6 The Scoop on Chips

Chip-based telephone cards have been around since the 1980s, and the technology that led to them is even older. Robert Merkert looks at how it all started.

38 MCI Attraction

The suitors are lined up at the door, courting MCI. However, that doesn't mean the big telco will be producing fewer phonecards, Art Becker reports.

44 Pigskin Perils

Professional football attendance figures are down, and few new NFL-related telecards are available, but some players still are big draws, Steve Fritz notes.

ON THE MONEY

What better place to discuss the future of money than in our first magazine of 1998?

That topic was heavy on the mind of Donn Pearlman of Minkus & Dunne, a Chicago-based public relations firm, in a recent mailing to numismatics leaders.

"The coin and paper money collectibles 'industry' faces a severe challenge. It may be a life-threatening situation for some businesses," Pearlman blares. "The banking industry has launched a multi-million dollar campaign to completely abolish coins and currency. If successful, it will drastically change the way Americans conduct everyday commerce and make numismatics appear to be an archaic, obsolete pursuit."

That's like saying all printed publications will soon cease to exist because of computers. Make no mistake: The impact of electronic media, like electronic-based money, is here to stay and is growing. But there are still millions of people who, because of circumstance or preference, will continue to use the old-fashioned version.

Pearlman calls for the American Numismatic Association and other organizations to form a coalition, a marketing council to "professionally promote and market numismatics" and "aggressively counter-balance the anti-coin and currency thinking that is invading the general and business news media."

We have seen no such "invasion." Did credit cards, personal checking accounts and ATM cards doom coin-collecting as a hobby? No, and neither will prepaid cards. Moneycards are a growing alternative to paper money and coins, but it will be a long, long time — if ever — before they become a replacement.

In fact, the American Numismatic Association has recognized prepaid cards as a form of money. The hobbies of coin-collecting and moneycard-collecting complement each other well. Many collectors enjoy both, and there is no need to choose between them. And there certainly is no need to indulge in Pearlman's heavy-handed scare tactics.

Also to celebrate a new year of moneycard collecting, we have introduced some new departments and expanded an existing one. Steve Eyer moves to "Getting Started," a regular monthly column that offers tips to beginning collectors and Cataloger Kathy Utz takes over an "America's Most Wanted" that has been expanded to include the most desirable stored-value cards and spotlights on older and foreign cards. Also new this year are "Promos & Offers," a column that looks at some of the card offers available at the grassroots level, and "Stored Value," which features the latest news about chip cards.

Also returning this year is our series of bimonthly contests. See information in this issue on our new January-February contest which gives participants chances to win a free Moneycard Collector Catalog and phonecards. Congratulations to David R. Rose of Tampa, Fla.; Pearlyne Wang of New Orleans, La., and Bernard Curtis of Algonac, Mich.; winners in the September-October "3 Could Be Your Lucky Number!" contest.

We were startled for a moment when we turned over the newest U S WEST phonecards (see "New Issues") and saw expiration dates ending in "00." "Error cards?" was the first thought that flashed through our minds, followed an instant later by the correct conclusion — these cards expire in the year 2000. The approach of the millennium might cause many issuers who use the ubiquitous "00" for expiration dates and PINs of sample cards to review those labeling policies. Nothing like planning ahead, right?

In closing, a big "thank you" to all the supportive words about the new Moneycard Collector Catalog. As the number of copies in our warehouse dwindles, the compliments continue to grow, and we appreciate every one. And, as much as we appreciate the kind comments, we appreciate the suggestions and corrections even more, because those will make the next edition even more special. Thanks again, and Happy New Year!

READERS ALWAYS WRITE

PhonePhair issues suggested as first U.S. puzzle set

I read with interest the feature "Piece Movement" by Robert J. Sodaro in the November 1997 issue. I believe the first US puzzle image phonecard is a six-piece, six different carrier of the artist Margaret Keane of wide-eyed kids called "Love can make all the difference in the World." This set, with a mintage of 2,500, was produced by Premier Telecard magazine and released at the first PhonePhair in March 1994 in San Francisco.

Every serious collector should have one set in his collection.

Tim Sockriter, Kissimmee, Fla.

Thanks for the information. We believe the first puzzle set may have been produced by GTS. Its New York Puzzle series of five cards (GTS 143/147) was issued in February 1994. Does anybody have an earlier nominee?

Counterfeit cards a problem in Italy

We are writing an article for Tuttocard Magazine about false U.S. phonecards circulating in Italy. It's a big problem here, as there are many thousands of them for sale at conventions and flea markets. Most of them have attractive themes such as Disney, Marilyn, Coca-Cola, erotica, and so on, but are badly printed (probably in Italy) and are sold as already expired. Usually they don't carry a company name, or, if any, it is an unknown company.

We are going to publish a regular feature on false cards so that collectors may avoid throwing away their money, and to report on real phonecards, as many collectors are refusing to buy any U.S. remote memory card because they are confused.

Among the cards we have seen are a set of 35 Disney cards, very badly designed, without the Disney copyright on them. They have the value printed on them in dollars and read "10 unit of domestic time" on the back. There is no indication of a phone company, and my telco says the "888" number on the back doesn't exist. I have seen a Marilyn phonecard with the same number, and others probably exist.

Stopping the printers of false phonecards will be a real benefit both for the Italian market and for serious U.S. phonecard collectors.

Andrea Lughi, Cadoneghe, Italy

We agree that this is a serious problem. Greedy, unscrupulous behavior by a few damages the credibility of all. Moneycard Collector has been in contact with attorneys representing Disney and Michael Jordan about counterfeit cards. Collectors can protect themselves by only buying from established dealers and by contacting the International Telecard Association if they have questions about specific cards.

Update from JR's Telecards

I still plan to have to the Christmas Auction and it will start the day after Thanksgiving. There are problems with the Coke card I wanted to do for the charity, as Coca-Cola headquarters in Atlanta has been slow to respond. In any event, I will have more than 100 lots and half of all proceeds will go to "The Make a Wish Foundation" at Medical College of Georgia in Augusta, Ga., right across the river from me. Some of the other small dealers who were willing to participate will have to back out as they don't feel they can donate the 50 percent, and I understand.

I am so thankful to be alive that I feel I must do something.

I will continue in the phonecard business, but at a much lower level. I would like to be able to consult with collectors and dealers on my thoughts about this hobby. It is exciting, fulfilling, and I have that overall thrill when I get something special.

I do believe at present there are too many cards being produced by issuers and also a lot of dealers. I have spoke with some very astute collectors and they have really cut back on their buying for this reason. I know some people who buy everything that hits the market and with the expectations of it appreciating. A lot of them are charging on their charge cards and having problems paying their credit card bills. They forget that this is a hobby and not the stock market.

Jack Ritchie, JR's Telecards, Aiken, S.C.

Thanks for the update and the words of wisdom. For readers who have not heard about the fire that destroyed most of JR's Telecards' inventory, please see the story in December's edition, Page 5.

Keep keen eye on shipping charges

While purchasing a large quantity of cards from two separate companies, I discovered a problem concerning shipping charges. The first situation involved Disney. While placing an order via the Disney website, it stated that there was to be a $1 shipping charge per card and that all cards would be shipped separately since you were only able to purchase one card per transaction. Disney decided to ship every card I ordered (and there were a lot) in one package, but wound up charging me almost $100 to ship the package. I immediately contacted Disney. After a few phone conversations, Disney agreed with me that charging $1 shipping per card and then shipping them as one big order was unfair, and refunded most of my shipping, as they also did for another dealer.

More recently, a similar situation occurred when I ordered the Lifesavers card from Nabisco. After placing an order, a receipt appeared for me to print out which had the card listed at $5 plus $1 for shipping. What's the difference if the card is $6 or $5 plus $1 for shipping? If a person orders say 50 cards, the latter means it will cost that person $50 in shipping! I immediately e-mailed Nabisco and was guaranteed that the website would be changed within 24 hours.

If a collector was to order 20 different cards from a dealer, would that collector be happy if the dealer charged them $1 per card for shipping? I don't think a collector would like a $20 shipping charge. The bottom line: If you see something that doesn't make sense to you when ordering from a dealer or anywhere else, speak up about it. You can make a difference as I have, twice.

Bruce Harmon, President, Acme Telecards, Inc.

Keeping your eyes peeled is good advice at all times. We're glad that the companies involved took immediate steps to change their practices.

the Scoop on Chips

Chip-based cards show global growth

by Robert Merkert Sr.

It has been estimated that 668 million telephone chip cards were sold worldwide in 1996 and that more than 1.35 billion will be sold in the year 2000. Where are all these cards going and who is collecting them? Better yet, how did all of this get started? Where are they used? How are they made?

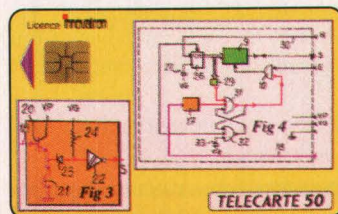

Those same questions also apply to stored-value chip cards, whose origins and early programs have been chronicled in various Moneycard Collector articles over the past three years (three of those articles are "Banking On It," October 1997; "DANYL's Pioneering," June 1997; and "Venerable Visa," November 1996).

These and many other questions will be discussed in this two-part article, which launches a bimonthly column about chip-based moneycards, whether they are telephone cards or SVCs used as cash cards.

We can begin by looking at early patents for the integrated circuit chips, or ICCs, placed on the cards. One of the first patents on an identity card containing an integrated circuit was issued in 1968 to Juergen Dethloff, an engineer, entrepreneur and inventor who is highly regarded as the German father of the chip card. In 1970, Kunitake Arimura of Japan received a patent on an identification card containing an integrated circuit that generates signals in response to outside signals. Perhaps the best known of the early patents is that of French inventor Roland Moreno, whose 1975 patent on a protection method for data within a card's integrated chip paved the way for eventual mass acceptance and use of the integrated circuit chip card as the telephone card used in more than 120 countries today. Moreno is widely considered the father of the ICC telephone card.

Deutsche Telekom; Juergen Dethloff 25th anniversary card;

France Telecom; Roland Moreno Innovatron patent card;

It wasn't an easy jump from the invention of 1975 to the first introduction of this card in 1984 by French Telecom. European telephone companies largely were state-controlled monopolies in that time period, and compared to the United States, the cost of a telephone call was expensive. Payphones were an ongoing problem, with frequent attacks leading not only to the loss of money within the phone, but also expensive replacement costs and a loss of revenue while the phone was out of service.

To combat this problem, telecoms in France, England, Sweden and other countries invited companies to propose solutions. The responses in the countries mentioned above were completely different. Sweden chose a magnetic stripe technology, as did Japan. Britain chose the optical card from Landis and Gyr. France went with the ICC card, awarding a contract to Schlumberger, which produced both the cards and the telephones in which to use them, installing the first ones in 1984.

But it wasn't until Sweden also decided to move to the ICC card a few years later that the pendulum swung to that approach. Since then, more than 120 countries have converted to chip-based systems. Even with the higher cost of the ICC card, the overall revenue from the chip-based phones was about $1,000 more a year due to the reduced revenue loss from theft, phone maintenance and repair.

Since the chip card used was a non-reloadable card, the need for cards increased dramatically as chip-based payphones spread. A whole new industry was born!

Gemplus was formed to meet this new business opportunity, and thus was created the great rivalry between Schlumberger and the new company to be number one in the smart card business. As the volume of cards increased, the cost to manufacture them decreased. Originally between $2 and $3 per card, they can now be obtained in large volumes (10 million or more) in the range of 50 cents per card.

One of the initial shortcomings of the chip card helped create the phonecard collecting hobby. Because of the high cost initially associated with the cards, advertising was offered to help offset the cost. This in turn stimulated a collector's market because of the limited-edition cards for various companies and events. Once the cards were perceived as collectible, people wanted them in mint condition with no value taken off. In the case of the French phonecards, each card lists the issue date and number of cards produced in that issue. Other companies followed suit.

In 1994, Germany's Deutsche Telekom issued a chip card celebrating the 25th anniversary of Dethloff's patent. France Telecom also has issued a card honoring Moreno's patent. Because of the significance of these patents to the telephone chip-card industry, both have become desirable to collectors, especially a signed version of the Moreno card.

In the United States, U S WEST and GTE both have issued ICC phonecards. The chip-accepting phone used by both is the Northern Telecom (Nortel) Millennium phone. These phones are more expensive than their European counterparts, because they not only accept chip cards but coins, magnetic stripe and calling cards as well. In addition, the phone's memory contains telephone tariff rate tables. The European phone is simpler: A pulse or tone is sent from the central office, indicating that a fixed value should be deleted from the chip card. The difference in pricing between calls, such as local or long distance, is regulated by how often a value pulse is sent to the phone from the central office. In the U.S., a module inside the phone calculates the call's cost based on the stored tariff tables.

Although U S WEST and GTE have had chip phones and cards for the past few years, the pioneers in the United States were Comsat and International Telecom Inc. The Comsat cards, manufactured by Schlumberger, were for use on ships, offshore oil rigs and remote land sites by use of INMARSAT satellite systems and Comsat's ground stations and were first issued in January 1989. International Telecom Inc. cards, featuring scenes of Alaska, also by Schlumberger, were issued to fish processing plants and cruise lines in January 1993.

U S WEST, the most active telephone chip card issuer in North America, first released the Northwest Legacy cards in March 1994. These cards depict authentic Native American artifacts on display at a Warm Springs, Ore., museum. With the largest installation of chip-card phones in America, U S WEST regularly issues new cards, all of which can be purchased through dealers listed in Moneycard Collector's dealer directory.

The first embedded-chip GTE SmartCard ever issued was for the May 1996 Byron Nelson Classic golf tournament. An inaugural series of GTE smart cards was issued in October 1996 for use in Hawaii.

Chip manufacturers have varied for both companies. The GTE Byron Nelson card was produced by Giesecke & Devrient (G&D), while the Hawaii cards were by Gemplus and Schlumberger. The initial U S WEST cards were produced by Gemplus. Since then, G&D America and Solaic/Schlumberger also have made cards for U S WEST.

Bell Canada also issues chip, or La Puce, cards produced by Gemplus and G&D, and chip-card phones are becoming more common in Mexico, Central and South America. Some Millennium phones also were modified in Atlanta to accept Visa Cash during the 1996 Summer Olympics, and Millennium phones also are used on the Florida State University campus as part of that school's switch to smart cards for student IDs.

All of the North American cards mentioned above are available through dealers in the U.S. and Canada, many at face value. Most have been issued in quantities up to 20,000 — large enough to be available to ardent collectors yet scarce enough to increase in value.

Smart cards and chip cards are becoming an integral part of the American monetary system, albeit at a slow pace. The spread of payphone chip cards may speed this process as more and more people become familiar with using chip cards.

The number of companies manufacturing chip cards (Gemplus, Schlumberger, Bull G&D, Orga, AMMI, IBM, DeLaRue/Phillips, Toshiba, US3, Hitachi and others) and those providing the chips (SGS-Thompson, Siemens, Motorola, Atmel, Hitachi, Texas Instruments, Phillips and more) guarantee a lot of variety for collectors. The manner in which integrated circuit chips are placed on the cards, the configuration of the contacts and how different chips are used in telephone and stored value applications are among the topics in next month's article.

The author is president of RM Associates has more than 10 years' experience with stored-value cards. He has held executive positions with DANYL, Schlumberger, and SCM Microsystems.

AMERICA'S MOST WANTED

Phonecards are not the only thing on the top of peoples wish list this time of the year. One dealer noted his top seller for the month was the new Moneycard Collector Prepaid Phone, Cash & Transit Catalog. If you haven't reserved your copy yet, better get one while they last (Get two – what better Christmas gift for a friend who needs a new hobby?)

Several cards in this month's selections remind me of good times as a child. A Happy Meal and a soda pop or the giant Big Boy who stood outside the restaurant, and who can forget Cracker Jack, with that extra prize inside? All of this month's selections would be a nice addition to anyone's collections, so let's take a look.

CORN NUTS.

Grapevine Telecards (GRP); 10 units each; 700 issued, August 1997. This colorful three-card set promotes Corn Nuts. The sets are numbered and matched and available through dealers. A tasty treat for you.

MOUNTAIN DEW. Karis Communication (KAR Pr12); 10 minutes; 500 issued, July 1997. This realistic-looking can of pop seems to be "dewing it" again in America's Most Wanted. The card also comes with cool packaging that makes you feel like you're watching the can roll out of the machine.

SEAFAIR AIR SHOW. U S WEST (USW 77); $1 denomination; 10,000 issued, July 1997. This card is still flying high as it makes its second appearance in "America's Most Wanted." This chip card features the Blue Angels as they appeared at the SeaFair Air Show held earlier this year.

MCDONALD'S HAPPY

MEAL. Score Board (SBI 1015, 1016, 1017); die-cut set/3; $25 denomination each; 856 issued, May 1996. Everyone one must love these happy faces as much as I do. So, let the child in you rule and order a happy meal one more time.

CRACKER JACK COLLECTORS ASSOCIATION. USA Card (USA Pr91); 5 units; 500 issued; July 1997. This card was issued for the Third Annual Cracker Jack Collectors Association convention. Most of the cards were sold at the convention and approximately 200 were made available to collectors and dealers. This card could be a hard one find.

BIG BOY. Telenova (TVA 6); 6 minutes; 760 issued; August 1997. How can anyone resist or forget this familiar Big Boy? Although most of the cards went to clients, some are available through dealers.

TGI FRIDAYS/JACK DANIEL'S GRILL. Frontier Communications (FRO Pr162); 5 minutes; quantity unavailable; July 1997. This was a promotional card given out to customers who signed up for a frequent Fridays card and collected 500 points. It's a great-looking card promoting the "Jack Daniel's Grill."

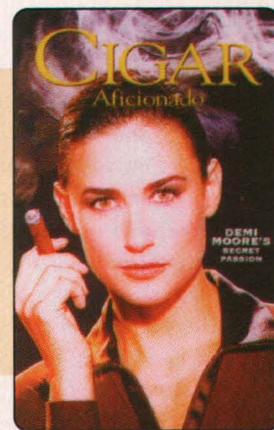

CRACKER JACK BUTTER TOFFEE.

USA Card (USA 115) 10 units; 1,500 issued; June 1997. The demand for this Cracker Jack theme holds steady; the butter toffee version seems to be more like "gold" than a glazed popcorn treat.

DEMI MOORE CIGAR AFICIONADO.

TotalTel (TTT Pr9); 10 minutes; 1,000 issued; September 1996. This striking image of a popular movie star has proven to have a consistent life in the pre-paid market.

PEPSI TIME IN SPACE. Karis Communication (KAR Pr1); 5 minutes; 500 live and 500 samples issued; January 1997. It's back! This card's last appearance in "America's Most Wanted" was in the July 1997 issue, which also carried a story regarding the card. The idea of hiding the PIN number under the pull tap on this card makes it unique, and worth a revisit. Direct Link, through Vertical Partners, issued 1,500 of this same image (DLK Pr20).

STORED VALUE SIZZLERS

Sports and Coke are the theme for this month's top stored-value cards. These are three of the stored value cards most asked for by collectors. We hope this will add a little variety to "America's Most Wanted" and shine a little light on another substitute for currency, stored-value cash cards.

SHELL-CHICAGO BULLS. Shell Oil Corp. (SHL S7) $25 denomination; quantity unavailable, issued May 1997. The Shell prepaid gasoline card marking the 1997 NBA playoffs, was sold in Chicago and Northwest Indiana from May 5 - June 5.

JACKSONVILLE JAGUARS. First Union Corporation (FUN SP7a/SP14a); $20 denomination each; 2,500 issued, October 1995. This eight-card puzzle set was issued to commemorate the Jaguars inaugural season, and expired in January 1996.

HOSPITALITY SERIES-

COCA-COLA. NationsBank (NBC SP5); $25 denomination; 1,500 issued, July 1996. This chip card was one of 12 in a series of the VISA CASH-Sponsor Hospitality series. The obverse is the same on all the cards and the reverse is where the company or sponsor logo is shown.

GOLDEN GLOW

What golden oldies (cards two years or more) are your customers currently interested in? That's the question we asked of the dealers who participate in "America's Most Wanted." A tip of the cap to Phone Cards Plus and United America Cards for suggesting these fun cards.

GET OUT OF JAIL FREE.

Quest Group International (QGI 8); $5 denomination; 1,000 issued, May 1993.

This little guy means a very short stay in jail when I play Monopoly. And like the game, this card has stayed just as popular.

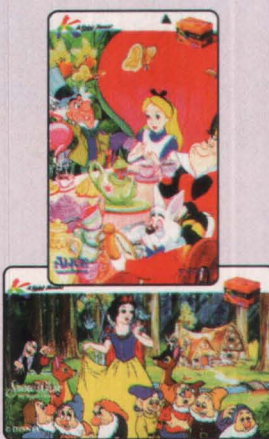

MCDONALD'S BACK TO

SCHOOL. Phone Card Management of America (PMA Pr2); 10 minutes; 2,000 issued, August 1995. This card benefited the Ronald McDonald Children's Charities of South Florida.

INTERNATIONAL EYE

Several participating dealers mentioned foreign phonecards with Disney images as being sought-after collectibles. This month's "America's Most Wanted" International Spotlight falls on a set of cards issued by Singapore Telecom. Our thanks to the folks at USACard for nominating this set!

DISNEY.

Singapore Telecom; 50,000 sets issued in 1996.

Kathy Utz

The writer is the cataloger for Moneycard Collector.

America's Most Wanted is compiled monthly by Moneycard Collector. All dealers are encouraged to participate by faxing a list of their company's top sellers to (937) 498-0876 by the 16th of each month. This month's "America's Most Wanted" is courtesy of: Acme Telecards; Blue Ribbon; Buffalo Bill; KARS Unlimited; Phone Cards Plus; Powell Associates; Rick's Phone Cards & Racing Collectibles; Global Telecard Company; TW Phonecards; Sears Phone Card Department; United America Cards; and USACard.

GETTING STARTED

We begin the New Year with a brand new column, designed for those who feel confused by it all. Don't feel lonely, we all were beginners just a few years or even months ago.

We will attempt to make you an "overnight wonder" so you can wow your friends with all sorts of strange words like remote memory, interactive card, and the best one of all: internal card. Can you see this one by looking down your throat? Actually, the definitions are very, very simple and what's more, most of them are nearly self-explanatory. Except that internal card. I still can't get the mirror positioned just right. We'll talk about definitions in a future column.

We will also discuss how to start your collection, how to limit your collection to match your available budget, and how to budget monthly purchases. How will you pick your favorite dealers or traders to correspond with to build your collection, and what about expos and shows? And the Internet — what's there and not there for you.

We'll try to get into recommended ethics between collectors, traders, dealers, and auction houses. We'll review catalogs, price guides, and dealer pricelists. We'll cover grading telecards, and other subjects that you are especially interested in. But you will need to let us know. Please tell us here at Moneycard Collector what you don't understand, and what you would like us to cover. If you will begin the cards and letters flowing in, we can start a "card clinic" in the near future. Unless you have no questions....

This month, let us look in some depth at exactly how to start a collection. First off, this is a hobby. It is not a medium to get your dander up, to honk your horn at your fellow collector. It is meant to make you happy and to help you relax after hours. That said, let's see how to make a happy collection.

The first thing to do is to read up a bit about telecard collecting — this Moneycard Collector magazine is a good place to start. Choose the card subjects you read about that might interest you. Write 'em down! There are way over 10,000 U.S. cards already and it is certain that you can't collect them all. So select a few areas to investigate. Stamp collectors call them topics. Or themes. Maybe famous landmarks fascinate you — there are lots of cards showing this nation's landmarks. Perhaps cards depicting candy bars are fascinating; maybe lenticular (moving) cards or holographic cards fascinate you. Or how about movie characters or sports figures on cards? Many collectors strive to collect all the cards from a certain telephone card issuer, such as all the Cable & Wireless cards, or all the NYNEX cards.

Look at the 10,000-plus cards pictured in full color in the new Moneycard Collector Catalog. Don't write down everything. Try to limit your interests for a while. You can add others later. Learn everything you can about the field you finally select.

After you have a list of what interests you, you should investigate whether you want all of the cards in your selected area, or just some. That will depend upon your budget. If you have a big budget, maybe you can tackle them all, but most of us have to be happy (there's that word again) with a smaller bite. A good way to lop off lots of expenditures is to collect just the lower face value items. Leave the top face values to those who can afford to collect hundred dollar bills! That will open up the possibility of collecting more topics or telephone companies simultaneously. There is usually plenty of time to complete collections later, if your budget increases.

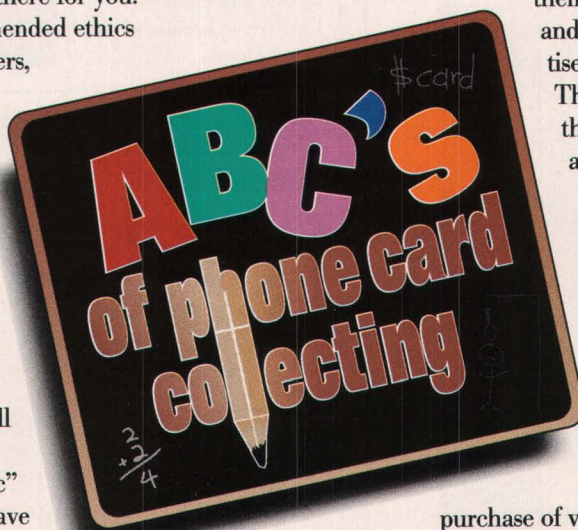

Where do you get cards now that you've decided what to collect? There are several sources: the easiest is to ask dealers to send you their pricelists and order from them. Go through Moneycard Collector and especially the large number of advertisers in the Moneycard Collector Catalog. This is the hassle-free way and gives you the widest selection in the shortest amount of time.

You can search the large discount stores, like Venture, Target, Best Buy, Walgreen's, etc., for special offers that include promotional telecards, that is, cards that promote a good or a service, either by offering a card packaged with another item or by requiring customers to send in proof of purchase to obtain a card.

Phonecards given away with the purchase of videos are a good source, and Coca-Cola is usually doing some sort of promotion somewhere. The Sunday newspaper supplements are good sources of telecards. Usually you must buy a product, but sometimes all you need to do is ask. Occasionally, a test drive or an oil change is all you need to do to secure a telecard. Such cards are often flimsy, and they don't fit into a "tight" subject area or topic.

You can meet other collectors on the Internet, on AOL, or on CompuServe. Buying or trading with collectors is a time consuming process, and usually more complex than buying from a dealer. Usually trading is involved and lots of jockeying goes on to make certain both parties are satisfied. But you'll meet lots of nice people in the process!

We'll talk at some length about these venues and about buying, selling, and trading in a later column. See you next month! In the meantime, send us some topics to cover or some specific questions that you've been wondering about.

How to Use The Moneycard Collector Price Guide

Price listings in the Moneycard Collector Price Guide are provided only as a guide and are based on price lists supplied by several dealers around the world and on other market information. Listings without prices will be completed as suitable market information becomes available.

Of course, actual card values must be determined by the buyer and seller, and the Moneycard Collector Price Guide is just that - a guide.

Polaroid card ... More than meets the eye?

Picture this! GTI Telecom issued its Polaroid hologram phonecard, one of the first hologram cards, in December 1994. The cards were given away free with the purchase of film. As I understand it, you needed to buy a double pack of film to get a five-minute card, a triple pack to get a 20-minute card or a five-pack to get a 60-minute card. There was a coupon that had to be filled out and returned along with your register receipt in order to receive the card.

One phone call with what seemed a simple question regarding this card has caused me to ask many questions over the past weeks. I have gotten conflicting information regarding the different colors of these cards. While the Moneycard Collector Catalog lists the card (GTI Pr35), what is not stated in the catalog is this card came in several colors — at least five, maybe six.

Based on discussions with collectors, the Polaroid hologram cards are yellow, green, blue, red, orange and maybe a shade of purple or lilac. And now there's even more to think about regarding the colors: I also have had a report of the cards coming in different shades of each of these above-mentioned colors. But, as reported by another source, the different shades only occur if the card is exposed to excessive light. Some of the colors are more rare and therefore more valuable, but even that is a point of debate.

Some say the red card is the most rare, yet others say it's the — yet to be confirmed — purple or lilac card. Were the rare colors the cards with greater calling time? Where they rare because there were less issued of a particular color? The quantity of each denomination and each color is still unknown to me, and obviously, wasn't known when the catalog went to press.

This is the kind of card that the more I find out, the less I realize I know. Any readers or collectors who have evidence to help me clear up some of these questions are welcome to call, write, or e-mail me at the numbers and addresses on this month's Contents page. Not only would we like to set the record straight about this interesting card, we want to update it for the next edition of the catalog.

As corrections and suggestions for the second edition of our catalog come in via all sorts of methods — e-mail, telephone, fax and mail — it can be a little overwhelming. (Mistakes! Oh no!) However, we realize, as should the readers, that the first edition of the catalog is the beginning of something special, not an ending.

When looking back at the amount of information provided in this catalog, it is an excellent reference tool for anyone interested in moneycards. And every correction or suggestion, no matter how small, will only make the second edition better and more complete. Everyone who submits information helps make my job easier. So I say thank you, and keep them coming!

Le Monde Des Télécartes

The specialist for French Phonecards

For the past 10 years, we have provided to thousands and thousands of collectors around the world information about French and international phonecards.

Telcarte Cote Magazine

Telcarte Cote Magazine provides all the information (card prices, news, new phonecards) you'll need every two months about French and overseas phonecards (on 64 pages in full color). Subscribe now and receive the magazine regularly!

Single issue price : 25 Fr ($4.20).

Subscription for 1 year (6 issues) : ~~150~~ Fr. 130 Fr ($21) including overseas postage.

PHONECOTE 98

"Phonecote 1998" is the catalog reference for the prices and details about French phonecards. Each year more than 20,000 copies are sold. In it you'll find more than 4,000 photographs of cards and almost 10,000 card prices! And all in full color! Here's the one book with all the cards and the one with all the specialities and varieties. This 600 page publication is available from dealers or by mail. Price for the 2 volumes : 120 Fr ($20). Shipment overseas : 30 Fr ($5).

CD-ROM PHONECOTE 98

The same information available directly from your computer! Includes more than 4,000 photographs. With the brand new 1998 edition you can easily print out the details of your entire French card collection. Available for only 249 Fr ($41). Shipment overseas is free if you buy it together with the printed edition!

Specialist for order mail sales

Ask us for our list of cards available by mail order. For the past 6 years, we print 3 or 4 times a year a special mail order sale list, one that is very complete for French Phonecards. If you want to receive it free, just send us your name and address. Check it out this example : 100 different French Phonecards, used : price 180 Fr ($30)

Disney® Cards

Available throughout the year are several Series of Disney Cards. Each series is comprised of 5 used prepaid cards from SEPA Téléphonique (French).

The series of 5 cards : 75 Fr ($12.50).

The 5 different series : 295 Fr ($49.50).

The 10 different series : 550 Fr ($91).

The 14 different series : 695 Fr ($115).

HOT CARDS

Welcome to Hot Cards. This list represents the most heavily sold and traded cards within the last month. Due to the size of the Price Guide, it is often very time-consuming for readers to make their way through the listings in a short amount of time. We created HOT CARDS to provide you trends information quickly, accurately and concisely. Prices reflected on this page are dealer asking/selling prices for only this month.

TAPPING THE NETWORKS

MLMs with a Lone Star flavor

Although several multi-level marketing companies have fallen on hard times recently, two Texas-based companies are trying their hands at network marketing with a telecommunications twist. Here's some information about Team MultiCom of San Antonio and Hello World of Plano.

The fact that others have stumbled hasn't deterred Bruce Gore and Larry Canamar. Gore is president and founder of TEAM MULTI-COM, a new network marketing company located in San Antonio, Texas, and Canamar is its director of marketing.

According to Canamar, work began on MultiCom about 17 months ago and the firm was formally launched in September. Canamar was formerly employed with AT&T and Southwestern Bell and has been with Team MultiCom for the past six months. The new company will sell prepaid cards, phonecard vending machines, internet access and other related communications services.

Canamar says that Team MultiCom is designed to be a product-driven company with less of a focus on recruiting. The company plans to have three different types of customers: retail customers for products and services only; customers who want to be just a reseller and not be a part of the network organization; and customers who want to sell products and services while building an organization.

In the early going, the majority will be the latter, says Canamar but in the longer term he expects 30 percent of revenues to be generated by retail sales and 10-12 percent through distributors. Telecommunications supplier to Team MultiCom will be Cable & Wireless. Its utility card will be priced 19 cents per domestic minute. "For 1998 we hope for $40 million in revenues, which we think may be conservative," says Canamar.

Like other network marketing companies in the prepaid business, Team MultiCom will be encouraging their reps to make custom cards. Since the launch on Sept. 5, the company had already done 10 custom cards, one of which is a card marking the 75th anniversary of the Texas Open Golf Tournament.

When asked why he believes that Team MultiCom will be successful where others have failed, Canamar replies, "We studied over 30 different successful MLM companies. And let's face it, there are more than enough black eyes and we didn't want to add to that. But when you see the successes that Mary Kay and Amway have generated it's very clear, it all comes down to customer service and education about the products."

HELLO WORLD is the network marketing arm of Solutioneering Inc. of Plano. The company was founded in 1993 by R. Steven Bell, a former senior vice president of Bell South, and has expanded into network marketing with a variety of prepaid and other products.

Anton and Donna Skell — many readers might recognize the names from the Skells' days as early members and guiding lights in AmeriVox — started with Hello World in July. They are vice presidents in Hello World's Direct Marketing division.

As a switch-based long-distance reseller, Hello World runs 12 million minutes a month through its switch, using seven different carriers, including MCI, Sprint, Westinghouse, USLD and Tel/Mex. Among Hello World's phonecard clients are the National Council for Negro Women, Christian Motorcyclists Association, the National Baptist Convention, Malone's Supermarkets, Danals Food Stores, and Newsweek magazine.

The company is the only endorsed and authorized phonecard of the Mexican American Grocers Association and its Hello World card targets the Hispanic population, featuring Spanish language marketing and directions.

The newest addition to the company's offerings is the Hello World Smart Card, which is billed as the "ultimate communications tool." The card combines enhanced services like voice mail, fax on demand, pager notification and conference calling with the ability to make long-distance calls, creating a virtual office at 25 cents a minute. The card comes in a $25 denomination.

Even though it has a strong phonecard presence, Hello World doesn't stop there. Independent representatives may also offer cellular phones, satellite dishes and health and travel benefits.

Hello World offers a variety of prepaid cards, including holiday phonecards in six different images and a variety of denominations ranging from 10 to 60 minutes.

MCI

WorldCom merger or not, cards are collectible

by Art Becker

An interesting rumor appeared recently in a message via an on-line information service. It said that MCI was getting out of the prepaid phonecard business. When contacted, a high level official of the company said that the rumor couldn't be further from the truth. If anything, MCI's prepaid card programs are expanding.

How that plays out in the future remains to be seen: MCI agreed Nov. 10, pending government approval, to be bought by WorldCom Inc. for $37 billion, making the deal the largest corporate merger in history.

But given the phonecard background of WorldCom, it's safe to say that phonecards will continue to be a major MCI business unit. WorldCom Inc. itself has been issuing phonecards for almost five years, and produces desirable phonecards such as the highly collectible Michael Jordan images.

The new company will be called MCI WorldCom and will boast more than $30 billion in annual revenue for 1998.

The merger, creating the second largest U.S. long distance company, is subject to the approval of MCI and WorldCom stockholders as well as approval from the Federal Communications Commission, the Justice Department and various state government bodies. In addition, the merger is subject to review by the European Commission. The companies anticipate that the merger will close within six to nine months.

The blockbuster WorldCom deal staved off offers by British Telecom and GTE, both also phonecard veterans. GTE is a founding member of the Global Chipcard Alliance (see "Baby Bell Notes," December 1997). BT Telecom has been issuing phonecards for well over a decade, and recently has been converting to chip phonecards, in England. (MCI and BT mutually have agreed not to proceed with their existing merger agreement. After the transaction closes, the merged company will become a non-exclusive distributor of MCI/BT's Concert Communications Services' products.)

It stands to reason that the phonecard future of the new company will be exciting. For collectors, MCI has had an exciting past, too.

MCI's first phonecards were issued in mid-1993. They were called PhoneCash, and had rather plain designs. These definitive phonecards now run about $50 each, or so, from dealers, assuming you can find any that have them. Like many early collectibles, they were a missed opportunity. You can still find the first MCI phonecards, but you have to look around.

Since then, MCI has issued an eclectic mix of phonecard designs. Some were a new PhoneCash series, while their later definitive cards became known as MCI PrePaid. Without question, though, the best-looking MCI cards are those they produced for other companies. These phonecards include the Rolling Stones series, the extensive Topps Stadium Club series, and phonecards to be sold in Navy Exchanges.

Another famous series was produced for 7-Eleven stores. The 7-Eleven cards had different long distance carriers, depending on where in the U.S. the store was located. The East Coast cards had service provided by MCI. The silver coin design was the same on all these 7-Eleven phonecards, while the carrier logo was prominently displayed on the reverse.

Current co-branded phone-cards include those produced for Rite-Aid, Shell, and Mobil. MCI's strategy is simple: to provide a total phonecard package, including point of sale and inventory management. For example, previously at Rite-Aid, when a customer wanted a phonecard, he would have to ask a cashier. The cashier would have to stop work, and try to locate the manager. If the manager could be found, he had to open a safe, take out a card, and then make a phone call to load it. Meanwhile, the customer was still waiting.

As you can imagine, this is not a customer-friendly approach. Wouldn't it be simpler to allow the customer to select a phonecard bubble-pack from a rack, and then have the cashier activate it at the register? Well, that's what MCI is providing.

With Mobil, MCI has taken phonecards a step further, offering a first-of-its-kind combination. MCI already produced Mobil-branded phonecards for sale at Mobil stations. Now, co-branded Mobil GO and MCI phonecards are one and the same. You can use this multi-purpose card to buy gasoline, goods and services from Mobil, and to make phonecalls using MCI. Since the popular GO cards are remote memory, as are the phonecards, both uses can be tracked by the same computer system. A similar philosophy created the new Kmart Cash card (November 1997 edition, "Quik Takes") The Kmart card is also an AT&T phonecard.

Test marketing for the Mobil-MCI card began Oct. 10 in service stations operated by Wallace Oil, Mobil's distributor in the St. Louis area. The cards come in $10, $25, $50 and $100 denominations, and the telephone time is rated at 25 cents per minute.

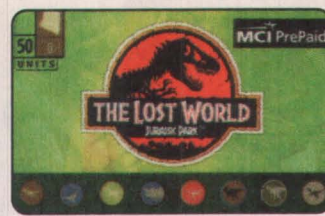

When asked what MCI was currently doing in the way of phonecards specifically aimed at the collector market, the company official was frank, and replied, "Nothing." The collector market, though perhaps of importance in the "early days," is now comparatively small in terms of the deals that MCI has with its various co-branded partners. MCI issues phonecards for usage, and not for collectors.

Many people feel that such a policy actually enhances the collectibility of MCI phonecards. They prefer to collect "real" — collecting items that have actually served a purpose, rather than merely having the potential to do so.

While it's true that some MCI cards with collectible designs, such as Batman, Dilbert, Beavis & Butthead and Lost World-Jurassic Park have recently been issued, this was along the lines of general merchandising, and not specifically aimed at phonecard collectors. Of course, the company is happy to do what it can to accommodate collectors, and estimates that up to half the calls they receive ordering phonecards are from collectors.

While this still pales in comparison to the number of phonecards distributed at point-of-sale locations, it should send a message to MCI and other major issuers that the collector market does have a real impact in promoting their card programs.

Along promotional-collectible lines, MCI distributed free five-minute cards to every fan attending Game 4 of the 1997 World Series in Cleveland, and offers MCI PrePays featuring the team logos of all Major League Baseball teams as the league's official telecommunications sponsor.

MCI phonecards are well worth collecting. They include historical cards, definitive cards, topics of all kinds, and co-branded cards, including multi-function cards. What more could a collector want?

DISNEY SMART CARD BEING DEVELOPED.

Plans by Disney to develop a Visa Cash program for the Disney-created town of Celebration, Fla., have sparked a lot of interest nationwide.

"We have been getting calls from all over the country," says David Stroud, first vice president in charge of marketing for SunTrust BankCards of Orlando, Fla.

Stroud says "Celebration Visa Cash" will be launched in the first quarter of 1998. The card was still being designed at press time.

"Celebration will be an ideal test market," says Dan Mahurin, executive vice president of community banking for SunTrust Banks of Central Florida. "All of the important elements necessary to achieve critical mass are present: residents, retail merchants, a cinema, post office, golf course, public school and a wellness facility. Since the community is forward-thinking, we expect the residents and merchants to warm up quickly to the convenience the chip-card technology promises."

Collectors, too, will warm up quickly to the first Disney stored-value card. The Visa Cash project at Celebration will feature both disposable and reloadable Visa Cash cards, according to SunTrust. Stroud hints that future SunTrust-related, and presumably Disney-related, Visa Cash cards could be designed as collectibles.

Celebration, designed and developed by The Celebration Co., a Walt Disney Co. subsidiary, embraces health, education, technology and a sense of community in a brand-new setting. When completed, the community could have 8,000 residents.

MARTALK SNAPS UP FRONTIER PREPAIDS.

No sooner said than done. Frontier Communications' Oct. 14 announcement that it would lay off 700 employees and divest "non-core product lines" was followed eight days later with the news that it would sell its retail prepaid calling card business to Smartalk Teleservices Inc. of Los Angeles by year's end. That essentially means that the Rochester-based company is getting out of issuing prepaid cards.

Frontier spokesman Randal A. Simonetti characterized the sale as "90 percent of (Frontier's) prepaid business." All that remains is a few small programs, he said.

Smartalk will pay Frontier $35 million in a cash transaction, subject to certain post-closing adjustments. The sale is anticipated to close by year end.

Under a separate agreement, the two companies have entered into a multi-year, carrier services arrangement. Simonetti declined to give figures on how much that deal might be worth to Frontier, but confirmed that since Frontier's network will be used to carry the time for the clients it is acquiring as well as part of Smartalk's current traffic, it is likely there will be Smartalk-branded cards with time by Frontier.

The sale means that a five-year agreement announced in early 1997 between Frontier and The Score Board Inc. has been terminated (See separate story, Page 41).

OPAL HIRES MARKETING DIRECTOR.

Opal Manufacturing Ltd. of Toronto, a manufacturer of vending and point-of-sales equipment for the prepaid card industry, has hired Linda McColligan as director of sales and marketing. Most recently, McColligan was associate director of prepaid services for Bell Canada and played a key role in developing prepaid products for Bell.

Linda McColligan

VISA CASH IN THE BRONX. The much-publicized Chase Manhattan-Citibank stored-value test on Manhattan's Upper West Side (Moneycard Collector, "Quick Takes," December 1997) is not the only SVC test in the Big Apple.

On Oct. 20, the U.S. Department of the Treasury's Financial Management Service, the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs and NationsBank announced the beginning of a one-year pilot to test the use of stored-value card technology at the Bronx Veterans Affairs Medical Center. This is the Treasury Department's first use of the stored-value technology as a federal collection mechanism.

NationsBank will operate the program using Visa Cash. The pilot will place Visa Cash in the hands of patients, physicians, visitors, volunteers and employees of the VA facility.

During the pilot, an estimated 25,000 cards will be issued and used to test numerous applications, including the combination of identification badge and electronic purse; vending machine acceptance; integrated cash registers and terminals; reloadable cards; and cashless ATMs that transfer cash value onto reloadable cards, rather than distribute currency.

Up to 4,000 reloadable cards will be used as identification badges, meal tickets, as well as personal patient checking accounts at the Bronx Medical Center. The stored value cards will be accepted at all operations run by the on-site Veterans Canteen Service, a division of the VA that supplies retail, food, clothing, other goods, and vending services in all 172 VA hospitals.

Visa Cash-branded cards that will be used at the Bronx Veterans Affairs Medical Center include (from left) meal ticket, patient funds and $10- and $20-denomination cards featuring the Preamble to the Constitution and Abraham Lincoln, respectively.

FRONTIER CANCELS PACT, PAYS SCORE BOARD. The sale of Frontier's prepaid business to Smarttalk Teleservices means $5.4 million in the coffers of The Score Board Inc.

To resolve the various mutual obligations to produce and distribute calling card products and to address outstanding issues relating to the usage of telecommunications services, Frontier will pay Score Board $5.4 million. As a result, Score Board will record a net gain of $5.5 million in the fourth quarter of 1997.

Score Board also announced it has reached an agreement to repurchase and retire $4 million in debentures. Separately, Score Board announced a $549,000 profit for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1997.

"We believe that the financial impact of the transactions, as well as our third-quarter profit, will allow us to meet the terms of the listing exception granted by NASDAQ," noted Score Board President and COO John F. White.

COLLECTORS IN TORONTO. The Greater Toronto Phonecard Club was formed in May and now consists of 17 members. The executive director is Paul Frater, and the club president is Jose (Joe) DeFreitas.

DeFreitas, along with dealers Ben Osato and Frank Atawand collector Louis Kurowski, initially formed the club. Frater says the club is trying to get Bell Canada to produce a high issue (100,000 at least) chip card to promote the hobby and the club. "We also plan to put on a phonecards-only show sometime in May, but a date has not been decided upon," Frater says. The club website — "it's in its infancy," Frater warns — can be viewed at <http://www.nettaxi.com/citizens/pfrater/gtpc/>.

FCC SETS COMPENSATION RATE. The FCC established a 28.4 cent rate as the default per-call compensation rate for subscriber 800 and access code calls made from payphones for the next two years. That is the rate at which payphone providers will be reimbursed by long distance carriers for coinless calls, unless there is a negotiated agreement specifying a different amount.

MCI submitted a study to the FCC that says the agency's payphone compensation plan "results in rates that are too high and costs consumers far more than any benefits that may occur from increased availability of payphones." MCI also issued a warning that "starting Oct. 7, payphone providers will be able to charge... as much as they want for local calls." It said that although studies show the actual cost for providing local coin service is about 17 cents and the real cost for 800 or access code calls is about 11 cents, "payphone providers say that they will charge anywhere from 35 cents to $1.50 or more, resulting in an annual windfall of at least $1.3 billion."

COMMKEY TARGETS NICHE MARKETS. A newly formed company, CommKey Corp. of Los Angeles, specializes in prepaid telecommunications services for the hotel/hospitality industry, educational institutions and the cellular/wireless market. One of its founders, President and CEO Joe Clark, is the former executive vice president and one of the founders of Global Telecommunications Solutions. The company seeks to provide prepaid, enhanced long-distance services which can be incorporated into smart card programs to create a multi-functional, rechargeable prepaid card. It is seeking a patent on its CommKey product, a combination electronic room key, prepaid phonecard and debit card. The plastic card can be constructed with magnetic-stripe, chip or hole-punch technology, depending on the the specific hotel's requirements.

MEDALLIONS & PHONECARDS. A new program by the Highland Mint combines the collectibles of phonecards and medallions within a baseball setting. Cal Ripken Jr. and Ken Griffey Jr. were the first to be featured; others include Alex Rodriguez, Mike Piazza, Chipper Jones, Greg Maddux, Frank Thomas and Derek Jeter. There are 2,500 each of the eight medallion-phonecard combos.

The cards are 15-minute Score Board cards ("New Issues," November 1997).

The 39-millimeter gold-plated bronze medallions feature each player's likeness, name, uniform number and signature on one side and the Major League Players Association logo and a serial number on the reverse. Each medallion and phonecard, as well as a certificate of authenticity, come in a velure box.

Cal Ripken Jr., shown here, and seven others are depicted on 15-minute Score Board phonecards and gold-plated bronze medallions that are presented in handsome velure boxes.

MTA NOTES SUBWAY SERIES FIGURES. The New York Metropolitan Transit Authority says it has sold out of all 300,000 Subway Series cards (Moneycard Collector, November 1997). There were 100,000 each of the three $15-denomination cards issued, including more than 60,000 handed out at the first Mets/Yankees game, according to Dick Trenery, MTA's chief of MetroCard sales.

While the MTA sold out of the cards, some were sold through Modell's and other out-of-system (non-MTA owned) stores. Writer Steve Fritz noticed a Woolworth's still selling some long after the event, so there could still be some for sale at the original issue price.

PROMOS & OFFERS

I just had to write to tell you that there are several thousand phonecard collectors who are also "refunders." While we delight in collecting mint cards, we also collect used phonecards ... lots of them.

As refunders, one of our main hobbies is saving money. For that reason, we use a lot of our phonecards to save money on our telephone bills. This means there are a lot of used phonecards being traded. Not a lot of information is published about collecting and trading used phonecards. Why not?

I've operated a used phonecard exchange for one and a half years now, trading with more than 100 collectors. Also, I've traded my used phonecards to some dealers and collectors who aren't refunders. Most of them wanted promotional phonecards that I had obtained through "refunding." There is a demand for them. So please, recognize us and don't overlook us.

What better explanation of this new column? Judy Medeiros of Marion, Va., a collector and contributor to this column, wrote that letter earlier this fall. In April and May 1996, refunders Medeiros, Melissa Beauchesne and Elizabeth Megyesi — who offers an on-line phonecard shopper column — all contributed to a two-part story about promotional cards that drew strong reader response.

"Why not?" she asks.

Why not, indeed, we answered. Here, then, is the first of our new "Promos & Offers" column, which will appear every other month. Anybody who wants to supply information is invited to send it to Editor, Moneycard Collector, Box 783, Sidney, Ohio 45365, or fax it to (937) 498-0879, or e-mail tomw@amospress.com.

At least in the Chicago area, the Walgreen's drugstore chain started a "Phone Card Book" promotion. Customers who bought 12 types of products in a special rebate program could get phonecards. The offer runs through Dec. 27.

Buying various fragrances (valued at $ 25 or more) earned consumers a 30-minute Walgreen's card picturing a perfume bottle. A $ 9.99 (Golden Gate Bridge) / 30-minute card was earned for purchasing items such as two specific Disney videos, or an AT&T cordless phone, or two pairs of Personal Optics eyeglasses, any of three specific Tozai electronic products, 48 12-ounce cans of Coke products, or certain Kodak cameras. A $9.99/30-minute card displaying with familiar Hallmark logo was the reward for buying two boxes of greeting cards. Purchasing three multi-packs of Energizer batteries earned buyers a 30-minute card showing the Energizer Bunny, and buying a Nicorette/Nicoderm Starter Kit got you a special card showing those products.

Doughboy salutes doughboys

The Pillsbury Doughboy is holding a red telephone on this card issued by Global Com International. There is no carrier listed on the back of the card, which says that time expires 12/31/98. A representative answering the customer service number on the card identified the carrier and said that the card had been given to military personnel. It is a different Doughboy image than the offer that was available earlier in 1997.

Mickey & more

A Mickey's Funline card, with services by AT&T, does not have long distance time, but allows callers to hear three stories by Disney characters. The cards show Mickey and Minnie, and have the "Mickey Stuff for Kids" logo. The offer expires Dec. 31, or while supplies last, but requests had to be made Nov. 30, 1997. Buyers must send in a request form, two proofs of purchase of other Mickey products and $1.99 per card.

Here are some more promotional cards, although some of the cards might not be available by the time this edition gets to readers: Kellogg's 5-minute NASCAR card by PromoTel; Batman/Duracell three-card set offer (through Wal-Mart, all 10-minute cards, another offer that expired Nov. 30); plus a variety of others: Vaseline Intensive (15 minutes); Orelida, Senekot and Chlortrimetron.

Phantom phonecard

Here's an offer for free phone time without the card. The information was found on a bottle of Riunite Wine, along with $1 coupon off turkey or ham. "To receive a 10 minutes free phone time, good internationally, dial: 1-800-508-5004 for activation and PIN. To use your free 10 minutes dial: 1-888-481-1038, follow the prompt and enter your PIN. Limit one 10-minute activation per person. You must activate from your home phone. You may also purchase additional time. Time is by ALTA Communications Group Inc."

Also, a Kroger supermarket sales flier in Virginia was offering 10-minute Kroger/Sprint-branded phonecards with membership in the Kroger video rental club. That offer was only good for a week, but other similar deals abound. Keep looking!

CORPORATE CORNER

As 1997 comes to a close, it's time once again to look back at some of the more popular cards that have entered the "Corporate Corner" during the past year.

1997 started off in a very big way for Image Telecards. January was the month when its very first release was featured and it was only the beginning for the very popular ongoing Tootsie Roll card series. The three-card Tootsie Roll Anniversary set hit the "Corporate Corner" in January and then stormed onto "America's Most Wanted" in March and stayed there through April. Other popular cards from January that sold well for dealers were Tell One, Inc.'s Subway Anniversary card and Budweiser/Monday Night Football by GAF Telecommunications.

February's column didn't yield any "America's Most Wanted" cards but featured some interesting and popular cards such as LCI's Jimmy Dean Sausage and CDG's Exxon Superflo Motor Oil.

March was the month, as a lot of collectors will remember, that the Burger King/Toy Story card by Tell One Inc. was featured. That card was red hot from the time it was pictured in "Corporate Corner" and stayed hot through the month of May as it spent two months on "America's Most Wanted" and was sold out completely!

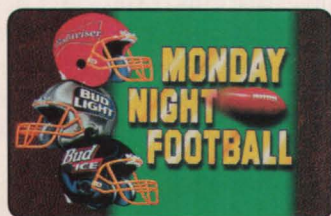

April's "Corporate Corner" rolled around with cards that for the most part were not readily available to dealers so collectors literally had to try to participate in the actual promotions in order to obtain said cards. CDG's Toys R Us and ACMI's Hormel Foods were two such cards.

Collectors of beer themed-cards apparently loved the Foster's Beer card by CDG in the May "Corporate Corner." This card was popular enough to make "America's Most Wanted" in June. Also of note in May came another Burger King card from Tell One Inc. featuring the Cartoon Network.

June was a finger-lickin' good month for Telenova as its KFC card was featured.

Collectors found it tasty enough to help it make AMW in both August and September. Also featured in June was the MGM Lioncard by Innovative Telecom. Scarcity left many collectors scrambling to find this one.

As mouth watering as June was, the July "Corporate Corner" was probably the sweetest month for collectors and certainly one of the most popular. Three of the cards featured took collectors by storm. Image Telecards was represented with not one but two more Tootsie Roll cards, Captain Tootsie and Life of the Party. Not to be outdone, Creative Communications unleashed the very popular Milky Way Lite card. All three cards blew onto "America's Most Wanted" in September; the Milky Way card stayed for October.

August and September were relatively quiet, as is usually the case. However a couple of cards worth noting were Grapevine Telecards Maui Marathon and Caymen Resources two-card McDonalds/Cross Air set.

October heated up a bit with three very popular cards which included Karis Communications' Mountain Dew card, USACard's Cracker Jack Convention card and Frontier's Jack Daniels Grill/TGI Fridays card. All three cards are popular. The Mountain Dew card bubbled onto "Americas Most Wanted" in November and also sold out.

A lot of the cards mentioned might still be available from your favorite dealer, so consult the dealer directory in this issue.

1997 was another very interesting year for this hobby. Look for more of the same in 1998!

Remember, this hobby/industry is still only a handful of years old and there's never been a better time to enjoy this hobby than right now. Happy collecting!

PIGSKIN PERILS

Telecards try to dodge trading card pitfalls

by Steve Fritz

This season doesn't look like a good one for the National Football League. Television ratings are down. News reports football stadiums have something they haven't had in two decades — empty seats. If that's happening for the game in general, should anyone be surprised that NFL-licensed phonecards are any different? They shouldn't be.

"We haven't granted any new licenses for football phonecards," says Players Inc. Vice President Clay Walker. "In fact, we took some away because they just weren't creating the kind of money we thought they should have."

Players Inc. is the licensing arm of the NFL Players Association. If you wanted to put out a set of phonecards with six or more NFL players on them, you have to get permission from them. A Players Inc. license can be worth millions of dollars if handled properly, and the licensing organization demands money in advance. So does the league itself, or you can't get permission to use such things as the players' uniforms or the team logos. Unfortunately, it appears that after four years of licensing phonecards the plug has been pulled because it just wasn't big enough for either group.

Since 1993, Players Inc. has licensed IEM Telecomm, Sprint, Score Board Inc., the Furst Group and others to produce sets. Walker says none of the companies have hit basic levels that are part of their agreements. He also will be the first to tell you he doesn't understand why. He also notes he has given his trading card licensees permission to sub-license phonecards, particularly Score Board, Topps and Upper Deck. Calls to all three companies reveal they haven't done any phonecards for the 1997 NFL season.

Sprint, the official NFL telecommunications provider, came out with a series of cards for a General Mills promotion as well as another 12-card series to insert into retail Spree cards ("Corporate Corner" and "New Issues," November 1997), but other than those efforts, things have been on the quiet side.

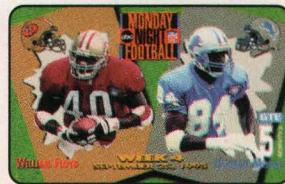

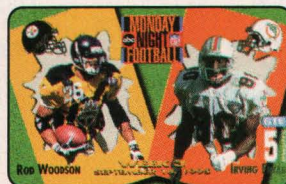

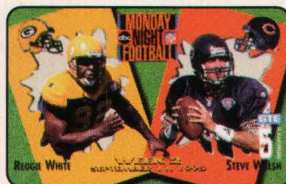

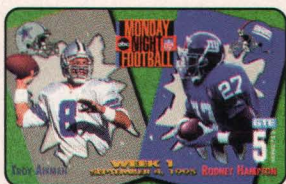

In the absence of new material, bargain hunters can look to fill in gaps in their collections or to inexpensively introduce young football fanatics to a new hobby.

Telecard dealers say that despite the lull in gridiron-themed cards, there are specific cards and players that continue to be pursued by collectors. The overall softness of the market comes down to one reason, those dealers say.

"The reason is simply the overproduction of the cards," says Stephen Schwartz of Sears Phone Card Department. "Companies simply make too many when they put them out."

"The cards that are hot are hot all the time," notes Gennie English of Phonecards Plus, "you can't get enough of them. The ones that are lesser known or are rookies that are just establishing themselves, you can't get rid of them. Brett Favre is as hot as Nolan Ryan, Ken Griffey Jr., Cal Ripken and Michael Jordan. Drew GTE; Monday Night Football four-card series; 5 minutes each; 1,995 of each; July 1995.

Bledsoe is hot. Not even Troy Aikman and Emmitt Smith are that popular. Yet when it comes to cards I can sell, I can sell anything with Nolan Ryan on it and the guy hasn't played in how many years? Dan Marino's getting pretty good, but no one has reached the level of Nolan Ryan."

"I don't really understand it either," says Schwartz. "The collectors of Dan Marino tend to collect the sports cards more than the phonecards. I really don't understand why. There's just not the crossover there should be. I think that one of the problems is hobby shops don't carry the phonecards."

English thinks that the habits of the trading card hobby might have a lot to do with the problems with football-related phonecards.

"Too much, too quick," she states. "Score Board flooded the market when there weren't enough collectors. Then Becketts came out with a price guide which I thought was pretty reasonable. Then the cards started to appear below what Becketts was pricing them. As soon as that happened, the prices just dropped. It ended up giving the phonecards a bad name among dealers and collectors."

She sees a rosier future. "I think what's going to happen is if you take everything Score Board made and put them away for a while, eventually they are going to go up because it looks like those cards are the only ones that are going to be available. Ultimately, it's going to come around."

"Personally, I love sports. Don't bother calling me on Sundays because I won't answer the phone," adds English. In fact, she is proud to admit one of the prizes in her collection is a football-related phonecard. The card features one of the top 1996 NFL draft choices.

"One of the things I have in my collection is the $1,996 Press Pass card of Eddie George," she boasts. "For an Eddie George collector that's his ultimate card. When I go to a show and put it up for sale, people are searching their credit cards to see if they have enough credit in their account to get it. I know sooner or later I'm getting $2,500 for it."

Ernie Rose of the Wisconsin-based United America Cards, echoes English's concerns. "They (Score Board) made too many of them. They flooded the market." But that's not to say that collectors are ignoring football phonecards, he says.

"There was a Green Bay card called 'Return To Glory,'" says Rose, who's proud to say he's a Packers fan. "It didn't mention the company that put it out. It mentioned the city of Green Bay and had a football. It sold very well for me throughout the United States and not just Wisconsin."

"We have over 400 different football-related phonecards on our price list. So, there's a lot of them," says Sears' Schwartz. "The hottest ones are the ones issued by IEM Telecomm, the American Bowl Series. They made 5,000 of them and it was really before people got into phonecard collecting. The set of four is worth about $125. We also have had a good demand for the Men of Destiny cards. They put out about 100 of them and they are some of our recent hottest sellers. They only go for about $10 a piece with many of them only $4 or $5."

Phil Scaffetta of Arizona-based Fon Fun points to his customers' interest in early GTE cards, including four that were issued during the first four weeks of the 1995 NFL season to promote Monday Night Football and were packaged with trading cards. "These cards have been selling well at shows and to our customers," he notes.

Score Board's "4 Sport" series, issued in November 1994 and featuring football, basketball, baseball and hockey players, also has been a good seller, he says. Those cards come in eight-card sets in each $1, $2, $3, $4 and $5 denominations, Scaffetta says. Each denomination features different action shots of the athletes, with quarterback Trent Dilfer and running back Marshall Faulk representing football.

There's also the new NFL "Quarterback Club" 12-card series from Sprint mentioned above, which features a dozen players and inserted in specially marked packages of $10 and $20 Spree retail phonecards. This set could be something collectors are interested in, but Schwartz isn't holding his breath.

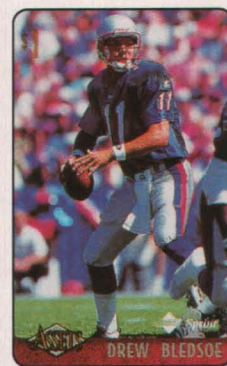

"I think it's just a matter of whether they do the right thing and destroy the unsold ones rather than putting them on the market very, very cheap," says Schwartz. "A lot of times they do that to recover their expenses. One of the problems with the Sprint cards in the past is quantities have come on to the market after their sell time supposedly was over. A good example of that was the last Super Bowl card."

While some football phonecards sell as well as non-sports phonecards, none have sold exceptionally well, he adds. "I'm surprised. I really think sports memorabilia and sports card collectors should buy sports phonecards, too. These cards actually have a legal tender aspect where regular sports cards don't at all. Also, the phonecards are numbered and in smaller quantities than trading cards."

In the meantime, it looks like football-related phonecards, much like the game itself, is in for a rough road in the short term. As fan interest revives, though, football-themed phonecards should be suited up and ready to run into the game.

MTA unveils Jackie Robinson, Spin City cards

New York MTA; Michael J. Fox-Spin City; $15 denomination; 500,000 issued; October 1997.

New York City's Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA) has added a new commemorative card featuring actor Michael J. Fox and his ABC-TV series "Spin City," which is not only supposed to be about the Big Apple's government, but actually is shot around town. MTA subway stations will sell 100,000 of the cards, the remainder will be sold by outside vendors. The MTA has plans for more entertainment-related transit cards in the future.

New York MTA; Jackie Robinson; denomination unknown; quantity undetermined; October 1997.

In a joint effort with the Queens County Savings Bank, the MTA has issued a card honoring baseball's Jackie Robinson. The MetroCard features a replica of Robinson's 1956 Topps card alongside a photo of him taking the subway to the Dodgers' old stomping grounds, Ebbetts Fields. The card is licensed by the Robinson family, Topps and Major League Baseball and initially will be sold at the bank's branches as well as the MTA Gift Shops at Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations. Over time, the cards will also be distributed through the MTA's 2,700 outside vendors throughout New York City. Final production figures had not been set as of press time.

Puzzles & chips

Precis Smart Card Systems; St. Louis Blues four-card puzzle set; $30 denomination each; 5,000 of each issued; October 1997.

The Oklahoma-based issuer's latest puzzle set is doubly collectible – not only a limited-edition puzzle set, but a first for major league hockey as well. The four cards form the National Hockey League's new St. Louis Blues logo at center ice, with historic logos on each of the individual cards. At the Blues' Kiel Center, fans can get the cards for $25, a $5 discount. More Blues-related cards are planned for later in the season. Precis also has followed up its initial OSU Precis Cache card with a three-card end-to-end puzzle set depicting action poses by a variety of Oklahoma State athletes. There were 3,500 of each $15-denomination card issued in October 1997.

BP debuts with two prepaids

BP Oil; Transformer Truck; $25, $50 and $100 denominations; ongoing mintage; November 1997.

BP Oil; Season's Greetings; $10 and $25 denominations; ongoing mintage; November 1997.

BP joins Mobil and Shell in the ranks of the major oil companies with prepaid magnetic-stripe gasoline cards. The national roll-out was Nov. 1 for the cards, which may be used at some 7,000 BP stations nationwide, although some stations in rural areas might not sell the cards. Cards are being sold at face value, with no current plans to offer discounts for higher denominations. Ideas for future cards include images of baseball's Cleveland Indians or college football's Ohio State Buckeyes, a BP spokesman said.

More than just coins

Tell-One; Coin Dealer Newsletter three-card set; five minutes each; 250 sets issued; October 1997.

Subscribers to Coin Dealer Newsletter family of publications received a free card for those buying or resubscribing to the "Bluesheet," "Greysheet" or "Greensheet" before Nov. 30. Those subscribing to one or all of the publications for three years got the complete set. Remaining cards were to be made available to collectors after Nov. 30.

Last Destiny card?

Destiny/Communication Advantage Consulting; Hong Kong-Singapore Fair; $10 denomination; 2,500 cards issued; June 1997.

Former Destiny Telecomm representatives Joyce Baker and David Doyle note that their Hong Kong-handover card was the official show card at the Singapore Book Fair's "All American Phone Card Fair" in June. The card is live, with services by Cable & Wireless. Only the first 1,250 cards, in folders, were released in Singapore, cards 1,251 and up were released in mainland China. Plans call for a three-card set, with the second card released in the United States and the third in Europe, both by Unified Worldwide.

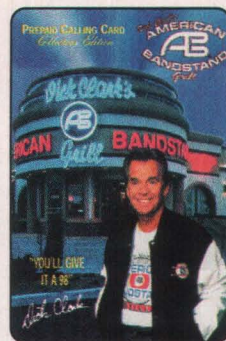

Glowing with Halloween greetings

USACard/TW PhoneCards; Happy Halloween, 10 minutes; 650 issued; October 1997.

Ready to rock 'n' roll

Leading Edge/Cable & Wireless; Dick Clark American Bandstand; 5 minutes; 2,000 issued; November 1997.

The first phonecard by Leading Edge Technologies also is the first card with ageless American Bandstand host Dick Clark pictured on it. The individually numbered cards feature a 10-second voice greeting by Dick Clark, and come packaged in a die-cut folder, with time by Cable & Wireless.

Collectors interested in obtaining these cards should contact their favorite dealer or consult Moneycard Collector's "Dealer Directory." Page 34.

Cards sprouting in Brussels

U S WEST / Bell Canada / KARS Unlimited; CardEx '97 three-card set; $1 denomination (U S WEST); $1 denomination (Bell Canada); and 20 units (KARS) 1,000 sets issued; October 1997.

Cable & Wireless/KARS Unlimited; Belgium CardEx '97; 20 units; 1,000 issued; October 1997.

Florida-based dealer KARS Unlimited, U S WEST and Bell Canada issued a three-card set in an attractive folder for the annual CardEx event. In addition to the 1,000 numbered sets, there were 250 additional U S WEST cards and 500 more Bell Canada cards of the same design. Time on the KARS card is by Cable & Wireless. In addition, KARS produced a separate card, also with C&W time, showing a collage of images framed by "Belgium."

DKK 5; 1,100
issued; May 1997.

TeleDanmark;
Fish; DKK 30;
ongoing
mintage; 1997.

TeleDanmark's transformation from magnetic-stripe to chip technology is marked by the last three private-issue cards for a German company depicting coins of European leaders Franz Vranitzky (Austria), Felipe Gonzales Marquez (Spain) and Ingvar Carlsson (Sweden). Both technologies work through the end of 1997. The first chip cards were issued as a set of three definitive cards with values of DKK 30, 50 and 100. The future will see only Danish chip-cards, except for magnetic-stripe cards treasured by collectors.

Collectors interested in obtaining these cards should contact their favorite dealer or consult Moneycard Collector's "Dealer Directory." Page 34.

Beginning of something big?

CK Telecom; VANS / Sexually Disoriented; $20 denomination (1,000 issued) and $50 denomination (500 issued); September 1997.

CK Telecom; VANS / Rock and Sea $20 denomination (1,000 issued) and $50 denomination (500 issued); September 1997.

Visual Arts Nova Scotia and CK Telecom have issued six initial designs in a series expected to run five years. VANS is an educational facility for artists and a portion of proceeds goes to fund public school visits.

Golden moment in Hong Kong

ACC/International Coins Ltd., Hong Kong; $1,000 Hong Kong Gold Coin; $2 denomination; 18,000 issued; July 1997.

Network services for the card, produced by International Coins Ltd. of Hong Kong, are by Canada's ACC. This card, promoting the $1,000 Hong Kong gold coin struck by the Royal Canadian Mint, should be a welcome addition to anyone who collects coins on cards. It comes on a folder showing the skyline of Hong Kong by day on the outside and by night on the inside. The card's reverse notes "Valid for calls within Canada and the U.S. only." The coin, commemorating the handover of Hong Kong to Chinese rule, is the first produced for Hong Kong by an entity other than the British Royal Mint.

Special sets from New Zealand

Telecom New Zealand; Animal Affection Series five-card set; various denominations; 250 collector sets issued; September 1997.

Telecom New Zealand; Portfolio Collector Series five-card set; various denominations; 250 collector sets issued; September 1997.

The issuer is cooking up a variety of dazzling new products, including these two sets. Each of the 250 "Collector Packs" for the two series comes in a folder, and each card says "International Collector Issue 1997" on the reverse. In addition to those limited editions, the telco also has produced the following of each card: (Animal Affection Series) $5 Black Rhinoceros, 120,000; $5 Snout to Snout Pigs, 100,000; $10 African Elephants, 115,000; $10 Horned Puffins, 1,750; and $20 Polar Bear and Cub, 50,000; (Portfolio Collector Series) $5 California Poppies, $5 Salvia and Marigolds, $5 Rapeseed in Flower, $10 Carpet of Bluebells, and $20 Lone Yellow Tulip; each 1,750.

Variations on a Stentor Christmas

Stentor's Hello cards for Christmas 1997 appeal to kids of all ages.

Several varieties of each design are available. (See chart below.)

Some cards are branded with the logos of different members of the Stentor Alliance. Other variations are in packaging and the magnetic-stripe encoding.

Cards listed as "Stentor" do not carry an individual company brand and can be sold nationwide. Cards listed under Stentor members carry that company's logo, and are only be sold in that region.

All cards were issued November 1997 and all are ms/re type cards. Magnetic stripes are encoded in either English or French.

Strong showing

Event Masters Limited; Disney Hercules three-card set; $5NZ denomination each; 1,000 sets issued in folder plus 500 loose sets; September 1997.

The limited edition of these images — compared with earlier print runs up to 10,000 — has caused them to be "essentially sold out in advance," the issuer notes. Cards feature Hercules, Megara and Hydra from the animated Disney movie.

PHONES & LOTTERIES

Prepaid phonecards usually are available in a variety of denominations. It is a general truism that demand for high-denomination cards is the smallest.

In Hungary, the national telco MATAV was selling its highest-value chip-based phonecard (120 units) for HUF 1,100 (about $5.67), giving a discount of HUF 100 over the normal unit price. MATAV wanted to change the price to the normal unit cost of HUF 1,200 (about $6.18) and also increase sales.

How to accomplish this difficult task? By teaming up with marketing consultant Imre Kokényesi to create the "Arany" lottery game. From July 15 to Dec. 31, 1996, an aggressive phonecard campaign was splashed across Hungary in newspapers and magazines, on television and radio, and in phonecard outlets. The idea was to sell phonecards that also served as a lottery ticket. A lottery number was printed on the card's obverse, together with the serial number. Buyers could check daily newspaper listings to see if his phonecard had won.

The reverses of the cards showed 10 different dazzling gold designs, creating an added element of collecting excitement. Another collecting wrinkle: Some cards were issued with an overprint. Each card design had a mintage of 100,000, and 82,999 of each issue sold as a regular card. Of the remaining number, overprints were issued in mintages of 10,000, 5,000, 2,000 and 1, making these cards even harder to find.

Collectors must decide for themselves how to collect these cards. The smallest collection could be just one random card from the series, while someone else might want to collect one of each of the 10 designs or even the whole set of overprint varieties, which would be a difficult task indeed.

In the lottery, customers had chances to win free subscriptions to the Magyar Hirlap newspaper, discounts at the Centrum department store chain and 100,000 HUF (Forints), or about $515 U.S., in cash each week. All registered callers were entered into another drawing held at the end of the promotion with a fully functioning 48-gram, 14-karat gold phonecard as the prize. After the first 10 weeks, the game was extended for 12 more weeks and the weekly cash prize increased to 150,000 Forints, plus prizes of five Centrum vouchers worth 100,000 Forints each and a gold ingot worth 1 million Forints.

Even if a phonecard was not a lottery winner, customers still had a limited-edition card which could be used for calling. To promote the cards' collectibility, the Centrum chain offered discounts on purchases if shoppers presented a used card from the promotion.

In the end, there were no losers. Customers got a HUF 1,200 card for the Forints they paid, and everything else could be considered an additional benefit. And MATAV was able to increase sales of their 120-unit cards by 20 percent. Newspaper and department store sales rose, too.

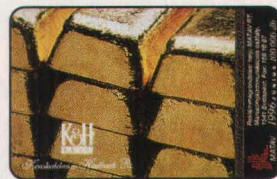

The contest was successful enough that a second version was launched this past July.

All MATAV Arany lottery phonecards were 120 units, with 100,000 printed, although overprint variations existed in quantities of 10,000, 5,000, 2,000 and 1. All were issued in June 1996.

SCA Promotions (SCA)

Since 1994, SCA's telecast division has successfully produced broadcast programs for a wide variety of commercial clients in the U.S., Canada and Great Britain. It provides coverage to the carriers of phone time in a phonecard promotion. Such coverage indemnifies the telecommunications company in the event that the usage of phone time in a phonecard program exceeds agreed-upon levels. The effect of this unique over redemption product has been to reduce the overall cost of phonocard promotions and make them more attractive to companies wishing to use prepaid cards as a means to promote the sale of their products.

Many of the issuers in which SCA has played a pivotal role are not listed here, but rather under the carriers, e.g. the two Gillette Final Four promotions are listed under Sprint (SPR). Other SCA clients include: Coca-Cola, Orr-Ide, Johnson & Johnson, Tetley, Tex and Comp USA.

Listed here are the programs in which SCA's name has figured most prominently.
