ON THE MONEY

We've been publishing Moneycard Collector for some 17 months now, with the same basic editorial policy: advertising and editorial function independently from each other. In practical terms, whether a card is included in our editorial coverage is not dependent upon the issuer being an advertiser. And conversely, advertisers receive no special deals or treatment, just because they are paying for space to promote their product or services.

In fact, we go out of our way to discourage infrequent advertisers from buying space in the same issue in which their cards appear. Even though we understand that the editorial content has been determined long before the advertising deadline, it might appear to some that the issuer has "purchased" the space. And that undermines the credibility of both the magazine and the advertiser.

What does all this mean to the our readers? Don't all publications separate editorial and advertising? While we can't speak for others, we can tell you what to expect from Moneycard Collector.

Our main goal is to educate and entertain, and by so doing, build the hobby. We pledge to do so by informing readers about new cards, new technologies and opportunities. Of course, part of that education process occasionally means a negative story — especially when it involves a card with fluctuating values.

Those who have known us from the beginning realize that we will not shy away from a controversial topic — if it is important to the collector. On the other hand, we don't believe that our readers want to be subjected to a constant barrage of stories about speculation, court cases and litigation concerning cards and business deals. However, when those cases affect the values of the cards involved, or in some other way the interests of collectors are involved, then you can be assured that we will report the facts — but not until then.

So please continue to let us know about what is happening in the industry — both good and bad. Write and tell us what you like, dislike, or want to see in the magazine. Together, we can maximize the enjoyment and long-term vitality of the hobby for all.

In an upcoming issue, we'll be reporting on phone cards from various supermarkets. If you know of any supermarket or retail store in your area of the country that is selling or giving away prepaid phone cards, please let us know. Contact Mary at (800)645-7456 (menu option 3) and we'll try to track down the card. If you plan on contributing, though, don't delay. The deadline for the story is December 18.

In our continued effort to create the best possible price guide for collectors, we've added a another new section of Foreign Cards to accompany our Sports, Non-Sports and Jumbo Card categories. Canadian cards are listed, broken down according to provincial, or private telephone company, or issuer. Our Other Foreign Cards section lists some of the most popular overseas cards, broken down first by theme, followed by issuer. We hope you enjoy these improvements and additions to our price guide listings.

READERS ALWAYS WRITE

Thanks, USACard

I would like to publicly thank USACard Corporation of Denver and applaud them for how they have handled the situation they were put in by HT Technology's failure to deliver the Atlanta Ronald McDonald House Duckhead 10-unit original event (2,000 issue) cards.

Back in May, I purchased 50 of these cards from USACard, part of the 1,000 which had been sold to them by HT. In July, I learned from USACard that only 100 of the 1000 had been delivered to them by HT.

In August I was informed that the balance of the cards were available but that HT had delivered instead part of the new production of 4000 "collector's edition" cards. I was asked if I would accept these cards, but I declined. Tripling the mintage of the image and then giving me the higher mintage version was not what I ordered and took market risk for back in May.

Recently, in October I have received from USACard – free of charge – five of the original event cards. The accompanying letter explained that they (USACard) had been trying but unable to resolve the non-delivery and excess mintage issues with HT. As a goodwill gesture to their customers, USACard divided up proportionally among their customers the 100 cards that had been received.

While the five free cards are not quite the same as receiving and (gladly) paying for all 50 originals, it demonstrates that USACard is doing everything possible to take care of their customers while their attorneys deal with HT. They may lose money with this giveaway, but they have this customer for life.

Ron Contrado, President, Homisco, Melrose, Mass.

Number correction

Thank you for the coverage of the Blue Jays "HELLO! Phone Pass" in the November issue of Moneycard Collector. However, the phone number mentioned was incorrect. The correct number for collectors to call is (604)654-7555. While these cards are no longer available from Bell, collectors who call this number can obtain the names of the dealers who are handling them in the secondary market.

Stacey Schultz, Product Mgr., Bell Canada

Thanks for the updated information.

Season's Greetings

Season's greetings from all of us at HT Technologies. Thanks for the great job you are doing to help build the collectible phone card market. We have experienced tremendous growth this year thanks to our collector customers, our dealer network, our suppliers and the industry press. Our wish for 1996 is that everyone will do all they can to educate the world about the potential of the collectible market.

During the second half of 1995 HT had some blockbuster issues – from the James Dean series to a new Alexander Chen puzzle set. Another highlight was the sponsor-studded (Coca Cola) Fleet Week commemorative set put together with Pier 39 in San Francisco. We promise to continue the effort in '96 – with many hot new promo issues and exciting artwork on phone cards.

The "Red Hot Wings" article pertaining to the Duck Head cards may make them one of the most valuable collector editions in phone card history. Upon reading it, many of our dealers and distributors called to confirm, that in their experience, the price differential between the editions has been negligible. All of the 40 editions of promotional and collectible phone cards we have issued since August 1995 have been clearly defined prior to issue. HT is committed to providing the highest quality product, and we appreciate your support.

Have a great holiday season. We look forward to another year of growth for us all.

Peter Heitmann, Sr. VP, Sales & Marketing, HT Technologies

Thanks for sharing your perspective with us. The prices and differentials quoted in the story accurately reflected the values provided to us at the time by several prominent phone card dealers.

Not everything is 'Ducky'

Regarding your December story on the HT Technologies "Duckhead" phone cards, we were one of the dealers who were sold these cards directly by HT. It was the most distasteful experience we have ever had since being in the business.

The controversy is not merely a misunderstanding between the issuer and the dealers. The time line of events is evidence otherwise. Let the readers draw their own conclusions:

May 26 - While on the phone with HT buying other products, we were solicited to purchase "Duckhead" 10-unit phone cards. We were told that the mintage would be 500 five-unit cards for the tournament and 2,000 ten-unit cards for the collector market. Also, we were told that we were the first to be offered them. We offered to buy all 2,000 of the cards. After their internal discussions, they agreed to sell us 1,000 of the 2000 (ten-unit cards). They faxed a contract later that day confirming that we were purchasing 1,000 cards then "in production" and that they would be available "in the next 3 to 4 weeks". We signed and returned the contract.

May 27-29 - Colleagues reported that they too had just purchased cards and were also told the mintage would be 2,000. Adding quantities suggested that slightly more than 2,000 cards may have been sold.

May 31 - After several requests, HT finally faxed us a memo stating 2,500 was the total mintage, of which 500 (five-unit) cards were going to the tournament. (leaving 2,000 ten-unit cards).

June 6 - In response to HT's request by phone for a "guarantee" of our card purchase, we faxed HT confirming the "total mintage being 2,500, with 500 going to the tournament". We authorized our VISA account to be debited upon shipment, exactly as was done on an earlier transaction.

June 11-12 - The Atlanta Ronald McDonald House Duckhead Gold Classic Tournament was held.

June 13 - HT called to inform us that our (confirmed) order of 1,000 event ten-unit cards would be cut back to 800. They acknowledged that they had made internal mistakes and had oversold the cards. We declined any cut-back of our order because we had already confirmed nearly all (1,000 cards) to our dealer customers. They said they would "see what they could do" and get back to us.

June 14 - Another dealer called us, irate that HT tried to cut back his quantity.

June 15 - HT called to say they had "good news". They would indeed be able to sell us the original 1,000 cards ordered, but that they would need immediate advance payment. We comply by bank wire in full the following morning.

June 30 - We received 100 cards only. We telephoned to express our concerns but were informed, among other things, that the additional 900 due would come from a new mintage of 4000 cards. Further, we were told that the cards would be distinguished by the words "collector's edition."

July 3 - We received by fax (as did other dealers) the HT memo as noted in your story. The memo admits, among other changes, that 7000, not 2500 cards were being produced. It also promised delivery of balances within 12 days.

July 3 to July 11 - We engaged in several phone conversations with HT, trying to educate them as to the problems they created, and to encourage honesty and cooperation in making amends to the dealers and collectors affected by the so-called "confusion".

Late July -

Unable to resolve the matter by direct communication with the HT staff, we turned the matter over to our attorney.

August 11 - We received 891 "collector's edition" cards from HT which, after discussions with our customers, we returned to HT as "non-conforming."

To this date, HT has neither delivered conforming cards, nor returned our payment. Our attorney interprets their stance as to take the position that there is no difference between original event and "collector's edition" Duckhead cards.

Event organizers have told us that despite HT's July 3 memo, no 10-unit event cards appeared at the tournament, nor have any proceeds been given to benefit the Ronald McDonald House. We were also advised that written evidence exists that HT requested permission to make additional 10-unit cards after the event.

Klaus Degler, President, USACard, Denver, Colo.

Wanted: more information

I enjoy very much reading the "American Most Wanted" section. It is always exciting to find out about the hot cards on the market. However, I would like to see more information than just the rankings. For example, it would be very helpful if you can include the number of cards being sold for each issue. The rankings only tell the readers that number one sells better than number two, but does not tell how well the overall market is. There is a huge difference between 10 cards and 1,000 cards being sold.

I would also like to see the average selling prices of each of the cards. I remember that a few months back the NYNEX Peace card was ranked as number one. I was wondering how much these cards sold for as they were available (and still are) at face values of $5 from the NYNEX 800 order line. I cannot understand why people would buy from dealers and pay higher than the face values. The "Price Guide" does not necessarily reflect the actual market. It prices the Peace card at $9, but you can still get it for $5 today!

We expect our full-time cataloguer to be joining our staff shortly. When that happens, we will start to gather more information, such as actual sales, to make "America's Most Wanted" an even better tool. It is doubtful, however, that prices will be included in this section, since that is the function of our newly expanded Price Guide.

Regarding your comment on why a price in the Price Guide can be higher when the card is still available from the issuer, this is typical in any collectibles market. When it comes to new cards, every collector should first think of checking with the issuer to see if any product is available at issue price. Unless an issuer gives a dealer a very significant discount for a volume purchase, it is virtually impossible for a dealer to sell at the issuer's price. The Moneycard Price Guide price of $9 for the NYNEX Peace card is based on actual dealer price lists and is a valid price in the dealer market. It simply reflects what collectors are paying dealers for the card.

ACMI project 'canned' by Coke

By Murray Church

For us, the issue was never the money – it boiled down to customer relations and our reputation as a totally above-board communications company and issuer of licensed image cards.”

With these words, the president of Memphis-based ACMI, Kevin Pirollo, summed up how he viewed a decision by Coca-Cola headquarters in Atlanta, which prevented ACMI from producing what would have been one of its most notable card images – the NASA Space Can. It was a decision which left in its wake a number of frustrated U.S. phone card dealers and collectors.

The idea to produce the card was first suggested to Pirollo by well-known dealer, Jeremy Baher of First Phone Card in London, England. Baher had seen a similar image on a British Telecom (BT) issue and knew it would have exceptional appeal in the U.S. market. One thousand of these five-unit BT cards had been produced and released for sale in November 1994.

Intrigued with the idea, ACMI looked into the matter further and ended up in touch with the man behind the issue, Stephen Brayden of Slingshot Promotions in Scotland. Brayden had begun work on the BT cards during late 1994 by contacting Coca-Cola

British Telecom, NASA Space Can, 5 units, 1,000 issued, November 1994.

Great Britain/Ireland for permission to use the image.

To his surprise, Coca-Cola's written response was negative, but not for the reason that he expected. A letter addressed to him on November 3, 1994 read in part "...in this instance, we are unable to give our permission... It is our understanding that the rights to this particular can are vested with NASA and we are, therefore, not in a position to approve its use."

Subsequent contact with NASA's agent for licensing images in the UK, the Science and Society Picture Library (S&SPL), resulted in obtaining the necessary authority and the cards were produced. Coca-Cola in Atlanta was silent, and to this day has not objected to the

BT phone cards.

Given the success of the BT issue, Brayden and Pirollo saw an excellent opportunity to collaborate on a U.S. issue using the same subject. Brayden was to secure authorization from the S&SPL for use of the Coke can image again – this time on a U.S. card – and ACMI would produce and market the cards.

In response to Brayden's request for U.S. rights, the S&SPL wrote to him on May 17, 1995, granting permission to use the image: "This is to confirm that permission is given to reproduce the image of the prototype coca-cola (sic) can on telephone cards with a print run up to 5,000 for U.S.A. only."

"At this juncture we were very certain that we could produce the card," Pirolo said, "and like many of the cards we produce we began to pre-sell it."

With a $6 face value and retail price, sales were brisk. The issue was sold out within a week.

Given the flurry of pre-sales activity, it was not a surprise to ACMI that Coca-Cola Atlanta heard about the card. What did surprise them was Coke's request not to produce it.

"We were stunned by this development," said Pirolo, "and were on the horns of a real dilemma. We were certain we had the authority and the cards had already been pre-sold. Coke Atlanta was contradicting its UK subsidiary, but our reputation was on the line."

ACMI appealed to Coke officials to reconsider its decision, but to no avail. Coke's position was that ACMI did not have the rights and that it was not prepared to enter into a licensing agreement with ACMI.

"We really had no alternatives at that point," the ACMI executive explained. "We were certain that we were right. But the bottom line was that the cost of a court fight might have seriously damaged ACMI and that was something I just wasn't prepared to do."

Thus, in late July, ACMI informed Coke that the agreement with Slingshot had been voided and that they would be refunding all of the money received from card pre-sales.

Brayden, however, was not prepared to let the matter drop. "He had been counting on this card being produced for the U.S. market, and believed he had the full authority to do so," Pirolo noted. "Stephen told us that he intended to use his own channels to market the card and that he wanted to buy the PINs from ACMI."

Pirolo could have refused Brayden's order for the PINs. "We have worked ourselves silly to promote ACMI and the industry," he explained. "Brayden had the clear rights to issue a card in his own name and was going to acquire U.S. PINs, regardless of what we did. Coke Atlanta had never requested that Brayden not do a card and had not intervened in any way with his BT issue. So, we decided to sell him the PINs."

Pirolo took great pains with Moneycard Collector to insist that this was not an "end-around" move by ACMI to circumvent the desires of Coke Atlanta.

"We didn't use Stephen Brayden to do an end-around Coke in Atlanta. We took the blame and the wrath of all of our customers when we canceled their orders. We refunded their money. But we totally resisted the temptation of telling them that Brayden would be doing similar cards. To act in good faith with Coca-Cola, that is what we had to do."

Slingshot Promotions, NASA Space Can, $6 denomination, 5,000 issued, August 1995.

ACMI; NASA Space Can; $6 denomination; prototype card (never issued); May 1995.

When asked how he felt now that the cards have been marketed by Brayden rather than ACMI, Pirolo sighed: "Well, we're not neophytes when it comes to licensed images on cards. An ACMI Coke card would have been great for us, and for Coke, too, I think. I don't agree with Coca-Cola's interpretation of the facts; nor do I agree with how they handled it. But I do understand it."

"In the end, we compromised. But I think we did so in a way that was right under the circumstances and in a way which protected our reputation as a responsible issuer of licensed image cards."

Brayden's view is that Coke has been "quite unreasonable" about it. "They had wanted the p.r. in connection with Challenger mission 51B in the late '80s, and that's why the can was produced in the first place." Ironically, mission 51B was aborted, as was Coke's exclusive on having the only pop can in space. NASA re-thought giving Coke an exclusive on the can and subsequently gave Pepsi the OK to produce a similar item.

And what of the Brayden NASA Space Can card? Brayden stated that since its launch in mid-August, approximately 3,000 of the 5,000 cards produced have been sold, mostly outside the U.S. Brayden claims that he has no plans to produce additional Coke cards.

TREASURY NOTES

MINT DIRECTOR SUGGESTS MONEY CARDS AS FUTURE CURRENCY The U.S. Mint appears to be leaning towards stored value cards as a potential substitute for coins and currency. In testifying before a congressional subcommittee on "The Future of Money", Mint Director Philip N. Diehl stated that "as the use of stored-value cards evolves, many consumers might be expected to replace coinage and currency transactions with 'e-cash' transactions, thus creating a new form of currency.

"As electronic forms of payment become more commonplace, reducing the demand for coinage and currency...the Federal government must be prepared to address the policy concerns that will arise," Diehl said.

The idea of a Treasury-issued, universal stored-value card presents the potential for recouping the lost seigniorage revenue from a lower demand for coinage, especially considering the high dollar value that could be stored on such a card. Seigniorage is the difference between the cost of producing a coin and its face value.

"Issuance of 'legal tender' stored value card would allow the Federal Treasury to retain seigniorage profits that would otherwise be reduced by a decline in the demand for coinage, thus avoiding the need for additional tax revenue or additional borrowing," Diehl said.

In an October 12 telephone interview with Coin World, the Mint Director claimed that the Treasury Department should take the lead in the evolutionary cycle of monetary policy, including whether to enter the stored-value card market.

According to Diehl, the Treasury needs to examine the long-term implications and get out in front of the technology, not lag behind it. Diehl pointed to smart card products from major financial service providers, such as Westminster Bank's innovative Mondex card. The card allows for electronic transfers of value from one person directly to another person or business using an off-line system, without the intermediation of a financial institution.

Also testifying before the subcommittee was Alan S. Blinder, vice chairman of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors, who expressed the view that the U.S. government should proceed "cautiously" in developing an official government stored-value card. The government should not, however, hinder private development of several different electronic currencies, Blinder said.

SHOW STOPPERS

NEW YORK SHOW DRAWS INDUSTRY, BUT FEW COLLECTORS For the second consecutive year, the eastern portion of TeleCard World's annual phone card shows attracted numerous exhibitors, but few local collectors. Once again comments circulated throughout the Jacob Javits Center concerning how the show had been advertised as a "Trade Only" show.

Unfortunately, collectors missed another excellent show, with issuers unveiling a multitude of new products, dealers offering some excellent buys, and a virtual cornucopia of new show cards.

Among celebrities on hand at the show were New York Yankee Hall-of-Famer Phil Rizzuto, world-famous wrestler "Macho Man" Randy Savage, Butch Patrick (Little Eddie Munster), and the Radio City Music Hall Rockettes.

US WEST 'CHIPS' IN TO EDUCATE CONSUMERS If you arrived late at the 100th anniversary of the Taste of Colorado, held in Denver over Labor Day weekend, you missed a golden opportunity to sample some new phone cards.

Each day during the four-day event, U S WEST handed out 1,000 complimentary stored-memory telephone cards. The cards, featuring falling coins against a yellow background, disappeared at a tremendous rate to users and collectors alike.

The company brought a trailer with half a dozen chip card-reading phones, so that new users could try out their cards. Also featured at the U S WEST booth were triptychs (three-card puzzle sets) featuring the Denver Skyline (15,000 issued); a three-card set depicting Colorado Lifestyles (10,000 issued); and another three-card set called the Action Adventure Series (15,000 issued) with pictures of hang gliding, mountain climbing and skiing.

While stored-memory telephone cards have been the standard in Europe for years, it has taken some time for the technology to work its way into the coin-happy U.S. U S WEST, the largest of the seven "Baby Bells," is pioneering the extensive introduction of stored-memory, or "chip" telecards in 14 Western and Midwestern states.

The stored-memory chip cards are so new in America that the chips are still only produced overseas.

Customers had an opportunity to try out their complimentary U S WEST phone cards at the Taste of Denver festival held during September. The telco brought in a truckload of telephones to help demonstrate the chip cards.

U S WEST advertises their stored value cards via billboard, radio and newspaper promotions, as well as exhibits.

U S WEST; Falling Coins; $1 complimentary; 10,000 issued; September 1995.

U S WEST; Colorado Lifestyle Series; three-card set; $5/$10/$20 denominations; 10,000 issued of each card; August 1995.

Some of the U S WEST cards bear wording indicating either France or Germany as the country of manufacture.

In Seattle alone, U S WEST has installed over 2,900 telephones that accept either telephone cards or coins. In Denver, there are about 1,300 such phones in place, with another 2,100 planned by year's end. The Denver phones are activated by coins, remote memory and stored memory telecards.

The greatest challenge facing the telecard industry is to educate consumers about the ease and accessibility of the cards. U S WEST is making this their primary goal, with exhibits, radio and billboard advertising, newspaper supplements, and even giving prizes away to users.

According to Randy Tada, Telecard Marketing Manager for U S WEST, the company has provided a hotline for any inquiries about or for telephone cards. The number — (800)739-3339 — directs callers to a menu-driven response platform on how to use the card, where to purchase cards, pay phone locations, and other useful information.

Fleet Week Sails Onto Phonecards

Golden Gate Diamond

Fleet Week is San Francisco's annual celebration of the city's long association with the U.S. Navy. The celebration traces its roots to 1908 when Teddy Roosevelt's Great White Fleet sailed to San Francisco. Fleet Week became an official celebration in September 1919 when 36 Navy ships from the Pacific battleship fleet steamed into the bay. This year, Fleet Week 1995 took place from October 4 through 11. The parade of ships was led by the aircraft carrier Carl Vinson which launched and recovered jet aircraft in the shadow of the Golden Gate Bridge — within a few hundred yards of 300,000 cheering spectators. The Fleet Week air show featured some of the world's best aerobatic pilots and was climaxed by a stunning performance by the U.S. Navy flight demonstration team, the Blue Angels.

This year, for the first time, HT Technologies and Pier 39 capture the fun and the spectacle of this one-of-a-kind event in The Fleet Week 1995 Collector Card Series. Share and preserve the experience with these fabulous limited edition phonecards.

The Fleet Week phonecard series includes images of Fleet Week participants including the Blue Angels and ships of all kinds from around the world. The set carries logos of sponsors Coca-Cola, Swatch, Kodak, Citibank, United Airlines and others.

AMERICA'S MOST WANTED

Finally! A breath of fresh... cards! Just when I was resigned to write bright and witty things month after month on the same cards, collectors woke up and got tired of paying inflated prices for Coca-Cola, McDonald's, and Vista-United cards.

I believe that a Coca-Cola card priced at $50 to $100 each is way too much for a card only months old that originally retailed for $10. And $200 is too high for a McDonald's set that sold for $50 a year ago. I get more pleasure in collecting a Coca-Cola card for less than 15 dollars that has a clever background and commemorates some significant event.

An outstanding example is the Summerset Festival in Arkansas, which displays the Coca-Cola logo and a bunch of smiley faces, or the Tulelake Festival card with the neat animal caricatures and the big Pepsi logo.

There are many truly classic old cards from the late '80s and early '90s available for less money than the high-flying speculative issues, and fabulous new cards are being designed and sold today that are available for just a few dollars. Ask your dealer about some of the undervalued cards on the market today.

Steve Eyer

1 SPRINT PEARLRIDGE HAWAII PUZZLE SET With a mintage of 1,500, and an original issue price of $36.64 (including the mandatory Big Macs), the set shows scenes of old Hawaii, with an overlay of McDonald's characters that form the puzzle for the four-card set. The going price on the set has now skyrocketed up to multiples of face value. Six thousand Big Macs were consumed for these 1,500 cards and the lines were long. The cards sold out within minutes into the few hands who arranged the lines.

2 ACCESS TELECOM NBC NEWS

First shown as a popular "brand" card in last month's Corporate Corner column. Issued during April 1995 (6,000 mintage), the price of the peacock logo is beginning to soar.

3 CABLE & WIRELESS/PCMA MCDONALD'S BACK TO SCHOOL

Here is an example of a card (10 Minutes, 2,000 mintage) that was not manipulated, was issued at an affordable price, and is still reasonably priced — even though it is now sold out. Congratulations to Phone Card Management of America for doing things right.

4 FRONTIER CALL TIME $20 Our best-selling user card from Frontier, which, due to acquisitions, is one of the largest private long distance companies around. I'm sure you'll hear more from them soon.

5 VISTA-UNITED VOICE AWARD Issued as a reward for employee suggestion award winners at Disney World in June 1995. Low mintage (700) often makes a valuable, but not necessarily a beautiful card. Disney must be saving its nicer designs for its first licensee. If you look at the Japanese Disney cards, you'll see just what must be waiting in the wings for the first (well heeled) licensee.

6 AT&T STEVE YOUNG AUTOGRAPHED JUMBO

With only 999 of these cards issued, the autographed version is bound to be treasured by some football fans. However, I haven't seen a signed card yet that I didn't feel was defaced. Let your opinions be heard in a letter to the editor. Do you like or dislike hand-autographed cards?

7 MCI/GAFT FRITO LAY SUMMER CIRCUS - FLORIDA

Another example of a "brand" card, this one features Frito Lay's Chester Cheetah. "Brand" collecting can be fun and inexpensive. Many of the cards are quite spectacular, and often commemorate significant events. The fun began in 1993 with AT&T's McDonald's 3-unit card, but actual "brand" collecting really started much later, with more recent cards like Fred the Baker (Dunkin' Donuts), Red Dog Beer, and the Gillette series. (My friends have enough razors to shave a medium-sized nation). The Summer Circus card has a fun image, a reasonable price and a low mintage.

8 TELETRADING LOU GEHRIG

TRIBUTE SET This pair of $1 cards, issued in September for the International Sportscard Expo in Anaheim, commemorates 1995's great moment in sports when Cal Ripkin broke Lou Gehrig's 56-year old record of 2,131 consecutive games played. 213 jumbo sets also were also produced.

9 HT/LDDS/CELEBRITY DEBIT DUCKHEAD CLASSIC The card that has caused so much controversy (see story in December issue), is nonetheless a nice card, complete with the magic Coca-Cola and McDonald's logos. A healthy mintage (4,000) of the Collector's Edition keeps the price reasonable, but I'd recommend the first edition (10-unit event card), dated 6/95 with a mintage at 2000, or the very elusive five-unit card, also dated 6/95 with a mintage of 1,000. Given away at the celebrity golf tournament, they are without the words "Collector's Edition" on the back.

10 VISTA-UNITED $5 TECHNOLOGY MAGIC

Another of the low mintage (600) cards from Vista-United, this 1994 issue is hard to obtain, as most cards are still held by Disney employees who attended the communications conference in Orlando.

B&B Presents ... We're Back!!!

Betty and I just returned from the New York show and a much needed vacation in Canada and Michigan. We saw some great country... but let's talk about phone cards. The New York show for us was great, sales were better than anticipated, and we finally got a chance to meet many of our east coast customers. There was alot of excitement with the customers and dealers. I guess the only negative was the tremendous amount of new items being introduced by issuers with no thought towards the collector market.

Let's talk a little about this. As with any new booming industry, which the phone card market is, you get alot of new dealers and issuers trying to make the quick dollar. This is happening now and will continue to happen - I wish we had control over it, but we don't. We urge all of you to be very cautious in what you are buying and use the following formula: 1) Buy what you like first, if the price goes up or down or stays the same, it should have no influence upon your purchase; 2) Buy from a known and reputable dealer; the dealer who offers you a great price the first time and then comes back to sell you items at higher prices or what you neither want nor has any collector value is not here to stay; 3) Buy from a dealer who has proven track record of success, no other dealer in the world has our proven track record, just look at the past 6 issues of MoneyCard; 4) Buy from a dealer who will guarantee his product and has a buy-back written policy. Our policy is that we will buy back from our preferred customers all products at preferred prices or greater within the first 12 months of purchase. This also refers to all guaranteed price items. On all other items that you purchase from us, we will offer 100% trade-in value during the first 12 months of purchase. No dealer in the world will offer you this but B&B. 5) Stick with major phone cards and major corporate cards and remember, there are dealers out there who are only in the business to buy fast and sell fast, if they get caught with a quantity they will sell off at whatever price they must to recoup their money. Don't get caught in this game! Remember when you are buying off the Net, you don't know who you're dealing with, they don't have an investment in this industry, it's strictly profit. Remember, we will meet or beat any legitimate advertised prices. Now let's talk about what our top recommendations:

MONSTER ALERT

LOOKING FOR A BARGAIN? Collectors and dealers recently watched in astonishment as Coca-Cola's classic NFL Monsters of the Gridiron cards were dumped on the market and prices began to plummet. An important card that was solidly entrenched in the $40 to $50 range suddenly dropped down to a single-digit value.

Collectors take heed: Don't just stand there with your mouths open! This is a rare opportunity to purchase as many of these cards as you can while prices are low. To quote directly from the back of the Monster card, "Remember, with Coca-Cola Classic, you are always in the game."

According to Lori Porreca of Univox, "To maintain a strong market, cards must be in the hands of strong distributors. If a 'weak' or uninformed dealer does not realize what he/she has and rushes to sell at a below-market price, the card will quickly lose value. However, when dealing with a 'blue chip' card like Monsters of the Gridiron, the market will stabilize and rebound."

What is it that makes these cards a classic and thus so desirable? First, the Monster cards were one of the earliest promotional prepaids to carry the highly desirable Cola-Cola logo.

Initially handed out in Atlanta at NFL games in 1993, many of the cards were discarded by football patrons. However, Coke memorabilia collectors quickly recognized the value of the cards, and even though there were 60,000 issued, that's still not a large number in the international world of collectibles. For example, two $1 NYNEX complimentary phone cards with issues over 70,000 have held steady at just under $50.

So, for those who feel they missed out on all the "bargains" of the early days, this may be the opportunity you've been seeking. Porreca's advice: "These are solid cards, and the market has no way to go but up!"

It's been another exciting month for corporate/promotional cards. The folks at Innovative Telecom recently produced one of the best looking corporate issues that I've ever seen. The two-card set was produced for Planters/Lifesavers to promote their assorted flavor candy. A total of 2,700 of the 10-minute cards was produced, with 1,100 of the 20-minute cards. Both cards are identical, with the exception of the minutes.

The cards were offered in only three cities — Los Angeles, Seattle and San Francisco. Coupons available at the point of purchase required customers to send in five wrappers for a 10-minute card and 10 wrappers for the 20-minute card. I haven't seen many of these around, so keep your eyes open for them.

GTI Telecom continues to add to its popular selling Anheuser Busch line with two new cards featuring the irrepressible ants and the lovable frogs from the brewer's popular Budweiser commercials. The ants card is the first in an ongoing collection to feature bilingual voice prompts. Both cards have a $10 face value, are rechargeable, and are available from your local dealer.

Phase Four Telecom just recently produced a card for the trendy Tommy Hilfiger clothing line. Only 500 cards were produced for a garment show and were given out to the company's preferred clients. The cards have 10 minutes of time and future consideration is underway by Tommy Hilfiger for an even bigger phone card promotion in the future.

CDG (Communications Design Group) — producer of quite a few sought-after corporate cards — has a couple of brand new promotional cards destined for popularity. First up is a three-card set promoting John Deere tractors. Only 350 sets were produced, with each card carrying five minutes of phone time. The cards were handed out at a meeting of John Deere distributors.

Following in the footsteps of CDG's tremendously popular A&W Root Beer card is a five-minute card promoting Barq's Root Beer. Two thousand of the cards were produced for a convention of Coca-Cola Bottlers (parent company of Barq's) in Orlando. A different item promoting a Coke product was distributed each day of the convention, with the Barq's phone card being one of them.

From the Great White North comes a great looking Procter & Gamble card. Canada Telecom produced these 10-minute cards to be distributed at demonstrations held at food and drug stores in Canada. The promotion is targeted at parents needing help to keep up with their kids. This is also the very first time that Procter & Gamble has promoted a variety of their products on a single phone card.

Well, that does it for this month! By the time you read this, we will just about be wrapping up what has turned out to be an exciting year for promotional phone cards. Here's hoping that 1996 turns out to be even more exciting!

AMERITECH

Celebrating the smash success of the Monet exhibition at the Art Institute of Chicago, a second Claude Monet card has been issued. The card features his work, "Artist's House at Argenteuil", painted in 1873. It comes with 20 minutes of domestic time, is rechargeable, and doesn't have an expiration date. Both Monet cards were sold in the Art Institute's gift shop. Ameritech is a corporate sponsor of the exhibit.

Ameritech is yet another Baby Bell to have a home page on the World Wide Web of the Internet. Look for it at <http://www.ameritech.com>. Images of all cards issued so far should be there, as well as news of upcoming cards. There might even be an occasional special promotion.

Using the card definitions listed in the October editorial of Moneycard Collector, here is some Ameritech historical telephone card information. The Ameritech Snowflake cards are trial cards, as their distribution was initially intended for employee use only. A test card was produced for the original CoinSaver series for technicians to use to test the card readers. The test card looked like a $2 card from the Original CoinSaver series, except it said "TEST CARD" on the obverse, and also on the reverse where the PIN would normally have been. Several hundred specimen cards were produced for the later CoinSaver cards (no phone time or PINs). The exceptions were the Holiday Edition with "VOID" instead of a PIN, and Robin Yount with 000-00-000 as the PIN.

NYNEX

Both $5 and $10 client cards (10,000 of each) have been issued for New York University. Five dollar and $10 public cards (25,000 of each) were also issued commemorating the U.S. Open 95. The number of NYU cards available to collectors is considerably less than 10,000, as the school's student body is quite large, and most cards are expected to be used in the new yellow payphones on campus. Even if the cards are reprinted, they will include new date codes. Other than the Collectors Club card, the NYU cards could be the key NYNEX issue of 1995.

BELL ATLANTIC

News of Bell Atlantic cards continues to surface, even after it pulled the plug on its active cards. The plan was to destroy all unsold cards, except for approximately 7,500 of each design, which were to be made available to card collectors. However, only about 900 of the $10 Premier Edition 1994 cards were saved, making it the object of great interest. All of the $5 vending machine cards (special packaging and serial numbers) were also destroyed.

Plastic shrink wrap on the James Earl Jones cards has caused the ink used on the front serial numbers to offset, thus smearing the numbers. In extreme cases, the plastic wrap has actually bonded to the cards. It would probably be a good idea to immediately remove the shrink wrap from all your Bell Atlantic James Earl Jones cards. Do this carefully, as the serial number ink should be considered as still wet. This warning probably applies to vending machine cards, also. All other Bell Atlantic cards (those mounted on cardboard carriers), appear to be okay.

This problem highlights the need to frequently inspect cards that are left in their original packaging. While absolutely no plastic storage materials have been proven to be completely safe, archival plastic made of polypropylene seems to be your best bet.

In all cases, avoid having vinyl touch your cards. Vinyl can bond to other plastics, and can cause ink to offset. Since most album covers are made of vinyl, it is best to place a piece of acid-free paper between the album cover and the top and bottom album pages. Never use vinyl page protectors to store larger items, such as jumbo cards. Only use polypropylene page protectors.

SOUTHWESTERN BELL

The remaining eight cards in the nine-card Stan Musial set have now been released. The first card in the set was issued at the National Sports Collector Show in August. The different packaging used for the other eight cards should be pretty exciting.

U S WEST

A $1 complimentary card was issued for CardEx 95, which was held in Maastricht, The Netherlands. The card was first revealed via CompuServe, when a German (Moneycard Collector) subscriber posted a message. A few days later, American subscribers to International Telephone Cards magazine got their first, and possibly only, glimpse of this new card.

Last month we reported that three new Denver cards would be issued. Three new sets of three cards were actually issued, with each set consisting of a $5, $10, & $20 denomination card. Each set also has a folder available for an additional $2. If this practice continues, by the time the card phones are installed in all five cities, it could potentially cost a collector $500 just to obtain one of each new U.S. West cards issued this year.

QUICK TAKES

AMEX. USPS TO MARKET CARDS Two well-placed individuals in the phone card industry recently gave Moneycard Collector separate confirmations on what may turn out to be one of the most important card programs of 1995.

Based on information contained in United States Postal Service operating manuals, more than 900 USPS facilities in seven selected cities will sell cards issued by American Express Telecom Inc., a division of American Express Card Services. Six of the test market cities are Providence, Miami, Columbus, Salt Lake City, Albuquerque and San Diego.

The series of cards will likely include several different designs in denominations of $5, $10, $20, $50 and $100. The carrier is expected to be MCI. Cost of the phone time on the cards varies with the denomination – the higher the denomination, the lower the rate. The rates apparently range from 56 cents for $5 cards to 33 cents for the $100 ones.

Card designs include Santa Claus, a space theme, carousel horses, and a U.S. flag flying over the White House.

CONQUEST, ACMI ANNOUNCE MERGER ConQuest Telecommunications Services and ACMI have announced a planned merger, which is expected to be completed by the end of 1995. Under the tentative agreement, ACMI will operate as a division of the Ohio-based ConQuest.

Headquartered in Memphis, Tenn., ACMI was one of the first telecommunications companies to offer prepaid phone cards in the U.S. The independent switch-based telecommunications marketing company includes an international sales force of 6,000 consultants. ConQuest is the eighth largest operator service provider in the nation, with operator services provided to more than 150,000 hotel/motel and hospital rooms and 25,000 payphones.

"This is an exciting development for both organizations," explained ACMI President Kevin Pirolo. "When we examined our areas of strength, the two companies seemed a perfect match."

According to Pirolo, the phone card arena was only part of the reason for the merger, and in the near future consumers can expect to see a number of new, innovative products result from the move.

Talks between the two organizations began in mid-June. The merger is scheduled to take effect on December 1.

PHONE AND FLOSS Just when you think you've seen it all, along comes TOTALTEL's new "TELEFLOSS." Unveiled at the TeleCard World East show in New York, the product claims to be the one and only prepaid calling card in the world that includes 12 yards of – yes, that's right – dental floss.

The card is of standard phone card size, but slightly thicker. Company or product advertising is available on the front of the card. For information, call (800)864-4000, ext. 276.

PRINT BOOSTS DISTRIBUTION OF SPREE CARDS

Distribution of

Spree prepaid calling cards increased by 60 percent between July and August, according to Sprint officials. Minutes of use, a measure of how many cards are sold and used, increased 20 percent during the same period.

The Kansas City-based long distance company is adding thousands of new outlets to its nationwide network of retailers for the Spree cards. Included in the new retail chains are Texaco Star Marts, Lucky Stores, Smith's Food and Drug, Fry's Supermarkets, Cumberland Farms, Amerada Hess, Super Stop, Aplus Mini Markets, Sunoco Food Markets and Kwik-Fill/Red Apple.

Spree prepaid phone cards are available in denominations of $5, $10, $20 and $50. Students and young adults are among the biggest Spree users, along with foreign travelers, business travelers and military personnel.

BOTTOM LINE TO PRODUCE CIRCLE K CARDS Bottom Line Telecommunications, Inc. (BLT) has reached an agreement with The Circle K Corp. of Phoenix, Ariz., to create a private label phone card program throughout the 2,500-store chain.

Unveiled during mid-October, the Circle K Phone Card replaces the company's MCI and Sprint phone card programs, and is being offered in denominations of 15, 30 and 60 minutes.

Circle K is the largest operator of company-owned convenience stores in the U.S., operating and franchising stores in 28 states.

One of the nation's leading suppliers of prepaid phone cards to the retail industry, BLT is best known for its TALK 'N' TOSS brand phone cards. Other national retail chains using BLT private label cards include Thrifty/PayLess, Revco Drug Stores, Albertson's, Southland and Long's Drug Stores.

International Flavor

Certain foreign cards are hot sellers

By Betty Houghtaling

With an increasing awareness of the popularity among American collectors of certain international cards with Americana themes, Moneycard Collector will begin to cover the most notable of these issues.

Coca-Cola

Most important of the Coke issues has been the two Sprint sets from Germany. The first — Stories Told — is a six-card set in a folder depicting old-time Coke images, with a mintage of 1,500, released in March 1995. The set originally sold in Europe for $135 (U.S.) and now retails for $300. Though never offered to U.S. buyers, dealers purchased them through Germans.

The second issue from Sprint Germany is the five-card set, entitled Jukebox (2,000 issued). The set is absolutely beautiful in the specially designed jukebox folder. The cards inside are from Sprint and can be used by both U.S. and international calling (as above).

It is our understanding that approximately 1,500 sets remained in Germany for a contest. These sets are now selling in the U.S. for $200 each. They were released in July for $125.

From Australia Telecom, the first Coke series was a two-folder series — Polar Bear and Santa — released at Christmas, with an issue of 10,000.

British Telecom; Coca-Cola Bottles; £2 denomination; 1,000 issued; September 1995.

The two-folder sets now sells for $60 U.S. The second series features Red Hot and Cool Down, with a $2 complimentary card. There was also a 10,000-card issue in June 1995, which now sells for $55.

Other international cards of note in this category were the Hungarian two-card Coke and Lite Coke, quantity unknown, selling for $30 per set; the Coke Belacom at $30 per card; and the Shanghai Coke card at $50. While these are the cards Coke collectors request, others are available at various prices from Britain, Japan, Singapore, Thailand, Europe, and Africa.

McDonald's

Though most of these cards originate in the U.S., issues from Hungary and British Telecom command high dollars, due to their scarcity in the U.S.

The Hungarian McDonald's puzzle set is little known, but highly sought after and commands big bucks. The British Telecom McDonald's Breakfast four-card set is often ignored (mainly due to the optical band on the front of the card, which is often seen as a negative by U.S. buyers), but sells for high dollars.

Disney

Disney's failure to produce its own phone cards (other than cast member and convention cards) has forced collectors to seek foreign issues for their Disney fix. Most popular are the Pacific Rim cards. Of note, Event Masters/New Zealand Telecom have been producing high quality, low-mintage collector sets for the past year.

The first Disney issue, Mickey - The Early Years - Part I, was a private issue of 1,000 cards. The set never sold in the U.S., but made it here later in very low numbers. These sets sold in New Zealand originally for $125 (U.S.), and are now commanding $650 and higher.

Mickey Part II, which was sold out prior to issue, caused a near panic in New Zealand. Officials there stated that on the day of its release, 3,000 calls came in for the 1,500 sets.

Originally, 300 sets were to be allocated to the U.S. and 300 to Australia, but the allocations were cut by more than one-half. Initially priced at $125, within days the sets jumped to $300 and, if they can still be found, probably will cost more. Event Masters is attempting to buy back some sets to meet its customers' demands in that country.

Event Masters has also produced three extremely attractive and low-mintage Disney movie collector sets:

- The Lion King, issued Sept. 1994, mintage 4,000;
- Snow White, issued February 1995, mintage 3,000;
- Pinocchio, issued May 1995, with mintage of 3,000.

Most recently released were the Pocahontas cards from Chile, with a mintage of 3,000. Despite their low profile in the U.S., these cards have sold very well here. Also extremely popular in the U.S. are the German Disney series, most notably the various puzzle sets issued over the past few years. Only one German dealer had access to these cards, which created a high-dollar price tag. The sets include Beauty and the Beast, Mickey's 65th Birthday, Jungle Book, Lion King and Mickey's World Tour.

Hong Kong Telecom (Singapore); KFC/Coke; two-card set 20,000 mintage; September 1995.

NTT/Tokyo Disneyland (Japan); Mickey Mouse Collection; six-card set; 2,000 issued; August 1995.

The first issue from Kodak Singapore was a four-card Mickey and Minnie set, packaged in an attractive folder. Issued during early 1995, mintage was high for single cards but only 5,000 folders were produced. The sets now sell for $125.

The next Singapore issue was a five-card movie set consisting of Cinderella, Snow White, Sleeping Beauty, Pinocchio, and Alice in Wonderland. Like the first set, mintage was high for single cards, with only 5,000 folders produced. These sets are priced at approximately $75 in the U.S.

British Telecom; Spaceship McDonald's; 5 units; 2,000 issued; September 1995.

Telefon Kartya (Hungarian); McDonald's puzzle set; 2,500 issued; November 1994.

CHILESAT;
Pocahontas; six-card set; 3,000 sets issued; August 1995.

Australia Telecom has also produced some popular Disney series. The first Disney Down Under was a two-card folder set featuring Mickey and Donald water-skiing. Ten thousand cards were issued — the usual quantity produced by Australia Telecom — with the current retail price about $55. The second series is the Mickey Party single in folder with poster and is presently selling for $35.

Though Coca-Cola, McDonald's and Disney are all pictured on Japanese cards, finding these cards is both difficult and frustrating. Many dealers are forced to buy only what is made available to them, rather than the cards they may wish to purchase. In addition, these cards sell for high dollars in Japan, and dealers there often refuse to sell to outsiders.

Cards from the European market,

Singapore Telecom;
Kodak/Disney Collection; five-card set; $2 denomination on each; 5,000 foldered sets; 1995.

such as the BT Aladdin and Pinocchio series, are sometimes overlooked, as they are not as attractive as the Pacific Rim cards. Optical bands on the front are slightly distracting, but should not deter potential buyers, as the cards do show a healthy investment potential for serious collectors.

Phone card dealers look for those cards that are not only low mintage, but also have a collectible image. Therefore, more and more American dealers are starting to recognize the sales appeal of certain international issues.

Just as the foreign market is steadily increasing their purchases of U.S. issues, the U.S. market should look to foreign shores for some good buys.
