece.

Finally, back in the September issue, we supplied information about how to obtain the Cartoon Network cards from Yoo-Hoo brand > chocolate drink. This month, we get to show them to you.

Let us know about new promotional cards that you discover in your area. Above all, have fun collecting!

The squawk over Duck Head cards

By Nancy Blackburn

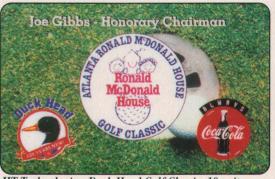

n June 1995, HT Technologies issued cards to mark the Ronald McDonald House - Duck Head Golf Classic in Atlanta. A number of difficulties were encountered in producing the Duckhead Golf Classic card, and as a result, five different cards have been identified to date.

Identifying the different cards, how collectors can distinguish them, and how each came to be created, has kept the industry abuzz for a number of weeks now.

The cards were issued by HT to help benefit the Atlanta Ronald McDonald House. The following are the known cards and their distinguishing features:

- Card 1 (back not pictured) 5-unit event cards, mintage 1,000, which were provided to event organizers.
- Card 2 10-unit cards, mintage 2,000, which were split between the event and phone card collectors. The cards carry a four-digit batch number at the lower left corner on the back of the card, followed by the serial number, issue quantity, date and the printer designation (e.g. 2002.1825.2000.6.95.BCC). Both Card 1 and 2 carry a June 1995 (6.95) issue date.

HT Technologies; Duck Head Golf Classic; 10 units; 2,000 Event cards/4,000 Collectors Edition cards issued; June August 1995/ August 1995.

• Card 3 – 10-unit cards, mintage 4,000, designated on the back as a "Collectors Edition." The cards are numbered on the back with a four-digit batch code, followed by the serial number, mintage, date and the printer designation (e.g. 2003.0001.4000.8.95.BCC). These numbers appear at the lower right corner and carry an August 1995 (8.95) date. Includes HT Technologies logo and black band in lower left corner.

- Card 3 Variety 1 10-unit card identical to Card 3, but with numbers positioned in lower left. Mintage designation says 2,000, with a July 1995 (7.95) issue date. Serial numbers are 2000 and lower. Both Card 3 Varieties 1 and 2 are pre-production iterations of Card 3. At this time, the total number of these cards is unknown, but we believe it to be quite small.
- Card 3 Variety 2 10-unit card identical to Card 3, but with numbers in lower right corner, mintage designation of 4,000 and no black band in lower left. All serial numbers are 2001 and higher.

In light of the sequence of events and the different cards that have resulted, several dealers and collectors are unhappy with the situation. They feel that intentionally or otherwise, the issue was misrepresented to them. They further contend that had they known in advance what was to occur, they would have purchased fewer cards or none at all.

Suggestions have been made that the 4,000-issue "Collector's Edition" was in reality an unplanned second edition conceived after the 2,000 event cards were oversold by HT. The separate numbering and "Collector's Edition" designation is believed by some to indicate an addendum to the original event run.

The dealers claim they were advised over the phone that only 500 five-unit and 2,000 10-unit cards would be issued, for a total mintage of 2,500, and that no "Collectors Edition" was initially disclosed.

One dealer reportedly wanted to order all 2,000 of the available 10-unit cards, but was limited by HT to 1,000. He received a fax on May 31 from HT confirming that there would be "2,500 Coke/Ronald McDonald House cards and that 500 will be going to the tournament."

Nearly five weeks later, on July 3, a memo was sent from HT to all customers in order to "clarify any confusion regarding the Ronald McDonald House - Duck Head Golf Classic card. The edition breakdown is as follows: 1000 - 5 unit cards / Donated by HT to this event; 2000 - 10-unit cards / produced to be sold at event. A separate edition marked 'Collector's Edition' was produced for HT distributors to sell to the public. Collector's Edition - 4,000 - 10 unit cards. Total edition - 7,000 cards.

"Due to the overwhelming response, we delivered a portion of the event 10-unit cards to some of you. The collector's edition will be available within 12 days and the balance of your order will be shipped ASAP."

Dealers apparently became frustrated when they compared notes and discovered that more than the originally stated maximum of 2,000 10-unit cards had been pre-sold. During the month of June, some report that they were asked by HT personnel to accept less cards than pre-ordered, even though they had already paid for their original complete order of cards. Others became concerned when they heard that some orders had been filled and others had not received any cards at all.

The dealers were quite adamant that HT's July announcement of a 4,000-card collector's edition was a complete surprise to them. According to the dealers, coin and stamp dealers address unintentional oversells by: 1) distributing the available merchandise in a proportionate manner; 2) writing customers an explanatory letter, perhaps including other free product as a token of good will; or 3) going back to the market and making every effort to buy back product to meet the orders, even if it means taking a loss.

HT's version of the events is quite different. According to HT's Peter Heitmann, his company issued 1,000 five-unit cards that were donated and handed out at the event.

According to Heitmann, the original licensing agreement provided for a collector's edition, but the exact figure was not decided until all parties and their attorneys had reached final agreement.

The figure of 4,000 was reached the same day that solicitation began for the collector's edition, Heitmann said. Before the day was over, the entire issue was sold out, however.

Heitmann denies that the cards were oversold, and

INSTRUCTIONS

Card 3 Variety 2 Numbers at lower right; 4,000 mintage; August 1995 issue date; no black band; serial numbers 2001 - 4,000. attributes the problem to disappointed dealers who expected to receive the remainder of the original event cards and had pre-sold or promised these particular cards to collectors at a double or triple markup.

In retrospect, Heitmann states categorically that HT will never again issue a collector's edition of an original event fund-raiser card. What HT saw as a solution to satisfy the collector's market has caused confusion, he says, and the organization does not care to repeat the experience.

At any rate, the situation has caused quite a stir in the collector community, including non-stop discussions on the CompuServe and America On Line networks for the better part of two months now. Were any laws actually broken, or was it simply a lack of communication between issuer and dealers?

One question is whether state or federal consumer protection laws that govern the production of sport memorabilia, coins, or collectibles would apply to phone cards that are advertised as collectibles.

California, for instance, has some very strict laws pertaining to limited edition collectibles and destruction of plates to ensure precise production runs. That law was made necessary by the abuse of the word "Limited Edition" by the sports collectibles industry. No determination has been made, thus far, whether the law applies as such to phone cards issued, sold, or used within California.

Another obvious problem is how to satisfy the collector's market while retaining the integrity of a fundraiser. Perhaps the question of greatest importance to collectors is whether a "Collector's Edition" will have the same value as the general event issue.

At this time, most dealers are retailing the original 10-unit event card between $35 and $50, with the "Collector's Edition" going for less than $10.

The lesson to be learned from this sequence of events is that issuers must communicate all the details of their programs with dealers and distributors, and that once the cards are announced, they must proceed exactly as explained. If a supplementary issue is even contemplated, that information must be revealed from the outset. At stake is the collector community's confidence in the issuer, the market performance of its past, and future issues.

B&B Presents "The Best in the West"

Betty and I would like to thank you for your response to our ads featuring the best phone cards selection in the world. Remember, we are the only dealer who offers guarantee buy back on any items we distribute. When making your next purchase, be sure and ask for this type of guarantee and buy first for pleasure and fun. If your phone cards increase in value, look at that as just a plus.

McD/Coke/Sprint - The best McD/Coke set we have seen - this Hawaii 4 card set has been designed as a puzzle set Aloha Tower Iolani Palace, King Kamehameha, Diamond Head. To commemorate the 5th anniversary of Pearlridge (Hamburger U) edition of 1500 cards each of which 500 are matching numbered sets in presentation folders. We predict the 500 sets to be as popular as the 1st Coke/McD set. Please call for current marked price. Another guaranteed item.

Event Masters/Disney Pocahantas - $55.00 - edition of 3,000 worldwide (300 for US) $5 phonecard with a CD in a beautiful presentation folder. Another winner from Disney, remember, to continue your Disney series, you must buy each edition or lose your place on our preferred customer list. Don't say we didn't tell you so because the next edition will be one of the most sought after sets ever. Just call and find out.

Event Masters/Disney. We have old back issues in stock, remember US allocation is only 300 sets.

QUIK TAKES

HONE CARD ISSUERS GET SERIOUS AT COMIC CON The buzz word for the 1995 Comic Con was "Manga" - the Japanese word for comic. Central Park Media (CPM) issued 10 Manga cards, four of them show cards for the event.

One of the cards - Sohryuden - features an anime series by acclaimed director Koichi Ohata, which includes five units of phone time. One thousand of the cards were pro-

Dynamic Forces issued its first card in conjunction with Combo magazine. The free twominute promo card featured Shi and Hellshock.

PATCO issued three different show cards, including Crying Freeman, Lum and Mermaid Forest. The issuer also released the first gaming promo phone card - Starquest

> - a new release from Comic Images.

Interest from the comic collecting hobby is increasing, and beginning to attract a younger audience, according to industry experts. The awareness of phone cards was much greater at the show this year, with more affordable new cards.

TS SIGNS SESAME STREET LICENSE Global Telecommunications Solutions has signed a licensing agreement with Children's Television Workshop to create and market interactive, as well as standard prepaid PhoneCards featuring the famous characters from Sesame Street.

Designed as both educational and entertaining tools, the cards from the well-known children's television show will feature such characters as Big Bird, Elmo and Cookie Monster.

Among the first new Sesame Street products will be a "Kids Emergency PhoneCard." Planned for November introduction, the card will allow children to automatically dial their parents at a pre-programmed phone number, in an emergency situa-

The GTS "Story PhoneCard" will give children a chance to interact with the Sesame Street characters through the phone. The complete line of Sesame Street PhoneCard products will be unveiled during February at the Toy Fair 1996.

The GTS Sesame Street PhoneCards will be available at FAO Schwartz toy stores across the country, and will be mass marketed through consumer retail stores throughout North America.

ISA CARD DOUBLES AS PHONE CARD A new program developed by SmarTel will allow holders of Capital One Financial Visa cards to use the credit card to make long distance calls.

Though not a prepaid phone card, customers can make calls by dialing a toll-free number and their Personal Identification Number (PIN), which is printed on the back of their Visa card. The calls are billed to the customer's Visa card.

RILLIANT WINS CARDEX AWARD Brilliant Color Cards was awarded the Best Technical Innovation Award at CardEx 95. The designation was the highest honor bestowed at the annual international conference in The Netherlands.

The award was made in recognition of the company's Brilliant Green recyclable telephone cards, and is the first time the international telephone card industry has commended a recyclable product.

The company also received three awards for outstanding graphic design.

CORE BOARD ANNOUNCES RETAIL PROGRAMS The Score Board, Inc. has announced new retail distribution plans with SAM'S Club warehouse stores (a division of Wal-Mart Stores, Inc.) and seven regional SportsChannel stations.

The SAM'S Club program will include freestanding product displays featuring Score Board's autographed memorabilia and collectibles in 203 stores nationwide. Roll-out was scheduled to begin in September, with all 203 stores involved by mid-November.

The SportsChannel agreement features direct response television programming to be broadcast weekly on seven regional stations across the country. The programming, which began in early September, features a lively shopping environment showcasing sports team collectibles.

.S. MINT TO STUDY SMART CARDS If there were any doubts about the future of moneycards in the U.S., they were soundly shattered during mid-October when the Director of the U.S. Mint testified about the "new form of currency" before the House Subcommittee on Domestic and International Monetary Policy.

"As the use of stored value cards evolves, many consumers might be expected to replace coinage and currency transactions with 'e-cash' transactions, thus creating a de facto new form of currency," testified Philip N. Diehl.

According to the Treasury official, the Mint believes that a significant market for usage and collectible stored-value cards exists, as evidenced by the rapidly growing market for telephone cards, and that such cards issued by the U.S. Mint could be a lucrative line of business for the Treasury.

This is one of the most significant events to date in the prepaid phone card industry. Moneycard Collector will present a more indepth look at the topic next month. MC

IGN goes down for the count

By Nancy Blackburn

hat sounded too good to be true, turned out to be just that, as International Global Net (IGN) appears to have gone down for the final count. Sources within the industry, involved from the pre-launch of IGN and up to an on-going investigation by the Attorney General in Harrisburg, Pa., were able to provide a chronological summary of what happened.

Advertising an introductory prepaid long distance rates of less than $.10 a minute and a on-going wholesale rate of $.15, IGN initiated its pre-launch phase during October 1994. Utilizing a binary marketing system, an investment of $100 would allow a person to become a Business Center; for $300, two more people could become a down-line part of the Business Center.

Those who bought into the organization had two calling card options. For $100, one could buy a 1,010 minute card (at $.099 rate), or a 500-minute card and 30 10-minute trial cards. Initial sales kits went for $25 pre-launch and $40 after that. Very few reps ever received the $100 card, however.

March 24-25 brought 300-350 representatives to the sales conference in Las Vegas, for which each representative paid a registration fee of $35. The initial cards were rolled back to the original face value, with additional cards offered for sale at 10 minutes for $10 apiece – just put them on a credit card. Only a few obtained actual working cards; with the other cards scheduled for activation on the following Monday morning. So far, so good.

One week later, by the first of April, some of the cards were already non-functional, due to a dead 800 number. When the up-line person was contacted, it was explained that the platform had gone down, and there were problems that were being worked out.

In retrospect, it was difficult to talk to anyone at IGN because much of the company correspondence was done by fax. Messages as to what the company was doing were received through an electronic mailbox that cost $6 a month. Excuse followed excuse, and the message came through that if the cards were sent back, they would be replaced. If reps had distributed cards on the retail market, however, this could mean an unpleasant task of replacing hundred of cards.

By mid-May, things were starting to go more smoothly. Phone cards were arriving shortly after being ordered. This continued through June, with dealers being recruited, fund-raising plans made, and camera-ready art and forms provided by IGN. Delays from corporate headquarters were simply blamed on not using the proper, correct or revised form.

Kick-off meetings were held in Los Angeles and Denver. Supposedly there were race-track cards being released, as well as Miss America phone cards. A FAX order form claimed there was an exclusive IGN offer for 30 licensed NFL cards at $19.50 each or $525 for the whole set. Again, these cards could be ordered by credit card – but no one ever received or even saw these cards.

On June 23-24 a seminar was held in Phoenix to kick off the 1-800 and 1+ services that were to be offered at $.11 a minute. Reportedly, there was a contract with UniDial for $150 million. A big breakfast meeting was held at the Bamboo Club with Warren Chiu, president of the board, who claimed to have many years of international business experience. Roy Matlock, managing partner, was also present, as well as several other reps.

Rumor had it that a major contract had also been signed for low-cost service to Mexico. Reps were encouraged to order the cards, as well as vending machines to sell the cards — again charging the orders to their credit card.

The grand opening was finally held during July in Wormleysburg, Pa. Voice mail reported that all was well, and that the distributor kits would be arriving soon. Few kits ever arrived and sample cards often did not work. Reps were told to "just try again." "Congratulations" cards were sold near the end of July, and reps found their credit cards charged, whether the cards were ever sent out or not.

Around the first of August, one rep received replacement cards for 13 wrong 800-numbers, with instructions to just put a sticker over the old 800 number. The following day, voice messages announced that "big changes were happening... be patient during the transition."

What was not being said was that Chairman of the Board, Chiu, had already departed. Two days later, card users were greeted with the message that they were "out of time," and the customer service number was not working. The only card still functional was the "Congratulations" card.

Despite the chaos, IGN continued to credit purchases against credit cards. Company voice messages claimed that IGN was "progressing in a marvelous way," and that the cards would be working — "just sit tight with us for a while."

IGN never owned a switch, and, to the best of our knowledge, their carriers were never officially revealed. One source indicated that two carriers are still in business; but since apparently IGN owed them money, they felt justified in shutting off the PINs.

By the middle of August, all the phone lines and mailboxes were down. The extent of personal losses may never be known for sure. One woman in Phoenix reportedly made payment on 200,000 cards that were never delivered. Another upline rep was reputed to have 1,100 down-line workers.

Basic math brings some startling dollar figures: How many kits were sold for $25 or $40 and never received? How many cards were paid for and never worked? At $35 each, how many attended seminars?

With IGN now unofficially departed the phone card world, questions center around how this situation can be avoided in the future. One suggestion is that before investing in a company, check with your state Public Utilities Commission (PUC), as well as the Federal Communication Commission (FCC) to make sure that tariff or courtesy filing requirements have been fulfilled with these regulatory agencies.

Reports made to a state's attorney general's office may trigger an investigation in order to protect consumers. And possible intervention by the attorney general's office could get these IGN cards reactivated.

FILL 'ER UP

Take a good look at who is riding along with Shell to the Super Bowl – Coca-Cola, Ford, GTE, the NFL and Fleer. The short-running sweepstakes game held across the U.S. made fellow passengers of these six well-known corporations.

Customers purchasing gasoline at one of 5,500 participating Shell stations between August 21 and September 17, 1995, were given a scratch-off game ticket attached to one of 10 different Fleer trading cards. Residents of Michigan and Ohio could only obtain the tickets by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to contest headquarters.

The game promotion was not conducted in Delaware, Maryland, Maine, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, and Virginia. There customers were offered the GTE $2.25 phone card for 79¢ to 99¢ at any Shell station.

Prizes ranged from Ford Mustangs and trips to Super Bowl XXX in Phoenix, 12-packs of Coke, and Shell gasoline. There were 100,000 of the fifth place GTE phone cards.

Each of the six cards represents five years of Super Bowl competition. Opponents are represented by their respective helmets, with the final score listed beneath.

Golden Gate Diamond

Fleet Week is San Francisco's annual celebration of the city's long association with the U.S. Navy. The celebration traces its roots to 1908 when Teddy Roosevelt's Great White Fleet sailed to San Francisco, Fleet Week became an official celebration in September 1919 when 36 Navy ships from the steamed into the bay. This year, Fleet Week 1995 took place from October 4 through 11. The parade of ships was led by the aircraft carrier Carl Vinson which launched and recovered jet aircraft in the shadow of the Golden Gate Bridge - within a few hundred yards of 300,000 cheering spectators. The Fleet Week air show featured some of the world's best aerobatic pilots and was climaxed by a stunning per-

For most of his 35 years John Mason has brought beauty to life in his music. painting and computer animation and now with the release of the John Mason series by HT Technologies, on phonecards. In viewing the stunning images in this series it is difficult to believe that the strikingly beautiful and realistic universe depicted on these cards is solely the product of John Mason's fertile mind. One simply cannot look at these scenes and not feel that these are real places.

These unique and beautiful cards give this Carmel California artist a new medium for his vision. John Mason has brought new places to the world of phonecards and a new dimension to art. A few fortunate collectors will enter this amazing fantasy universe with the John Mason series phonecards.

AMERICA'S MOST WANTED

his month's Most Wanted is gaining a little more sanity after a steady diet of nothing but Coca-Cola and McDonald's. We finally have over half the list devoted to other cards.

It's hard to believe so many collectors can want just a few phone card types. No wonder the prices are driven to short-term unrealistic heights.

If you are a beginner, be careful of newly issued cards selling at extremely high prices. You just might get bitten. It's much better to go slowly and select a less speculative subject. Study mintage, price and demand (long-term demand) and make your own judgments about purchasing.

One of the most interesting developments is the entry of some of the major telcos into the 800 business. Seems like their dedicated telephones and stored memory cards do not provide all they had hoped for.

The majors are beginning to line up with 800 cards -NYNEX, GTE-Hawaii, and foreign stalwarts such as Deutsche Telekom of Germany, and British Telecom.

One U.S. 800 card is represented here among our best sellers: the lovely GTE-Hawaii Lahaina card — the issuer's first 800 product.

PHONECARD MANAGEMENT, MCDONALD'S "BACK TO SCHOOL"

Only 2,000 of the 10-minute cards were issued in Florida and they are reasonably priced, for a change. Recommended at under $25.

SPRINT/SCORE BOARD, WORLD OF COCA-COLA 5TH

AT&T/WINSTON TAYLOR, AUTOGRAPHED

STEVE YOUNG A newcomer to the list, this card has a lot going for it (Steve Young, Snoopy, and AT&T), whether signed or unsigned. The only problem seems to be the high mintage. Sports experts will say that Steve Young is not controversial enough to get the fans excited, but excellence alone should make the 49-minute card popular. Special packaging, unique to the autograph junkie, adds to the appeal.

MCI ROLLING STONES SET The 10-unit limited edition "Complimentary Set" was created for Rolling Stones internal use (indigestion anyone?), media, and complimentary giveaways. The roll-out of the First Edition was scheduled for this summer, with the bright and bold cards to be sold on the group's Voodoo Lounge World Tour.

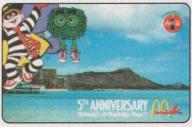

HT TECHNOLOGIES/LDDS 5-UNIT AZALEA FESTIVAL There are two cards to this set. The 10-unit card was widely distributed at about $12, but only 1,000 of the 5-unit cards were produced and 700 were "captured" for collectors at the Muskogee, Okla. Festival. A rare colored logo (McDonald's) graces the back side of this card.

SPRINT PEARLRIDGE (HAWAII), MCDONALD'S' 5TH ANNIVERSARY
SET The four-card set makes a puzzle. This one started out very expensive and is getting worse. Very limited mintage of 1,500 sets of the three-unit cards was issued and released with special "Meal Deal" coupons during September.

The final spot always seems to get bogged down with candidates. I'll just list them all, and if you need details, call me.

OH CANADA!

ATIONAL SERIES I DESIGNS With the 1993 trial successfully completed, the members of the Bell system in Canada produced their first full-fledged series of cards.

The first national group includes a photo of Ottawa's Parliament buildings, the seat of federal government in Canada; the national floral symbol, the maple leaf, with just a hint of winter snow; and two majestic Canadian geese. The cards are not available in all provinces, and some languages have limited availability.

For instance, in Montreal I have never seen an English language version of the Bell $10 Ottawa, only the French edition. When it comes to buying Hello! Phone Pass cards, collectors will find that some images are sold through more than one Stentor member, since the designs evoke national images of Canada. The Hello catalog lists a $20 maple leaf to match the $50 vending machine edition. Again, I have never seen such a card in Montreal, and the national coordinator indicated some time ago this may be a typographical error.

The new maple leaf series $10, $20, $50 and $100 (not pictured) is multilingual: the front shows "Hello Phone Pass/La Telecarte Allo" in both official languages, and the number to call prompts for language choice.

The four pictures depict maple leaves during each of the four seasons. They are known to be available in the Atlantic provinces and B.C., but I have never seen them in Quebec.

Also produced at a national level was a $5 card featuring the flags of several nations. These were a promotional issue not made available to the public.

It is difficult to determine why the card was issued. Reading the accompanying flyer, it looks as though they were made to promote the use of Hello cards with Canada

Direct. Like the maple leaf set, it has a multilingual back and no branding.

EAR ON DISNEY

ISTA-UNITED RELEASES TWO ELU-SIVE CARDS Vista-United, Walt Disney World's private phone company, has released two more phone cards which could turn out to be among the most elusive issued to date.

A special internal card modeled after Disney's very successful "Five Star Fanatic" award program was issued by the Florida-based telco on August 1. The program, similar to a five-star hotel designation, recognizes employees who exceed guest expectations in customer service, quality of effort, attitude, etc., which exemplify the Disney standards of excellence.

Building on the "Fanatic" theme, Vista-United awarded employees with exemplary guest services new "Fanatic" telecards. The print run was 800 cards, along with 50 samples. This issue marks the first time Vista-United has used a silk-screen process (to give the gold star a metallic look) and a styrene card.

The design is similar to the Telecom Magic card from 1994, with a midnight blue background and the word "Fanatic!" in metallic gold. The Vista-United logo appears on both sides of the $7.50 card.

The "Fanatic" cards expire on June 30, 1996. The sequentially numbered cards were printed by Brilliant, include a scratch-off over the PIN number, and have both (800) and local access numbers.

The second card marks a meeting of the telephone, television, and computer industries at the "Technology Magic" conference on August 21 at the Walt Disney World Contemporary Resort in Orlando, Fla.

The $5 complimentary phone card from Vista-United was handed out to many of the registrants, but the 900 card issue didn't come close to satisfying the demand from more than 1,600 attendees and participants.

"Which participants" you ask? How about AT&T, MicroSoft, Egghead Software, Hewlett-Packard, Cellular One, Motorola, and Lotus, to name a few. Only the vendors that Disney has a working relationship with were asked to participate. The free phone card was used as an incentive to attend.

The conference was a joint venture between Walt Disney World Information

Vista-United, Technology Magic, $5 denomination, 900 issued, August 1995.

Services Group and Vista-United Telecommunications. It was an educational symposium for any Disney employee, designed to help familiarize them with the state-of-the-art information services available throughout Disney.

There was nothing for sale at this event; it was simply a learning experience for the "cast members," organized to enhance the already top-notch Disney standard of excellence.

The phone card design is interesting and colorful with a red background and a large yellow sun on the left side that symbolizes the bright future and magic of the combined technologies. The words "Technology Magic" are blue and the Contemporary Resort logo is in white. The card was attached to a card-stock carrier (envelope size) with the words "Welcome to Technology Magic 1995".

There were 50 samples accidentally printed with a scratch-off coating. The Vista-United logo is on the reverse. The expiration date is June 30, 1996, and there were the usual (800) and local access numbers.

Just a thought: Vista-United issued a complimentary phone card for the "Telecom Magic" convention held in 1994. The attendance was about 500, the printing was 600, and the current retail value is in the $340 range. The limited supply of Vista-United telecards, combined with the vast international audience for the product, suggests that you shouldn't miss out on these 1995 cards. A few are available from dealers in the secondary market.

"Dungeons & Dragons" took the world by storm during the 1980s, developing a cult-like following which continues today. Now D&D fans can literally carry their fantasy with them.

USACard, along with D&D creators, The Art of TSR and licenser Sunsout Inc., produced the prepaid phone cards, which portray scenes from actual D&D stories.

The first series features five different 20unit cards, each with a mintage of 2,500. A sixth card, a limited edition (1,000) three-unit promo card shows the TSR logo over a castle.

According to Robert Mish, CEO of USACard, TSR submitted artwork and scenes in the brilliant colors and detail pictured. "The artwork would have been impressive on any medium. To have them on phone cards is a boost and a blessing for the industry."

The first card pictures "Wizard & Dragon" by Jeff Easley from the Dungeon Master Guide for Advanced Dungeons &

Dragons.

20 units

The second card is Rob
Ruppel's "Knight's Sword"
from the Advanced Dungeons &
Dragons adventure,
Dragonlance. The third,
"Kingdom of Adventure" by Paul Jacquays, is from Advanced D&D's Mystara:
Karameikos campaign setting.

The final two cards in the set feature Larry Elmore's "The Second Generation" from the

Dragonlance saga novel The Second Generation, and "Red Magic" by Fred Fields from The Forgotten Realms novel *Red Magic*in the Harper's series.

The Art of TSR phone cards made their debut in August at the popular Dungeons & Dragons convention in Milwaukee. Demand from D&D enthusiasts is already taking the lion's share of the first series.

Fortunately, a limited quantity of this already hot issue has been released directly to phone card dealers by USACard. Moneycard Collector readers who are unable to obtain these issues from their favorite dealers may call the licensee Sunsout at (714)722-1766 for information about the nearest outlets.
