We've reported in these pages some of the recent industry blues — OmniTel going out of business, the bankruptcies of companies such as HT Technologies, and, more recently, Voice Telephone Co. But we submit that not everything is gloom, despair and agony. For every failure, there is a success. Some examples: The Score Board Inc. has been re-energized by its recent alliance with Frontier Communications. A few months ago, Sprint announced that it had sold its 100 millionth prepaid card. A glance at the "Corporate Corner" and "New Issues" sections every month shows that the market is still booming with new applications, fresh ideas and exciting images.

Any new industry is going to have its successes and failures to build upon and to learn from, and the prepaid phonecard industry is no different. When a phonecard company goes out of business, it certainly can have a direct effect on card users. The impact on card collectors isn't nearly as clear — a historic, much-desired, expired, mint telecard from a company that subsequently goes out of business, perhaps years after that card was issued, might still be perceived as valuable and desirable. A card that forfeits its intrinsic value does not necessarily surrender its collectibility.

On the other hand, a card perceived as mediocre because of high volume, poor design, gimmickry or a variety of other factors is not going to attract collectors just because its issuer goes out of business. Scarcity forced by bankruptcy does not automatically ensure collectibility — there has to be something worth collecting. Of course, "What is collectible?" is a topic guaranteed to provoke endless debate.

The topic of expired Visa Cash stored value cards is a hot one among dealers. In our January 1997 edition, when we reported on NationsBank's principles for card availability, production, and disposal, we also noted in this column our stand on SVCs. We quote again:

"People who buy such cards are exchanging one form of currency for another. Currency should not expire." If all moneycard issuers felt the same, a lot of the current debate would be irrelevant. There would be mint cards and used cards, a tidy arrangement.

For card users, there is a compromise for issuers who need expiration dates to make SVCs fit into their programs: Offer to redeem expired cards for their remaining value. Levy a service fee if you must, but don't leave the customer stranded.

For card collectors, that solution doesn't avoid a variety of questions, including the robust debate over how such moneycards should be valued. At the end of last year, NationsBank Olympic Visa Cash cards expired and recently, the company offered up the expired, emptied cards for sale to the public. Cataloguer Victoria Stone takes up the discussion in this month's "Words on Numbers."

Beware the Prepaid Gasoline Card MLM! Recent postings on the Internet indicate there are some network marketing companies selling prepaid cards designed for purchasing gasoline and trumpeting a "ground floor business opportunity." A reader in Dayton reports that he recently called one such company only to be offered a prepaid card "that works at most service stations," a case of gasoline additive and a chance to build his own organization, all for $227. Our reader, however, is also an experienced network marketer, and says that as far as he's concerned this scheme is illegal because it is not focused on retail sales but rather selling within and on building an organization.

No cards of this type have been seen by Moneycard Collector and frankly we are skeptical of their existence. The Shell and Mobil cards rely on expensive company-owned infrastructures and it is unlikely that any other private brand of gas moneycard is going to work at their locations. As well, there would have to be an accounting settlement process. That's great if you are a VISA Cash and are structured for such settlements. But a private gas moneycard from an NMC? We have our doubts.

Collectors should seriously consider SVCs

I appreciate all of your coverage of stored-value cards. As a collector of both SVCs and phonecards, I would like to encourage collectors to consider seriously the importance of collecting SVCs. They are not a prepaid card that represents credit of a service, as is a phonecard. They are electronic cash, which may be used for numerous services or products. The concept is inherently different from phone time. I hope that future SVCs will incorporate phone time as a function of the smart-card technology.

It appears possible that separate groups of collecting will develop for SVCs and phonecards, just as collectors select specific themes. Many people understand the comparison of collecting SVCs to money, but few people understand a phonecard collector's passion for phonecards.

While this publication is doing a great job of educating the collecting public, few dealers are selling SVCs. Many collectors rely on dealers for advice. I hope more dealers will begin to service this market. It will be exciting to watch as the world moves to smart-card technology.

Greg Pelischek, Hutchinson, KS

We believe that the distinction between stored-value cards and prepaid phonecards is not a yawning chasm – indeed some of the Visa Cash products offered at the 1996 Olympics could be used to make phone calls. Whether you buy the promise of phone time on a remote-memory card or the promise of cash stored electronically on a chip card, you are exchanging one form of currency for another. We encourage collectors to do what they will do anyway – collect moneycards that please them – whether they be SVCs or phonecards.

HT bankruptcy painfully true

Your article on Page 41 of the March 1997 edition, "HT Technologies files bankruptcy petition" is, painfully, true.

Hannibal Communications 10-minute LaSalle, Buick and Wayne State University phonecards, 1 (800) 768-8422 are on the HT Technologies switch and no longer are good as working prepaid phonecards. One thousand of each of these cards was produced. About two-thirds of them are still in our inventory, fortunately.

Collectors are still buying the Buick and LaSalle card with the knowledge that they no longer work; they simply are an item to collect. The Wayne State University cards are being reprinted and replaced by Hannibal Communications with time purchased from ATCALL Inc.

When inquiring as an HT "agent" about the status of our cards on the HT switch, I was informed by the sales department "your only recourse is to file a claim with the bankruptcy court." If you can shed some light, in a future issue, on how one goes about that process, it will be appreciated.

William J. Cudlip, Hannibal Communications

According to the San Francisco Division of the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, Northern District of California, those seeking to file a claim should go to their nearest bankruptcy court, pick up a proof-of-claim form, fill it out, make a copy, and send the original and copy, along with a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to U.S. Bankruptcy Court, P.O. Box 7341, San Francisco, CA, 94120-7341, to the attention of Keenan Casady, Bankruptcy Clerk.

McDonald's mystery phonecard

I have included color copies of the back and front of a McDonald's card that I have not been able to identify.

The card was given to me about a year ago by an acquaintance. He had found it in his dresser drawer, stating that it could have been there two or three years – he doesn't remember.

Ernie O. Rose Jr., President, United America Cards

Do any of our readers have the key to unlock this mystery? We'd like to hear from you!

Giving speculators their due

I am not interested in "refunding" any NYNEX change cards. In a way, I figure it's a matter of ethics.

Many speculators bought large quantities of these cards (I know one dealer who purchased $50,000 of these things). As far as I'm concerned, they want it both ways, "having their cake and eating it too." If the cards increased in value, the speculators would have made a windfall profit. But now that the cards have decreased in value (actually because of the speculators), they want to complain and return the cards to NYNEX.

I feel that the speculators should be big enough to take their lumps now and then. Personally, I would like to see NYNEX teach those crybabies a good lesson by holding out the refunds as long as possible before they give in. (Let the speculators pay extra money for an attorney – NYNEX has them on staff.)

I never have promoted speculation. I always have recommended that collectors buy only for enjoyment, and maybe a second card for a future trade. Dealers should buy almost exclusively what they will need for resale in a reasonable period of time. If they run low of that item, they should go back to the market and purchase some more at the prevailing price. This will help the market. Speculators hurt the market.

Stephen L. Schwartz, Manager, Sears Phone Card Department

We agree with the philosophy of "enjoyment not speculation." However, persons who bought NYNEX stored value cards did so with the legitimate expectation that they could use those cards to make phonecalls. Now, because of a NYNEX decision, these buyers have had this value taken away from them. In our view, if NYNEX is not prepared to refund the purchase price of these cards, then at the very least it should offer to replace them with remote memory cards representing the same value.

DANYL's Pioneering

Early stored value smart cards are collectibles

By Robert J Merkert Sr.

In the early summer of 1992, DANYL Corp. took the plunge into smart cards. With six years of experience with magnetic stored value cards behind them, and many installations at leading single card colleges and universities, DANYL was ecstatic to join the Electronic Payment Services (EPS)/Money Access Services (MAC) Stored Value Smart Card team. The announcement of EPS/MAC sent shock waves throughout the financial community. This was truly pioneering work — the first openly announced stored value card project in the Americas. Danmønt was still in its pilot stages in Denmark, there were some other pilots in Europe, and Visa and MasterCard had not even hinted any interest.

Within 67 days of the formation of the EPS/MAC team, 15 pieces of equipment were outfitted with smart card controllers to show the feasibility of an SVC system — cash registers, washers and dryers, vending machines, photocopiers, telephones, newspaper dispensers, video arcade machines, postage stamp dispensers, transit token dispensers, parking gates, transit turnstiles, access control readers, handheld merchant terminals, card dispensers, revaluing machines and ATMs.

Even the most skeptical European smart-card observers were astounded. The entire spectra of stored value systems was demonstrated at the 1992 MAC annual meeting, a vision of the future as it could be — how colleges and universities could be converted from magnetic-card systems, how the cards could be implemented at events such as the 1996 Summer Olympics, how financial associations and institutions could enter this brave new world of electronic money. This was the quintessential event in the development of smart-card systems in the Americas. Approximately 2,000 smart cards were issued for conference attendees. The card was a microprocessor smart card, with a magnetic stripe on the reverse side. The cards were sequentially numbered, actually embossed on the card.

With this background, DANYL was now able to introduce smart-card systems to customers. But the microprocessor card used to get the MAC conference together so quickly was too expensive for this marketplace and volume had not yet driven down its price.

Telephone cards were inexpensive, but not reloadable. They could be used and then discarded, or saved as a collectible. So DANYL selected a reloadable protected-memory smart card as its mainstay. The Electronic Purse Card, featured in the March 1995 issue of Moneycard Collector, is the best known example of this card — with the possible exception of the Visa Cancun Card, featured in the November 1996 edition. In fact, all the Visa conference cards discussed in that article were based on this DANYL card.

The front of the DANYL Electronic Purse Card shows many icons against a bright-red background, representing places where the SVC could be used. The reverse of the card was inspired by a visit I made to Europe and modeled after a collectible French phonecard, including dividing lines, issue date (05/94), quantity (50,000 cards) and sequential number. What looks like three check marks, VVV, is the initials of the graphic artist, Valeda Victoria Verse, in recognition and appreciation of her help on many projects. To the left of the dividing line is the name of the card — the Electronic Purse — in English, Spanish and French. Because of its unique position as the first commercially viable stored value card in the United States, the DANYL Electronic Purse Card gained interest among collectors worldwide. It is currently being offered by dealers for $10 to $20.

The Electronic Purse Card is not the only reloadable memory card that DANYL issued. About 500 CashPass cards were issued to employees of ARA Services, now ARAMARK, for a vending machine pilot at its headquarters building in Philadelphia, Pa. An interesting feature of that program is that the smart-card controller was designed so that the dollar bill and coin acceptors could be used to load value back onto the card.

Another vending installation that was very much a closed system, both literally and figuratively, was the one that was done for Berks County Prison in Leesport, Pa. By placing value on stored value cards, instead of giving cash, the money could be used only for items in vending machines or at the commissary. The plain "B.C.P." on the front and the lack of any notation on the reverse was intentional — prison administrators didn't want to replace souvenirs.

Widespread use of DANYL cards began with the installation of pilot systems at EPS/MAC related institutions. The first installation was at the CoreStates Bank building in Philadelphia. More than 7,000 MoneyPass cards have been issued for use at more than 50 locations within the building. In 1994, it was estimated that the number of smart-card transactions in this one building equaled 66 percent of the entire country of Denmark using the Danmønt system. Since Danmønt reported 963,440 transactions in 1994, that figures out to almost 636,000 transactions!

The second EPS/MAC project was at the EPS headquarters in Wilmington, Del. More than 5,000 cards were issued to employees and visitors. The distinctive monetary design and MAC logo make this a highly desirable collectible card. We also created a card for one of its 'partners' meetings held on a ship in the Boston harbor — about 500 "PartnerShips" cards.

Perhaps the biggest explosion of SVC usage in America came about in the laundry marketplace. The multiple-unit housing industry immediately saw the value in replacing coin-operated washers and dryers with card-operated units. Early users, such as Allied Laundry, St. Louis, Mo., used the DANYL Electronic Purse card, but laundry operators soon were attracted to having clients carry around a "pocket billboard." Several thousand cards subsequently have been issued by a variety of laundry operators.

A card that saw limited production (approximately 500) was for a project associated with PEMEX, the state-owned Mexican oil company. Ten prototype smart-card terminals were to be placed in PEMEX stations throughout Mexico, with the intention that large corporate customers would use prepaid gas cards in place of vouchers. Financial and political crises canceled the project.

When DANYL was purchased by Schlumberger in 1995, a gradual move was made to use microprocessor smart cards in new projects. This was due to their greater flexibility, their higher security — allowing them to be used in open systems — and the decreasing costs of these cards as usage increased.

The DANYL reloadable smart card was truly the pioneer stored value smart card in America, as witnessed by its large commercial use and its use in the pilot projects of almost all the major bank and financial association pilots. Its use may be diminishing, but its collectibility will only increase as its pioneering contribution to the stored value industry in America is recognized.

Robert J. Merkert Sr. is president of RM Associates, Voorhees, N.J., a firm specializing in smart cards. He has more than 10 years experience in the SVC industry, serving as executive vice president at DANYL and Schlumberger, and was involved with many of the early smart-card pilots.

CATALOG UPDATE

It's going to be big and purple. But, no, it's not Barney the Dinosaur, though it should leave moneycard collectors with a warm, fuzzy feeling. It's the Moneycard Collector Catalog of U.S. and Canadian Prepaid Phone, Cash and Transit Cards, and it's coming your way in a few months.

The Moneycard Collector catalog, with more than 15,000 card listings and more than 10,000 full-color images, will be the newest – and only U.S.– entry in a recent run of very interesting catalogs, including two German and two French directories of prepaid phonecards. Here's a look at those recent catalogs:

Phone Card Catalogue: Coca-Cola

Ilonka Giessen, a former editor for Germany's Telefonkarten-News, has put together a fascinating directory of Coca-Cola telephone and other prepaid cards from around the world. The book weighs in at about 250 pages with more than 1,000 card listings with full-color images.

Even though printed in Germany, the text is written in English and includes historic notes about Coke cards in each of the 31 countries listed. The U.S. listings are broken down into cards by 24 issuers, and each listing has a valuation price in U.S. dollars.

The suggested U.S. price for the book is $29.95, including shipping. Orders can be mailed to Collectors Mail Service L.C., P.O. Box 180 339, Casselberry, FL 32718-0339 or faxed to (407) 699-8594.

TKJ-Fachkatalog 1996/97

There are more than 6,000 listings of German phonecards in Telefonkarten Journal's newest catalog. Cards are presented in a very orderly fashion, and though the book and its data are presented in German, the layout is so clean that once a few German phrases are translated, the material can be reviewed with ease. Listings show both the cards' fronts and backs, and both covers have extra fold-outs to provide information. The front cover's explanation and illustration of different chips is especially well organized.

The cost is about $29 U.S.

Contact: Evers-Verlag GmbH, Telefonkarten-Journal, An der Miele 10, 25704 Meldorf, Germany. Telephone: 9-011-49-483-295-050. Fax: 9-011-49-483-295-0595. E-mail: web-master@tkj.de.

Phonecote Telecartes 97

The 8th edition of this catalog is packed with 400 pages of French phonecards and boasts more than 4,000 full-color images. Like the TKJ catalog, the front and back covers feature extra fold-outs that have images and descriptions of the different kinds of phonecard chips.

The cards are grouped in color-coded pages (private issues, public issues, etc.) and are chronological within those groupings.

The cost is about $41 U.S., including shipping, and Visa and MasterCard are accepted. Telephone 9-011-33 72 31 15 94 or fax 9-011-33 72 31 09 39.

L'Officiel Des Telecartes 1997

Yvert & Tellier's 1997 "Official Phonecard Guide" reviews more than 3,500 French phonecards in 336 pages, and also features color-coded groupings and chronological listings. Information about the different styles of chips and other variations is on a separate laminated card slipped inside the front cover.

The cost is about $20 U.S. Telephone 9-011-33 3 22 71 71 71 or fax 9-011-33 3 22 71 71 89.

Collectors seeking the Moneycard Collector catalog might have to be patient for a few more months, but they don't have to wait to reserve a copy. Call (800) 645-7456, fax (513) 498-0876 or e-mail terris@amospress.com.

AMERICA'S MOST WANTED

Promotional cards are popular! Just look at our line-up this month! There's no denying that licensed brand name cards are a fun, hot collectible. The neat thing about many of these cards is that if you're in the right place at the right time, you can get them for next to nothing, or even free!

OREO COOKIE DIECUT. AT&T private issue; 10 minutes; 10,000 made; February 1997. This tasty card is a sure winner. Because of the number produced, it will be one of the less expensive promotional die-cut cards. This card was originally available through a visit to the Nabisco Internet site for $5 plus $1 shipping. At press time, Nabisco still had plenty available.

MICHAEL JORDAN SPACE JAM JUMBO. LDS WorldCom; 50 units; 3,000 issued; December 1996. LDS is to be commended not only for producing a nice card, but also for limiting the issue enough to make the card valuable to collectors, who are currently purchasing the card at $40.

PEPSI TIME IN SPACE. As we reported in last month's "Words on Numbers," there are two 5-minute Time in Space cards: one by Karis Communications and one by Vertical Partners. There are 500 of the Karis card and 500 samples. Vertical Partners made 1,500 live cards and a handful (less than 30) samples. It's too early to tell if collectors will seek both cards or the rarer of the two.

101 DALMATIANS SET OF 5. AT&T private issue; 25 minutes total; 1,000 sets issued; October 1996. The pups are back! This is a win-win situation: Disney and AT&T!

FOSTER'S BEER. CDG (Time by SNET); 15 minutes; 1,250 issued; December 1996. Remember this former visitor to Corporate Corner? One of its neatest features is the Aussie "G'day Mate!" greeting callers get when using the card.

DAIRY QUEEN CAKE CLUB. Mountain America Technologies; 5 minutes; 1,250 issued. The Cake Club Card is an innovative promotion that combines prepaid calling and discounts on cake purchases.

STAR WARS TRILOGY. GTI; $10 (40 minutes) each; 10,000 each issued; May 1996. May the force of these cards be with your collection! George Lucas' trio of mega-hits have made their way onto these great cards, which also offer great long-distance rates.

PINK PANTHER EASTER EGGS. USACard; Purple, Blue and Pink eggs, 500 of each; $10 (20 minutes) each; February 1997. Not only are the colorful live cards highly collectible, the very scarce proof cards have become highly sought-after by proof collectors.

America's Most Wanted is compiled monthly by Moneycard Collector and written by dealer Steve Eyer of Mt. Zion, Ill. All dealers are encouraged to participate by faxing a list of their company's 10 top-selling cards to (513) 498-0876 by the 20th of each month.

This month's "Americas Most Wanted" is courtesy of: ACME Telecards; B&B Fone Cards & Promotions; Blue Ribbon; Buffalo Bill's Telecard Gallery; Fiedler & Associates; Freedman Collectibles; Global Telecard Company; KARS Unlimited; Phone Card Connection; Powell Associates; Rich Telecom; Sears Phone Card Department; Telenova; TW Phoncards; United America Cards; USACard.

How to Use The Moneycard Collector Price Guide

Price listings in the Moneycard Collector Price Guide are provided only as a guide and are based on price lists supplied by several dealers around the world and on other market information. Listings without prices will be completed as suitable market information becomes available.

Of course, actual card values must be determined by the buyer and seller, and the Moneycard Collector Price Guide is just that - a guide.

NUMBERING SYSTEM

S (before #) = Sports

a card depicting an organized, competitive sports-related image (comes before numerals, e.g. S125)

Pr (before #) = Private card issued for a customer, distributed by the customer at his/her discretion

Post-numerical descriptor (falls after the numeral)

#-2 = Second Printing

the second printing of a card; a three, four or greater number can follow to denote the actual print run; occurs often with Canadian cards or unlimited run cards

a-2 = error/variety

a card whose identical front or back differs from the card with the primary listing; includes language variations, but not denominational variations

M = model/prototype

full-front printed card, may or may not be full-back printed, never issued

card with an error that caused its destruction or recall

J = jumbo

an oversized or jumbo card

P = proof

artwork on front, blank back

R = replacement

a card that replaced a defective or recalled card

S (after #) = specimen

artwork on front, complete back with false or no pin, or word "sample" or "test"

T = trial/test

live card used specifically for testing a stored value card system

Expired NationsBank Cards hit collector market

The first big chip-card controversy has begun, thanks to the recent expiration of NationsBank Olympic Visa Cash cards. The 19 different stored-value cards, representing more than 700,000 stored-value cards, have caused quite a bit of discussion among dealers and collectors.

We published Matter of Principle in our January 1997 issue. At the time, NationsBank disclosed how they intended to issue their Visa Cash cards. After the expiration of any card design, the principles state, NationsBank will sell only cards of that design that are not fully loaded (These cards may be empty or partially used).

EMPTY CARDS

NationsBank; John Harkes/Soccer; $50 denomination; 20,000 issued; May 1996.

NationsBank; Wheelchair Athlete; $20 denomination; 15,000 issued; July 1996.

NationsBank; Wendy Williams; $20 denomination; 54,000 issued; May 1996.

These three cards are samples of the emptied cards now available from NationsBank. Notice the varying chip condition on each of the cards. The cards are being heralded as a great way to build a collection of valuable used stored-value cards.

NationsBank was the first Visa Cash bank to publicly disclose how it would produce and distribute cards.

Before expiration, only two kinds of cards existed: fully loaded mint cards and partially or fully used cards. As is still the case, collectors and users could monitor the remaining value of cards by running them through a Visa Cash card reader. The device does slightly scratch the chip when the value is checked.

Fully loaded mint cards always will show that value, regardless of expiration.

Since expiration, there are now three kinds of cards: fully-loaded expired; used; and emptied cards.

For many dealers and collectors, the condition of the emptied cards is in question. Make no mistake: these emptied cards are used. According to Richard F. Schaffner, senior vice president of NationsBank, the conditions of the cards vary. Some of the cards actually are redeemed cards — Visa Cash cards that were returned to the bank before expiration by customers who received the remaining balance (in cash) from the card, but forfeited that card to receive the refund. Some of the emptied cards were brought out of inventory. Some of the cards were brought in from various locations (teller drawers, vending machines). Thus, the quality of the cards is inconsistent. Some may be heavily scratched by the previous owners, others may have only damage that was caused by removing the value.

The process of removing the card value is simple: the cards are placed in a transaction terminal and decremented the full amount of the card, to zero. According to Schaffner, those emptied cards number in the tens of thousands. The emptying process is ongoing.

Emptying makes small scratches on the chip and on the card's reverse, there is a small, circular indentation.

Another point of debate is the value of the used or emptied cards. Although we do not publish many used prices in our monthly Price Guide, we will provide used prices in our upcoming catalog. Currently the demand for used cards is a rather small portion of the phonecard market, but many perceive that an increased interest in used cards will encourage young collectors to join this hobby. Our pricing of used cards in our catalog is a percentage of the mint price of a card, and can be anywhere between 10 to 75 percent of the mint price.

Although the emptied/used NationsBank cards are all currently being sold in the $3 to $4 range (regardless of denomination), we do not believe the cards are all worth the same. NationsBank reported lower mintages on higher denomination cards. In general phonecard trading, these cards would be worth considerably more in used condition than a lower-denomination, higher-mintage counterpart.

What will become even more interesting in the future is to watch how the prices of the fully loaded mint cards adjust to expiration. Before expiration, the cards were worth their face value plus a premium. Now that the cards no longer can be used as cash, will their value drop accordingly or remain the same? Time will tell.

And then we'll let you know.

SPECIAL STORED VALUE CARD NOTICE: NATIONSBANK STRIPPED CARDS

MANY DEALERS ARE OFFERING NATIONSBANK SVCs AT LOW PRICES. DON'T BE CONFUSED BY SEMANTICS!

NationsBank has released to Dealers the remaining Visa Cash Olympic SVCs in stock. These cards have been STRIPPED of their value and should not be considered Mint. It is a difficult task to make a distinction between these cards, which have had their cash value removed by the Bank prior to sale, and used cards, which have had their cash value removed by a merchant at the point of sale!! KARS is pricing them all as used cards. Please do not confuse them with the MINT & FULLY LOADED cards you see in our pricelist. That is, a used or stripped card will read zero cash value in a card reader; a mint card will always read full cash value in a card reader, even after expiration. This distinction has traditionally been made in other Collectible fields (such as Coins and Stamps) where value has always been associated with condition!

HOT CARDS

This month we introduce a new feature, HOT CARDS. This list represents the most heavily sold and traded cards within the last month. We realized recently that due to the size of the Price Guide, it is often very time-consuming for readers to make their way through the listings in a short amount of time. We created HOT CARDS to provide you trends information quickly, accurately and concisely.

B & B Says: Let's Examine the Subject of Scratch-Off PIN Numbers

During the last several months, we have been conducting a random survey of all phonecard collectors to gain their thoughts regarding the subject of scratch-off PIN numbers. Before we announce the results, we wish to express our own opinion. We believe scratch-off PIN numbers should be discontinued by all manufacturers as a collector should not be penalized 50% or greater for using their time. We know that the reason for the scratch-off is to keep phone time from being used (at least with certain issuers) due to rebates to the manufacturer. Covered PIN numbers are not in the best interest of the collector market and cannot ensure further growth. With over 95% of all collectors responding to us with their opinion of wanting exposed PIN numbers, we believe issuers need to listen. For those of you who have not expressed your opinion please write us and let us know. For $4.00 shipping and handling we will send you both a Marilyn Anaheim show card and a Forest Enchantment show card (value $40.00 retail).

Let's now examine our top items for the last several months. We have predicted the $5 Pac Bell Chip card and the AT&T Democratic and Republican convention set, the 17th National Coke sets, the Mickey Mouse III and Donald Duck II all have increased over 100%; the Tootsie Roll, Christmas Cracker Jack, Pink Panther Easter, Xmas Garfield, also have excellent potential. For those of you on our preferred mailing list, we have given you the opportunity to buy some sleepers as well. In conclusion, remember our money-back or trade-in policy for our preferred customers (we are the only dealer in the world to offer it). Remember, phonecard collecting is fun, buy what you like, use the phone time and help us to get the issuers to eliminate scratch-offs and lower the phone time charges.

SHOW STOPPERS

TeleCard World Orlando

TeleCard World Orlando '97, held Feb. 26 through 28 in Orlando, Fla., was a break from the dreary winter weather for many phonecard manufacturers and issuers. In addition to providing an opportunity for networking, making new contacts and getting a sunburn, the show resulted in a batchful of showcards on a sunny Southern theme. Among the most striking were Continental Plastic's two telecard-set that came folded into maplike carriers, a "Magic Eye" jumbo by Left Coast Marketing, and a five-card laminated cardboard punch-out set by SSI, depicting decades of downtown Orlando.

Here are some of the cards issued for the show:

Continental Plastic; "It's Happening" and "Time for a Show" two-card set; 10 minutes each; 500 sets issued; February 1997.

Colorfast; Palm Trees and Beach; 5 minutes; 500 issued; February 1997.

Cable & Wireless; Oranges; 5 minutes; 750 issued; February 1997.

ITS; Orange Golf Ball; 5 minutes; 1,500 issued; February 1997.

Zenex; Orlando Dolphins; 5 units; quantity unavailable; February 1997.

Karis/Teltrust; Directors' Chairs; $10 denomination; 1,000 issued; February 1997.

CPDI; Gator Crossing; 10 minutes; quantity unavailable; February 1997.

Worldwide Digital; Florida Flamingos & Disney; 5 minutes; 500 issued; February 1997.

Left Coast Marketing; Magic Eye Dolphins; 3 minutes; 2,000 issued; February 1997.

SSI; Downtown Orlando five-card set; 5 units each; quantity unavailable; February 1997.

Left Coast Marketing; Rainforest Jumbo; 60 minutes; quantity unavailable; February 1997.

NEW COLLECTOR TIPS

TEN TIPS TO HELP UNLOCK THE REALM OF PHONECARD COLLECTING

1 EDUCATE YOURSELF. Always keep in mind that the person ultimately responsible for spending your money wisely – or unwisely – is you. Read magazines, surf the Internet, compare price guides and catalogs and seek other opinions. Learning more is always your first, best move.

2 BEWARE OF SPECULATION. Speculation can be a dangerous business practice for several reasons. Cards that are most often the object of speculation are those with (1) a perceived historical importance or (2) a mintage too low to quench demand. If you like a card, simply buy an extra one you can use later for trade. For more on this debate, read Art Becker's "Speculators" in our May 1997 issue.

3 FIND DEALERS YOU TRUST. If you are just getting started, request several price lists from dealers (check out our "Dealer Directory," Page 34). Make contact with a few and tell them about your collecting interests. As their customer, they'll want to make sure that you get the kinds of cards you like to build your collection.

4 TO USE OR NOT TO USE? The one question I get more than any other is: should I use my phonecards? Well, if "using" your phonecards entails removing them from their original packaging, scratching off the PIN and stuffing them into your wallet, the answer is a resounding "no." On the other hand, if your card is loose and features an exposed PIN, I'd say "go for it." Make certain, though, that your card is not damaged when you use it. Don't bend the edges or scuff the surface. Cards are often valued based on condition.

5 FORAGING FOR FREEBIES. Free moneycards are everywhere! Remember – phonecards were created in Europe as a way to reduce phone-booth vandalizing. But in America, their benefits as marketing tools are as important as their chances of supplanting loose change in people's pockets. Everyone from Pepsi to your corner grocery store has seen that these cards are a great way to advertise and many companies are tripping over themselves to give you cards. These free cards are a great find for one reason: most of the folks who get these cards will probably use and discard them. As a collector, you'll know the importance of preserving the cards' condition. You may be one of very few people with a mint condition card.

6 LOOK OUT BELOW: BEWARE OF DUMPING. There's no way to protect yourself against the possibility of dumping, but you can make informed decisions. A card you buy for a fire-sale price should be one that means something to you – but don't expect it to increase in value.

7 NOT ALL GOOD CARDS ARE "HOT." Some of the most valuable cards collected today are ones that are rarely mentioned: early Landis & Gyr test cards, AmeriVox prototypes and prison cards to name a few. For the price of 10 to 20 new cards, you could purchase a card that has an established price history and will really be worth something in the future.

8 NOT ALL OLD CARDS ARE VALUABLE. This is the "on the other hand" to tip number seven. There are thousands of old cards that aren't worth hundreds of dollars ... in fact, many aren't worth $1 apiece. Many are expired or were created by now-defunct companies. There's a reason why they many of these cards were forgotten: they simply were not memorable.

9 SHOP AROUND, WITHIN REASON. If you've ever paid several hundred dollars for a phonecard, then you know the importance of shopping around. But, chances are, most of your purchases are less than $30. Newly released cards usually fall in this price range. If you're shopping around to save a dollar or two on a card you plan to mail order, the more you call around for prices on cards, the less money you'll save overall when you consider your increased phone bills. And remember – always ask your dealer what the buy-back policy is on the card. If a dealer isn't willing to buy back a card, then he or she might not believe in the long-term value of the card.

10 ENJOY YOURSELF. These are common sense tips for you to consider, not to live by. There are no rules that apply to all cards, but remember, collecting is an endeavor to gather together things that are interesting, beautiful, etc. that bring joy and hopefully hold value. If you want to make money investing, call a stock broker. If you want to have a lot of fun, collect phonecards!

Plane Appeal!

Collectors take hobby into the wild blue yonder

By James Chudnow

Since the Wright Brothers first took to the skies in 1903, aircraft have captured the imagination. Phonecard collectors also indulge in flights of fancy about aviation-themed cards. Indeed, since one of the biggest phonecard retailers is the travel industry, many collectors may first have been exposed to prepaid telecards at an airport.

There are many different airplane-related phonecards, and thus many airplane images that collectors can add to their collections, including historic aircraft, military aircraft and modern commercial jetliners. Another challenge is to seek cards by different issuers that show a particular airline's logo or planes — United Airlines, Lufthansa and America West, to name a few. Some of the earliest U.S. offerings deal with airline logos, rather than airplane images, and have commanded high prices. And don't forget phonecards with images depicting airports.

Many U.S. issuers have contributed to the aviation theme, and foreign telecards abound as well, including Canada's IDC, which released two series depicting the various aircraft used by Air Canada. In the wild blue yonder Down Under, Australia's Telstra has issued some recent stunners (Moneycard Collector, "International Issues," April 1997).

IDC; Air Canada; two six-card sets (Lockheed 14H2, above); $10 denominations each card; quantity unknown; September 1995.

MCI; Air Force 1987-97; 25 units; mintage ongoing; September 1997.

GTE Hawaiian Tel; United Airlines 29th Hawaiian Open; 3 units; 6,000 issued; January 1994. Common version says "Hawaiian Telephone" on reverse; rare variety, about 50 issued; says "Hawaiian Tel."

Here's a sampling of what's out there:

AIRLINE LOGOS

GTE Hawaiian Tel has issued cards related to the Hawaiian Open golf tournament, which United Airlines co-sponsors. The 25th Hawaiian Open telecard issued in January 1990 is now valued at more than $1,000. United Airlines' logo is also visible on two cards issued for the 28th tournament in January 1993. A three-unit card, 1,000 mintage, shows the airline's name as a tournament sponsor with the blue-and-red U.A. logo. A 10-unit card, quantity 2,000, was issued at the same time, shows the logo and a scenic view of the club. Both command prices in the $175-$200 range. In January 1994, 6,000 3-unit cards were produced for the 29th anniversary, featuring a United Airlines' logo-embellished golf ball on a tee. A rare variation, around 50 issued, reads "Hawaiian Tel" on the reverse — the name was being phased-in to replace the previous "Hawaiian Telephone." And, for the 30th tournament, there were 5,000 cards issued in January 1995 with the United Airlines logo overprinted on the skirt of a hula girl.

In December 1994, LDDS Worldcom released a three-card set for Northwest Airlines, featuring Japanese and Chinese voice options for its Asian passengers. The backs of certain cards state that 300 were printed of each, but Northwest and the printer, Brilliant Color Cards, revealed that a second printing was done in 1995, which an HT Technologies card issued for the Chicago International Film Festival in October 1995. There were 2,500 cards. American Airlines is a sponsor of the event.

COMMERCIAL AIRLINES

Another relatively early U.S. card was one issued by Sprint for Virgin Atlantic Airlines in May 1993. The tail of a Virgin Atlantic jet was featured on 25,000 10-unit cards. Sprint followed that a month later with 5,000 cards featuring a generic airliner landing at sunset; and, in September 1993, issued another 5,000 of that image overprinted with the words "Worldwide Airline Customer Relations Association," for distribution at a conference. In November and December 1993, Sprint issued cards for Lufthansa Airlines – an Asia card (1,500); a 10-unit "Business Class Survey" card (8,500); and a 10-unit "EuroCargo" (5,100). Lufthansa is again featured on telecards issued by GTS (Global Telecommunications Solutions) in 1993 and 1994.

GTI issued cards in 1994 for Sunjet Holidays and SAUDIA Saudi Arabian Airlines, and in April 1995, released a "Minutes & Miles Phonecard" five-card set to promote United Airlines "Mileage Plus First Card" credit card, with $ 5/20 U.S. minutes, $ 10/40 minutes and sample versions of each. The issuer also produced a 15-minute card in May 1996 featuring an America West Airlines jet and the words "Proud Sponsor of Ohio State Athletics."

ACMI's aviation cards include a June 1994 $10-denomination card for Saudi Arabian Airlines. Approximately 120 were printed picturing a 747 jetliner. ACMI also released 50,000 America West Airlines three-minute cards in May 1995.

In May 1995, USACard issued two $5 cards commemorating the second anniversary of direct flights by China Eastern Airlines. One card pictures a jet flying near the Oriental Pearl TV Tower in Shanghai, and the other shows an Airbus A-300 cruising above Singapore. The set (1,500) was released in a folder, and there were also 25 numbered "Test/Sample" versions.

MILITARY

In September 1996, ACMI released a special Memphis Belle card in conjunction with the Memphis Belle Museum in Memphis. Featuring the famous nose art of the plane, the 10-unit card came with a packet of info on the museum and history about the famous World War II B-17 bomber.

One of the best presentations this writer has ever seen was furnished by ACMI in November 1996, based on its affiliation with the "GHOSTS" organization of San Francisco. GHOSTS features planes from the World War II era. They sent out a gorgeous calendar picturing Philip Makanna's photography of WWII fighter planes, along with a sample set of six attractively packaged "Series A" phonecards featuring Makanna's photos. There are 1,600 sets of the live cards, each with five minutes of time.

GHOSTS originally had contracted with now-bankrupt HT Technologies to feature Makanna's photography, but a legal dispute led to the disruption of the planned six-card "Series I" set, which Makanna considers unauthorized. HT claimed to have printed 1,600 sets and delivered 891 to Makanna. Some of those subsequently have been sold overseas with the caution that they are collectibles without live phone time.

HT also issued a variety of aviation-linked cards, including two eight-card series of "official souvenir" 10-unit cards in September and October 1995 for "Fleet Week" activities in San Francisco. The first series, 5,000 sets released, features a cornucopia of company logos, including Coca-Cola, Kodak, Citibank and Visa. "Series 2" cards, 2,500 sets released, also highlighted a number of airplanes. HT later issued a "Fleet Week City" three-card set, plus a "Fleet Week Souvenir" card, both in quantities of 2,500.

American National Phone Card issued a four-card "spy plane" set in April 1995. Each card was for 10 units, 1,000 sets were done, and the cards pictured the B-2 Stealth Bomber, F-117 Stealth Fighter, SR-71 Blackbird, and the U-2 plane.

A number of interesting military airplane sets have been issued by TCM, usually in plastic-covered folders with historical information. The military aviation cards have held their value or increased slightly, according to dealer price lists.

ACMI; Memphis Belle; $10 denomination; 800 issued; September 1996.

GTI; Minutes & Miles Phonecards; sets of $5 and $10 denominations; quantity unavailable; April 1995.

TAPPING THE NETWORKS

Tennessee-based STRATEGIC TELECOM SYSTEMS issued a special phonecard in March to help raise funds for the Tennessee State Museum.

The card, featuring an artist's rendering of the Tennessee's historic State Capitol in Nashville, is presented in an elegant display carrier which contains the history of the Tennessee Waltz, held every March to raise funds for the museum. Each of the 500 cards contains 15 minutes of long-distance time. There also are 21 numbered specimen cards labeled "Proof."

According to STS, the bulk of the cards, which feature an audio greeting from Tennessee Gov. Don Sundquist, were presented to guests at the $1,000-a-couple event. The remaining cards were donated to the museum for future fund-raising activities.

In addition to the long-distance time, callers may use the card to schedule a walking tour of the state Capitol, receive information about the museum and the museum store and join the non-profit Tennessee Museum Foundation.

In other STS news, the network marketing company and Cable & Wireless have announced that they are offering prepaid cards using new interactive voice response technology. One example is the STS "Thinking of You" interactive greeting card line, which features prepaid cards for Valentine's Day, Mother's Day, Father's Day, as well as congratulations and birthday versions. The STS "Secret Sweetheart" card is packaged as a greeting card with an envelope. The purchaser pre-records an individual secret message to the recipient, which is heard when the card is used.

DESTINY TELECOMM has made peace with the state of California (see "Tapping the Networks," Moneycard Collector, May 1997), after a raid on Destiny headquarters and the company's subsequent agreement to pay a $1.6 million fine and change its business practices, but that is not the only excitement stirring at the Oakland-based network marketing company.

Destiny also announced that it has reached agreement with the Attorney General's Office in North Carolina and will immediately resume its marketing effort there.

Destiny's independent, not-for-profit charity, The Destiny Foundation raised $1 million in pledges at the company's "Oakland Extravaganza" earlier this year. Destiny officials say that is just the tip of the fund-raising iceberg, and hope to continue a more ambitious campaign to get as many independent representatives as possible to pledge monthly amount.

Donors who want to give more are rewarded for joining various "clubs" depending on the size of their charitable commitments, including the Founders Club ($50,000 donation per year, members receive an eight-ounce gold coin with 1,000 minutes of phone time, quantity not announced); Governors Club ($10,000 annual donation, members receive a 3-ounce solid gold phonecard, 30 issued); Regents Club ($5,000 commitment, eight-ounce silver coin with phone time, quantity not announced); and Benefactors Club ($1,000 commitment, solid silver 100-minute card, 200 issued).

TELENET TELECOM INTERNATIONAL INC., a Canadian network marketing company that made a splash with its limited-edition Bobby Hull phonecard late last fall ("Tapping the Networks," Moneycard Collector, February 1997) also has released information about two limited-edition, four-card series. (There are 1,018 Hull cards, representing the hockey legend's number of lifetime goals and each hand-signed in gold ink by the "Golden Jet.") TeleNet's "Inspirational Series" was issued in July 1996 and its "Wildlife Series" in November 1996. All cards carry five minutes of time and 3,000 of each were issued. The "Inspirational Series" cards deal with the themes of attitude, teamwork, leadership and success, while the latter series features the bald eagle, Bengal tiger, panda and gray wolf.

Tucked away in British Columbia is a phonecard issuer whose elegant and colorful card designs are virtually unknown outside that province.

WesTel Telecommunications began in 1956 as an arm of BC Rail and Light, the province's railway and hydroelectric company. Its task was to provide a private, secure communications service for the railway, crisscrossing British Columbia. As ridership declined, the communications company diversified into the consumer and corporate long distance market. Prepaid phonecards, valid for use across Canada and the U.S., first appeared in 1994.

Most of the retail designs focus on Canada's natural beauty: a peach tree in the Okanagan Valley, a timber wolf, seashells, a starfish, a Canada goose splashing in the water, and some cuddly-looking grizzly bears are among the designs. WesTel cards all carry a serial number that specifies the print batch, a useful feature for collectors, as some of the retail designs were reprinted. Look also for variations in the back text, and at the color of the denomination: older cards are printed in white, newer cards in black.

Skiing is popular with the tourists who flock to Rocky Mountain slopes. Besides two generic snow sport cards, a special $30 card was produced for a Japanese tour group, with the reverse written entirely in Japanese. WesTel has a lively and very informative website at <http://www.westel.com> describing all of its services and most of its phonecards. However, cards can only be ordered online by current WesTel customers.

The Asian Market

Canada is a popular destination for Asian tourists and immigrants. In 1995, 589,000 Japanese tourists visited Canada. Two-thirds of all immigrants in 1994 arrived from an Asian country. Phonecards and other types of debit cards are well established in Japan, China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Korea and other Asian countries, so visitors from this area are already familiar with the idea of prepaid telephone calls.

One of the earliest issuers to target Japanese and Chinese speakers was the Stentor Alliance. Its first Hello! cards were issued only in one language, the particular language depending on the region being served. Japanese-language cards were sold by BC Tel in British Columbia, AGT (now Telus) in Alberta, Bell Canada in Ontario and Island Tel in PEI. Current Stentor Hello! cards across the country allow the caller to choose from five languages upon dialing one access number.

A set of eight Canada Phone Card cards was produced for a Japanese tour operator. Seven of the landscape cards issued under the Phone Line International brand – Quebec City, Montreal, Green Gables, Ottawa, Toronto, Niagara Falls, and the Rockies – were reprinted in limited quantity in both $15 and $25 denominations under the Canada Phone Card brand. The eighth card was a new design, a bird's eye view of Vancouver. All of these cards have a reverse entirely in Japanese. These cards were sold by the tour operator in the various cities pictured, as well as some language schools in British Columbia.

CardCaller Canada has a private brand, DCC, targeted at the Japanese tourist market. All of the cards are denominated in overseas long-distance units, similar to the NTT phonecards in Japan, with one unit priced at US$1.60. The first series, in 1993 and 1994, picture various Canadian and American locations, and the unit value is preprinted on the card. The second series, issued in November 1995, include scenes from around the world, and are denominated with a sticker.

AIC is a Burnaby, B.C.-based company stressing Asian, particularly Hong Kong, issues. Their first card, to commemorate the Chinese Year of the Pig, could only be used for calls originating from the Vancouver area. Later cards, including the latest release for the Year of the Ox, added the ability to originate calls from other parts of Canada. AIC's wildlife set, including Peary caribou, polar bears, sea otters, and a gray whale, capture the animals in unusual and sometimes humorous poses.

This is not an exhaustive list of Asian-theme Canadian cards. It is uncommon to find a Canadian card that does not offer service in at least one Asian language. Whether you understand the language or not, they are an interesting element of a Canadian collection.

CORPORATE CORNER

If you're hungry for some Kentucky Fried Chicken, you'll find the latest issue from TeleNova appealing: 750 cards with five minutes of Cable & Wireless time were issued for a Kentucky Fried Chicken franchise in upstate New York. A delicious card that you might find from your favorite dealer.

If you are not sure if fried chicken should be on your diet, check out an ITS card issued for Campbell's Intelligent Quisine meal program. The 15-minute card connects to a Campbell's nutritionist for "personalized nutrition counseling" between 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

If you're in the market for a good night's sleep and live in the Chicago area, you can purchase a Sealy Posturepedic mattress from select dealers and receive a 60-minute card by Innovative Telecom.

Also from Innovative and packaged inside specially marked boxes of Doan's Pills nationwide is a five-minute card. Mintage is ongoing but it's a welcome change to buy a product and receive the card inside rather than have to send in a UPC.

Last September, Innovative Telecom got together with the Suncoast Motion Picture Co., and issued a sharp-looking card to promote Metro Goldwyn Mayer. The five-minute cards were given out free with the purchase of any MGM title from Suncoast Motion Picture Co.

New from Communications Design Group is a card issued for Toyota/Lexus of Knoxville. You received the card if you stopped in and took a test drive.

CDG produced a 15-minute card to promote IBM's 24-hour Quick Ship service. The cards were used to thank customers who used the Quick Ship service.

From north of the border comes a Household Finance Co. card from AT&T Canada, formerly ITS Canada. There were 22,000 cards issued in February, with intentions to issue another 21,000 in coming months. The cards were designed to entice new customers to open an account at new branch offices and to encourage existing customers to access their accounts.

Finally, it's good to see that an increasing number of companies are issuing cards without a scratch-off — the majority of cards this month fall in that category. No scratch-offs mean that collectors can use the time and still retain an unaltered card for their collections. If more issuers would continue this trend, we would also see more and more used cards that would also further the growth of this exciting hobby!

BABY BELL NOTES

PACIFIC BELL

We covered the 1996 Holiday cards in our February issue but at that time did not have information on quantities. A total of 400,000 were printed, including 155,000 of the $5 Surfing Santa, with 100,000 in dollar-bill carriers (retailers prefer these, because they fit into a cash register drawer); 10,000 in vending machines and 45,000 in greeting cards. All 155,000 of the $10 Half Dome ("pine and mountain") cards were distributed in the same method. For the $20 Ornaments cards, 90,000 were produced, with 60,000 in dollar-bill carriers, 5,000 in vending machines, and 25,000 in greeting cards.

By the time you read this, the PacBell Internet web page, www.pacbell.com, should contain information on all PacBell cards, including quantities issued. You should also be able to order cards through the Internet, as well as join the PacBell Collector Club (details are still pending).

There has been some confusion about the PacBell Republican National Convention chip card, produced by PacBell's Mobile Services. Pac Bell produced 500 live cards, which were inserted into special cellular phones. These cards had actual value on them, and were programmed with many RNC and local business phone numbers to be used for speed dialing. It appears there might have been a number of promotional cards (500) handed out at the Convention, which had the same obverse, but a different reverse. These promotional cards are no-time cards featuring a reverse with advertising, a business card, and so on. No additional information is available at the moment, but one or both of these two cards is being sold at rather high prices, so make sure you know which card you are getting, if you decide to buy any.

PacBell released the new American Spirit definitive series March 1. Quantities issued are as follows (and remember, as is common with definitives, more than one printing may be made): 350,000 $5 "Extreme Sports"; 425,000 $10 "Diversity" cards; 250,000 $20 "Outside Sports" cards; and 20,000 $50 "Monuments" cards.

Another new definitive series featuring Soccer also was introduced March 1. Quantities issued are: 82,000 $5 cards; 100,000 $10 cards featuring Mauricio Cienfuegos, and 65,000 $20 cards featuring Cobi Jones (see May 1997 Moneycard Collector "What a Kick," Page 40).

U S WEST

This Baby Bell has decided to close its collector club and standing order program, and distribute cards through two dealers: USACard and KARS. The 800-order line will no longer be in service.

U S WEST's first private card was produced for Global Telecard Co. of White Plains, N.Y. There were 1,010 of the $1 complimentary cards printed. Collectors really like $1 complimentary phonecards, especially when the cards have a chip on them.

U S WEST has issued 10 of these since their first chip phonecard in March 1994. The latest three cards mark U S WEST's adoption of a highly popular phonecard feature: serial numbers. You'll find them just above the bar code on the reverse of the cards. While virtually all U S WEST phonecards indicate the quantity printed, now collectors can tell exactly which cards they own. The company also has started printing expiration dates on the cards. Cards expire two years from the month they were produced, and not necessarily from when they were sold.

The Seattle Reign is the subject of U S WEST's latest $1 complimentary card ("New Issues," May 1997). The Reign is a Seattle women's professional basketball team. At the Feb. 20, 1997 home game, 3,000 of the 3,500 Reign cards were distributed to fans. The remaining 500 cards were sent to U S WEST's distributors.

Two more new complimentary cards have the same design with one difference: the color used on the card's title. These two cards, produced for TeleCard Times magazine's third anniversary, are available in a blue version and a red version. The 10,250 $1 complimentary cards were inserted into the latest issue of the magazine. Blue and red versions went out at random.

BELL ATLANTIC

One Baby Bell's cards that you don't see advertised much are those of Bell Atlantic. Denominations are $2, $5, $10 and $20. There were three series, a special card, two test cards, and some varieties. While Bell Atlantic printed thousands of the cards in 1994 and 1995, they pulled the plug rather abruptly, and not many cards were sold. Most were destroyed by the company but 7,500 of most issues were saved to sell to collectors. In some cases, only a few hundred of many cards were ever sold.

While it appears that speculators stocked up on one card, the Washington, D.C. version of the $5 James Earl Jones card, others remained virtually unknown, including the $10 and $20 vending machine varieties of the second series. The $10 card from the first series was almost totally destroyed by accident, and fewer than 1,000 are thought to have survived.

SHOOTING HOOPS

Basketball fans who attended the 1997 All-Star Game at Cleveland's Gund Arena might now be phonecard fans as well: the NBA released its first licensed phonecard at that game — a 10-minute AT&T private issue.

The phonecard was given to key sponsors and marketing partners as part of a goodie bag the NBA distributes at every All-Star game.

The NBA is the last of the major sports leagues to license a series of phonecards. For the record, this doesn't bother the league in the slightest. "It wasn't a case of getting to the marketplace first, but getting to the marketplace right," says Dave DeCecco, NBA spokesman. "When there's a new product it often takes a little longer to get things done. We wanted to wait until we were sure it was the right time to do it."

Now that the league has issued its first phonecard with AT&T, in classic NBA fashion, it seems to be pushing a full-court press of new products. First up: a series of cards featuring 12 NBA athletes, exclusively distributed through 7-Eleven convenience stores.

The series features 76ers star guard Jerry Stackhouse, SuperSonics guard Gary Payton, Knicks forward Larry Johnson and all-time NBA greats Clyde Drexler and Karl Malone. The cards come in five different denominations: 15 minutes ($5.99 retail), 30 minutes ($10.99), 60 minutes ($19.99), 90 minutes ($27.99) and three hours ($49.99).

This might be the only time 7-Eleven will get to produce these cards — the NBA and AT&T are teaming up on an even bigger program. The official NBA-AT&T phonecards will be available beginning in May through retail, direct mail, a toll-free number and several thousand participating Chevron locations. The planned 29-card series is divided into 15-, 30- and 60-minute denominations, as follows (mintage has not been announced):

15-MINUTE CARDS: Dikembe Mutombo, Atlanta Hawks; Dino Radja, Boston Celtics; Bobby Phillips, Cleveland Cavaliers; Shawn Bradley, Dallas Mavericks; Dale Ellis, Denver Nuggets; Latrell Sprewell, Golden State Warriors; Vin Baker, Milwaukee Bucks; Tom Gugliotta, Minnesota Timberwolves; Jim Jackson, New Jersey Nets;

7-Eleven; Sixers' Jerry Stackhouse; various denominations; quantity unavailable; 1997.

Clifford Robinson, Portland Trail Blazers; David Robinson, San Antonio Spurs; and Juwan Howard, Washington Bullets.

30-MINUTE CARDS: Brent Barry, Los Angeles

Clippers; Alonzo Mourning, Miami Heat; Anfernee Hardaway, Orlando Magic; Clarence Weatherspoon, Philadelphia 76ers; Kevin Johnson, Phoenix Suns; Mitch Richmond, Sacramento Kings; Shawn Kemp, Seattle SuperSonics; Karl Malone, Utah Jazz; and Greg Anthony, Vancouver Grizzlies.

60-MINUTE CARDS: Glen Rice, Charlotte Hornets; Toni Kukoc, Chicago Bulls; Grant Hill, Detroit Pistons; Clyde Drexler, Houston Rockets; Reggie Miller, Indiana Pacers; Eddie Jones, Los Angeles Lakers; Charles Oakley, New York Knicks; and Damon Stoudamire, Toronto Raptors.

There's one key thing about these sets: Michael Jordan. Jordan has an exclusive contract with LDDS WorldCom.

AT&T; NBA All-Star Game; 10 minutes; quantity unavailable; February 1997. (Card shown on matching carrier.)

Picture Perfect

Attractive images are key ingredient to phonecard success

By Robert J. Sodaro

When discussing phonecards, the most obvious aspect of the card, the image on the front, might sometimes be taken for granted. Oh, sure, you pick it up because it is your favorite athlete, landmark, animated character, corporate logo, or particular event; but have you ever wondered what goes into choosing any individual card design? How is a phonecard born?

Usually there are a lot of hands involved in the work. Phonecard issuers' marketing and art executives stress that acquiring, developing, and producing the images for the cards tends to be a multi-tiered process that involves several stages of development and approval from virtually everyone involved with each project (agents, players, clients, art directors, and numerous other interested and/or related individuals). Many telecard manufacturers indicated that the vast majority of cards produced are designed by working with the client from stock photos, and pricing one that satisfies not only the client and licensor, but the theme of the campaign, and the limitations of the card and technology available.

Certainly the issuer or marketing company in question must first determine what product or image to feature, and how to get that message across, but there is far more to the decision of what type of an image should go on any noteworthy card than to simply determine that it would be neat to put Kermit the Frog on the front of a card and print it. According to Nicole Williams, the marketing manager at ITS, deciding on what image goes on the front of the promo cards they produce tends to be a 50/50 arrangement between what the client wants and how it is delivered to ITS.

"Since we produce promo cards for other corporations, the images tend to come directly from the client themselves," she says. Many ITS clients have already gone through the process of determining what they want on the faces of their cards, and deliver camera-ready art. "We do work for Nintendo, so when they want a card for us, they would deliver all of the completed art to us, and then we have our art department prepare it for printing," Williams explains.

George Pinon, the art director at ITS agreed, pointing out that the process of producing the art isn't always that easy. "Our bigger clients like Nintendo and Microsoft tend to know what they want on a card and often deliver stock photos or images. However, we also have a number of smaller clients like Red Dog Beer, that deliver the various pieces of the art, and we have to assemble it ourselves." This process often involves taking the numerous elements a client wants on a card, and then arranging them in a visually interesting fashion to form an eye-catching image on the card.

"They might have their logo, and a stock photo, plus whatever they want on the card, and then we would assemble it ourselves. It could be a photo of the company's owner and his dog, plus the company's logo and the phone number. Generally speaking, this type of assembly encompasses either straight graphic art that is photographed or computer-generated and shot. Most often it is a combination of flat art and computer-generated or computer-enhanced images that are scanned into a computer and then assembled electronically to create a seamless image.

To listen to "Dollar" Bill Waller Jr. CEO of B&L Licensing Inc., the creation of the front art on cards produced by B&L is nothing short of great art. "We have our own art department, and individually produce each and every card." He praises B&L Art Director David F. Glasco as an excellent freehand artist. "David illustrates our cards freehand, and then enhances them on the computer." Waller holds lengthy meetings with his clients to develop a theme that best exemplifies the positive attributes of whoever is the subject of a particular card. One example he cites is his company's recent Luc Longley card. Longley, an Australian who plays basketball for the Chicago Bulls, has a phonecard where he is jumping over the Sears Tower, and the inscription "From Down Under, Over the Top." Here Waller's art department incorporated not only Longley's ancestry, but his ability for high jumps as he sails effortlessly over the top of the tallest building in the world.

Others include an artistic montage of boxer Rocky Marciano (by Glasco), with the slogan "You may have to fight a battle more than once to win," and another with "What it takes to be a winner" (Marciano is the only heavyweight champion who retired undefeated).

"We go on demographics, and I like to make our cards very colorful and eye-catching," Waller says, noting that consumers must want to pick up the card. Stressing his flair for creativity, Waller explained how he and his partner, company President Lee Joshua Kyle, hold concept meetings with all prospective clients.

"I like to stress color, image, and theme in my cards," Waller said. His conceptual designs don't stop with how the cards look, but continue into the voice prompts — a Garfield card lets you hear Garfield, and a Marilyn Monroe card where a Marilyn sound-alike sings "Happy Birthday, Mr. President."

Curt Hudson, the photo and editorial manager from The Score Board Inc., says a recent set of four NASCAR drivers (Dale Earnhardt, Michael Waltrip, Sterling Marlin and Dale Jarrett) produced for 7-Eleven and Citgo utilized stock photos that required the approval of both the client and the drivers themselves. "We generally work through a process where a client will have an approved list of say baseball players, and we contact several photographers or production houses we work with," Hudson says. "We fax over a list of players and the photographers will pull shots from their files and send several to us. We then go through the photos and whittle it down even further for the client, who picks one or two."

Ken Barnes, owner of Argo City, which specializes in cards sporting images of Golden Age Comics, adds that some cards required special care in not only which images were chosen but how and where the cards were advertised. By way of example, he cited Argo City's new Bettie Page set. During the '50s, Page allowed herself to be photographed scantily (and often only partially), dressed by noted photographer Bunny Yeager. Barnes pointed out that while Page herself has gone on to achieve cult status, care had to be taken in choosing the images so that the cards themselves didn't cross the line of mass marketability. This set marks the first authorized phonecard set of Page.

Larry West, Finish Line vice president, (which specializes in NASCAR images), indicated that his company has "no set standards" in choosing images. "We may choose their helmets or the drivers in the cage. Some drivers may not like photos of themselves wearing caps." He went on to say that it is important knowing what types of cards and images are being produced by competitors. "We like to try and stay ahead of the curve."

Here, again, they tend to mix up the types of approaches they use, and bounce back and forth between acquiring existing photography and art and by commissioning photographers to arrange photo sessions with the drivers so as to set up attractive shots.

Greg D. Smith, the marketing specialist at Frontier Communications agrees. He says that Frontier mixes up images between stock photos and commissioned work.

"The object is to appease the most buyers [in the kind of cards we produce]," he said. "We work very closely with the licensee to choose the image. With someone like [trading card manufacturer], FPG they provide us the image electronically, and we then prepare it for pre-press. "We like to keep a leg up on the competition, and often employ small focus groups to assist us in determining which image will work best." Smith says that Frontier works mostly from stock photos and art.

Ultimately, everyone agreed that there really was no set pattern as to how images should be developed, as each phonecard set proved to have its own set of special circumstances and/or requirements. In the final analysis, however, it is the consumer, be it user or collector, who determines what types of images proved to be appealing. West summed it up succinctly: "Majority rules."

QUICK TAKES

SPRINT MARKS A MILESTONE. To mark its 100 millionth prepaid calling card, Sprint in February issued two versions of a special commemorative prepaid phonecard. There were 3,000 each made of a gold silk-screened card and a 24-karat gold card. Sprint sent 2,500 of each mintage to promotional and retail customers, and is offering the 500 remaining of each for sale from its Sprint Prepaid Foncard website. There is a limit of one per order for the gold cards and three per order for the gold silk-screened cards. Sprint also announced its first $100 Spree retail card, claiming an industry first. The actual 100 millionth card was to be the first $100 Spree card.

"Sprint was the first long-distance carrier to introduce prepaid calling cards to the U.S. market," notes Marlene Waltz, Sprint's director of prepaid card sales and marketing. She says the milestone "clearly indicates how the demand for prepaid cards continues to grow dramatically." Sprint's prepaid card business realized triple-digit growth in revenue and points of distribution in 1996, the company noted.

DESTINY BRAILLE CARD DEBUTS.

A card featuring braille code across its front and images of entertainer Ray Charles was unveiled in April at the American Tele-Card Expo in Chicago. The braille message across the face reveals the 800 access number and the PIN on the card, which also has a scratch-off on the reverse. Destiny Telecomm President Randy Jeffers personally handed over the first card to Charles. Jeffers said that the braille feature would be available on all Destiny issues at a fee of less than $1 a card. Look for full details of the Chicago show in the July issue of Moneycard Collector.

Destiny Telecomm; Ray Charles Braille Card; 5 units; 5,000 issued; April 1997.

MORE TALK AT THE POST OFFICE. The U.S. Postal Service has adopted a new flat rate that gives up to 30 percent more time on its prepaid FirstClass phonecards. A $10 denomination card now gives callers 26 minutes, as opposed to 20 minutes. The time is still carried by American Express Telecom. Also announced was an international calling feature that allows callers to call back to the U.S. while traveling in more than 25 countries, including the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Japan, Mexico and Canada.

USPS; Saber-tooth cat; $20 denomination; 21,000 issued; June 1996.

ACMI CONQUEST SEPARATE. The December 1995 merger between ConQuest Telecommunications of Dublin, Ohio and ACMI of Memphis, Tenn. has been reversed. On April 2, ownership of the majority of ACMI assets was passed to a new firm, Limit, LLC. An ACMI press release stated that "the shareholders of Limit are essentially the same parties that originally founded ACMI and will continue to use the ACMI name."

Explained former ACMI president Kevin Pirolo, "We merged in 1995 because of a fantastic agent/vendor relationship that had developed. With the merger we had expected all kinds of synergy and increased business. But because we maintained our operations in the two cities and other factors that synergy just didn't happen the way we thought it would. We remain a vendor of ConQuest products and expect to reinforce our efforts in that direction." ACMI will also continue as an issuer of prepaid phonecards.

ConQuest executives were unavailable for comment by deadline.

CORN CARDS ON THE WAY. A prototype card has been developed by the University of Nebraska and Corn Card International. Paul Saunier of Talk Time, the co-founder of Corn Card International, said the product, which looks and feels like plastic (and smells faintly like corn syrup!) is made of completely biodegradable corn polymers. The trade name of this biodegradable plastic is "All Mazin."

JERRY LEWIS MDA CARDS LOSE VOICE. Voice Telephone Co., which in August 1996 issued a four-card "Communicard" set for the Muscular Dystrophy Association's annual Jerry Lewis Telethon, has gone out of business. MDA officials had not returned calls by press time about the fate of the long-distance time on the four different-colored (copper, gray, teal and blue, 5,000 of each issued) 10-minute cards or on 30- and 60-minute MDA-themed cards issued in March 1996 (5,000 and 2,500 issued, respectively). The 800 access number on the back of the cards rang continuously busy in early April, as did the numbers on a variety of other Voice Telephone cards. Voice Telephone's California and Nevada telephone numbers have been disconnected.

NEW ISSUES

The eagle, the flag and Marathon

ConQuest; Marathon; $5, $10, $20 denomination; quantity unknown; January 1997.

The three denominations of the retail card are available at participating Marathon gas stations. There are about 2,400 Marathon locations in the Midwest.
