6 Promotional Attraction

Pursuing refund and mail-in offers can open the doors to a variety of phonecards, according to enthusiastic collectors.

Plans are in the works for a Major League Soccer phonecard program from AT&T, and Pacific Bell has unveiled new soccer cards, too.

4. Regional Bell Oldies But Goodies

Cards from the Baby Bells are consistent sellers, although not necessarily spectacular. Phonecard dealers identify some of the desirable RBOC cards.

Participating dealers rated our three-card Nevada Bell set of prototypes at $$ 519$ and a reader from Tennessee guessed the closest.

NYNEX Pulls the Plug

The issuer's announced termination of its Change Card program doesn't make historical cards any less important, Art Becker writes.

[^0]In a perfect world, as you sit back to read this column, your eyes would stray over to the first Moneycard Collector catalog of prepaid cards, sitting in its place of honor on your desk, bookshelf or coffee table.

In the real world, however, we have decided to push the catalog's April debut back to late summer. The reason can be summed up in one word: quality.
As important as it is to get the catalog into the hands of information-hungry collectors, it is more important to give them information that will help satisfy their appetites. Will they still be hungry for more? Without a doubt. Any catalog is merely a buoy marking charted waters.
 There will always be other seas to explore.

We apologize for keeping loyal readers waiting, but the growth and changing dynamics of the hobby really have underlined for us that quality is crucial to the catalog's success. If we discover additional information about a card or an issuer that causes an upheaval in our cataloging efforts - and such information seems to spring up several times a day - we aren't going to pretend that it doesn't exist.

Among the challenges to the cataloging effort has been the widely varying ways in which issuers handle card information. Some keep extensive details of how many cards were issued and when. Others used to keep such details, but a key person has moved on to another job, or the company has stopped producing prepaid cards. Some apparently can't be bothered with keeping track of such details, or mistakenly assume that "close enough" is good enough. It isn't. The pop group Huey Lewis and the News

Sometimes quality takes a little bit longer, but our collectors deserve it. And our product wouldn't be the Moneycard Collector Catalog without it.

Changing dynamics of the hobby, indeed! NYNEX's decision to end its Change Card program is a prime example. Yet it is not one that should cause collectors to lose faith in the hobby. This hobby has been and will continue in the foreseeable future to be influenced by similar technological changes and business decisions. Senior Contributing Writer Art Becker sums it up in "NYNEX Pulls the Plug," Page 8: "All that is certain is that now is the best time to stock up on any missing NYNEX cards you need for your collection. Regardless of the fact that the cards are no longer good to make phone calls, they are still historical and collectible. Personally, I can't think any of any phonecard collector, worldwide, who shouldn't have at least some NYNEX cards in his or her collection." Well said. Change, as it always does, creates opportunity.

We also need to take a few words to salute a lot of work done by Mary Holthaus, Moneycard Collector's administrative assistant, who is moving on to new challenges in a different division of our parent company, Amos Press Inc. Mary's cheerful manner and professional, efficient work have been a boon to staff and readers alike.

Finally, congratulations to Barbara Burger of Cleveland, Tenn., who won the only-released set of three Nevada Bell holiday prototypes. For more on that contest and the opinions of the dealers we invited to participate, please see Page 5. See Page 37 for details about our next contest.

he Nevada Bell prototype Christmas set now has a home.
Winner Barbara Burger of Cleveland, Tenn., guessed the value of the set at $$ 500$. The average price estimated by dealers who responded to our call for opinions was $$ 519$. As outlined in our rules, the highest and lowest dealer estimates were thrown out, and the rest of the guesses averaged.
The 129 collectors who participated had a higher opinion of the value. The average estimate was $$ 948.65$, with the high and low of $$ 47.86$ and $$ 12,500$ set aside.

Pacific Bell gave the single set, one of only 30 made and the only one that has been released, to Moneycard Collector to help promote the phonecard-collecting hobby. Many dealers approached the contest cautiously, noting that their guesses were based on the assumption that none of the other sets ever would be released. See comments, below.

Burger, a Destiny representative and a relative newcomer to phonecards, has no plans to sell the set. "I'm going to keep them ... I loved them when I saw them" she says, noting that three other family members also entered guesses. "They're mine."

We introduced the contest to readers in Moneycard Collector's February edition, and repeated the call for entries in March. Our thanks to Pacific Bell, our dealer participants, and our contestants! See Page 37 for details about our next contest.

DEALER COMMIENTS ON SET'S WORTH

Acme Telecard $$ 100$ My guess on this set would be about $$ 300$ if in fact Nevada Bell has ever issued cards. If they never have, then to me these are just pieces of plastic. Even though only 30 were issued, anybody could do cards like this and not issue them. If Nevada Bell hasn't issued cards, then I think the maximum this set is worth is maybe $$ 100$.
B&B Fone Cards and Promotions $$ 300$ We would buy this set at $$ 200$ and sell at $$ 300$. We are one of the larger dealers in these types of cards. A problem is what happens to the other 29 sets - do they go to one dealer? These types of sets often bring problems.
Buffalo Bill Telecard Gallery $$ 600$ This set is not worth as much as the Pacific Bell 1995 first Christmas set of 12, of which only about 100 complete sets exist. That set retails for $$ 660$. Also, currently it is almost impossible to sell any U.S. card set for more than $$ 500$. It is easy to put a high value such as $$ 1,200$ or $$ 1,500$ on a set like this, but no collector actually will pay that.
Steve Eyer Inc. $\mathbf{$ 1 , 0 0 0}$ That price assumes the other 29 sets someday will become available. It is worth more if they've been destroyed. I arrived at that price from watching other RBOC special sets sell (or not sell).
Freedman Collectibles $\mathbf{$ 7 5 0}$ No comments.
Global Telecard Co. $100 I have a lot of problems with this. They put a lot of stuff in the hands of Pac Bell employees that eventually will come out. The set is not really a rare card because you can't verify how many are out there. You (Moneycard Collector) definitely shouldn't give them an incentive to put out those kinds of cards.
The Greatest Moment Inc. $$ 325$ Being the card is a new issue and is a limited prototype, here is how I arrived at the price. When sports card companies send out so-called prototypes, with actual cards to follow, the estimate is usually two and a half times the value. If the card is never issued, the card can either be worth zero or 100 times the value, depending on what the card is.
J&G Telecards $325 I would compare the following: Ameritech Shareholder Proof, 10 made, estimated retail value $$ 500$; Ameritech Monet, 10 proofs, estimated retail value $$ 150$; Ameritech $$ 5$ and $$ 10$ Jumbos, 50 made; estimated retail value $$ 1,100$.
KARS Unlimited $$ 1,000$ I value it at this price based on the assumption that it will be the only set ever available, and because of its affiliation with the Baby Bells.
Powell Associates Ine. No estimate. We are unable to give you a price, as we are not familiar with the particulars leading to the production of these cards. The danger here is that we do not know who has the other 29 sets. Your artificial price structure could be used to make a handsome profit.
Promotional Phone Cards $\mathbf{$ 2 3 5}$ Here's how you would price these cards: Face value for the three cards is $$ 35$. Multiply that by 3 since they are prototypes or proofs ($105). Multiply that by two since they are rare, only 30 sets made "Readers ( $$ 210$ ). Add $$ 25$ since they were never issued ($235).

Always
Sears Phonecard Department $$ 600$ Put me down as believing the cards are worth $$ 500$ to $$ 1,000$. I'd pick $$ 600$. The reason? Only 30 sets were "issued," and it's an RBOC.
TW Phonecards $$ 475$ The estimate is a median range, as I feel the set could fall anywhere between $$ 375$ and $$ 750$. Is will return next edition. 30 sets surface, I would expect the average sale price to be near $$ 475$.
USACard $$ 2,000$ If one set only is ever released, I'd pay $$ 2,000$ for it. The sky's the limit. What would sustain a high value would be an official document from Pac Bell saying that this is the one and only set that will ever be released. On the other hand, if all 30 sets were available, the value would be about $$ 650$.

Promotional Mail-in offers, refunds open doors for collectors

By Tom Williams

Innovative Telecom; Taster's Choice; 10 minutes; 8,250 issued; May 1995 amp, and spend a little time. Yes, it is possible to begin or add to your phonecard collection without spending a fortune.
"These mail-in offers frequently aren't well publicized, but there are a considerable number of them," notes Brandeis University graduate student Melissa Beauchesne of Waltham, Mass. "Much of my phonecard collection consists of these cards, which I usually got for the price of the product, which in most cases I needed anyway, and a postage stamp."
"The lure of something for nothing always has been a successful advertising tool. In the past few years many companies have turned to phonecards to promote their products. Let those marketing efforts help you as a collector," says refunding enthusiast-turned-collector Elizabeth Megyesi of Fairview Park, Ohio.
"In September 1994, in the coupon section of the Sunday papers, I found a form to send for a limited-edition Ball Park Franks prepaid phonecard," she recalls. "All you had to do was send in a couple of Universal Product Codes from the wrapper. That's what got me started collecting phonecards."

Judy Medeiros of

Marion, Va., a self-proclaimed "middle-aged housewife" got started in a similar way. "In November 1994, I came across an offer to send in Doral cigarette proofs-of-purchase in exchange for a $10-$ minute phonecard," she says. "Actually, I didn't have any idea how it worked. I thought perhaps it was some type of certificate that you enclosed with your phone bill. I was leery of using it - I was sure that the charges would show up on my phone bill."

Out of such tentative beginnings, great collections have grown.
"In March 1995, another offer appeared in a Sunday newspaper supplement for 30 minutes of prepaid calls in exchange for 18 UPCs from Angel Soft bathroom tissue. This really got my attention," Medeiros says. "Having relatives all over the country, I figured this card could be worth quite a bit to me."

The next month, she got a Best Foods 25 -minute phonecard for eight UPCs and a cash register receipt. Then came the Palmolive dishwashing liquid 10 -minute card. The list has been growing ever since: Leggs, French's, Hillshire Farms, 3-M Post-Its, General Electric, Lipton Recipe Secrets, Mott's, Yoo-Hoo drinks, Style, True and Kent cigarettes, Ace Hardware, Hormel products, Kit Kat candy bars and dozens of others.
"Early on, I heard that people were collecting these cards as well as using the time. At first, I didn't get too excited - I was just happy to lower my phone bill. But the more cards I got, the more excited I became," Medeiros says.

Beauchesne also found out that collectibility is not the only plus. "If you primarily collect used cards, receiving cards from refunding is even a sweeter deal.

The amount you save in using the cards usually equals or outweighs the cost of the product you purchased to get the phonecard, and you still have a collectible card," she says. "Some of these cards have lovely artwork or unusual designs, such as the Timberline men's cologne phonecard (MEM Co.) and the die-cut Taster's Choice (Innovative Telecom). Still, what I like best about collecting primarily 'refunded' cards is that I didn't have to pay for them."

Among recent phonecard offers found by Beauchesne: Schering-Plough, makers of Afrin, Drixoral, ChlorTrimetron and Coricidin, put a mail-in offer for a 15-minute phonecard on the packaging of those products; Renuzit Air Fresheners offer a form for a 10 -minute GTS phonecard in certain packages of "Roommates" air fresheners; Score Board's wrapper redemption program can be redeemed for phonecards up to $$ 100$. Although it was the luck of the draw, specially marked Kellogg's cereal packages contained a 6minute, 40 -second Nintendo phonecard by Innovative Telecom ("Corporate Corner," February 1997).

Many refund offers are limited to one-per-customer, but there are some exceptions. The Knorr Soup \& Sauces $10-\mathrm{minute}$ card, issued by WorldCall 2000 , had a "bounce-back" offer, Megyesi says. "It required five UPCs with their refund form. With each card sent, the company included another form and invitation to send again. Participation in the phonecard offer also entered you in a sweepstakes." Another "bounce-back" offer was provided by Mr. Turkey Lunchmeat through RCI Long Distance. By sending four UPCs you received a four-minute Brooks Robinson card, or an eight-minute card for sending eight. Each card they sent came with a form to either reorder another Brooks Robinson card or a send for a Willie Stargell four- or eight-minute card.

There are ways to receive free phonecards other than through mail-in offers. Sometimes you can find the cards or card offers packaged with products right on the store shelves. The form for Frontier's Paul Masson 10-minute card, issued October 1995, was found hanging on the neck of their wine bottles. The Curel five-minute card came shrink-wrapped to some of their bottles. If you are going to buy the product anyway, you might as well check the shelves and buy the ones with the added bonus of a phonecard.

Another good way to keep up on offers is to subscribe to refund magazines that keep tabs on many phonecard offers. Medeiros coordinates a phonecard exchange column that she suggested for Refund Express magazine. The work is not as easy, she says - chores include tracking expiration dates and making sure the swapper doesn't get the same card back and that swapped cards have the same number of minutes - but it has brought her a lot of new cards.

Use the Internet to find links to cards, the collectors advise. A 13-minute MCI paper punch-out card was given away for a limited time, Megyesi says. It was free for visiting the Educational Testing Service website and simply filling out a survey. Also found on the computer was information about a contest sponsored by Lodgenet Entertainment. Participants who answered a question about the movie "Independence Day" won a free Interactive Media Works' 10 -minute card.
"Free or nearly free card promotions are increasing in number. Be on the lookout for phonecards anywhere," Megyesi says. "The offer of a free phonecard has become a marketing tool and users and collectors alike can benefit."
"I can look at my phonecard collection and rejoice in the fact that I have a very small amount of cash invested in it," Medeiros adds. "Phonecard collectors don't know what they are missing if they don't take advantage of manufacturers' promotions to get phonecards free. Since this is the easiest and least-expensive way to get these cards, everyone should give it a try."
"I can't believe all these cards exist," she says. "It's like putting a small child down in the middle of a Toys-R-Us store."

[^1]In a move that caused great disappointment throughout the worldwide collector community, NYNEX announced in mid-February that it was terminating its Change Card program, and immediately began removing the yellow phones that accepted phonecards from the streets of Manhattan. It turns out that discussions on the matter had begun a year previously, with the actual decision made six months later. Disappointment aside, certainly no one can argue that NYNEX can't make any business decision they think is in the best interests of the company.

However, it can be argued, especially by collectors and dealers, that NYNEX never really gave the concept a chance. Without exception, everyone contacted for this article stated that the NYNEX Change Card program was doomed virtually from the start, because of the company's failure to actively promote the cards, and to install a sufficient base of the yellow payphones that accepted them. Recent attempted dumping or returning of mass quantities of NYNEX Change Cards by speculators (see "Speculators & NYNEX," Page 9) opened up another can of worms.

In 1994, NYNEX stated that 5,000 of the yellow phones would be installed in Manhattan. In fact, only about 850 were ever installed, many of them were located in areas with virtually no foot traffic. Turnover in key NYNEX personnel was seen as another factor in the program's demise, as was the merger with Bell Atlantic, whose own phonecard program was short-lived.

From 1991 to 1994, NYNEX conducted a pilot program, using Landis & Gyr optical stored memory phonecards. These were among the first stored-value phonecards in the U.S., and were immensely popular. The L&G system was used in dozens of other countries, worldwide, including England (which only recently introduced chip phonecards). In 1994, NYNEX concluded the pilot, and switched to the type of magnetic backed stored value cards widely used in Japan. Many collectors applauded this move, as the new cards had the potential for more detailed and colorful graphics; a potential that many also feel was never fully exploited.

Industry watchers are puzzled as to why the technology, which is proven and has significant advantages over payphones that require coins, isn't more widespread. In the U.S., only U S WEST is actively using stored value phonecards on a large scale, with about 15,000 phones installed. GTE Hawaiian Telephone, Nevada Bell and Bell South each have a few hundred phones accepting, or capable of accepting, stored value phonecards and Visa Cash.

Interestingly, both of our neighbors to the north and south have had significant stored value phonecard systems for years. Bell Canada, TELMEX, and TELNOR have all installed large numbers of payphones accepting chip cards. Many of these phones also accept credit cards, and all have the potential for using multi-purpose stored value cards.

NYNEX is installing new phones that are capable of being retrofitted for use with smartcards, though there are three problems with this. The first is that these phones would use smartcards that are not compatible with the system used by U S WEST and Visa Cash. Second, it is a fact of life that any feature not included during the initial phases of any project tends never to be implemented, due to much greater costs, and budget reductions, in the future. Finally, based on its track record, why would NYNEX go with a third system of phonecards, when they did so little to effectively use or promote the second one they had? Would collectors be the least bit interested in yet another NYNEX card scheme?

Speaking of collectors, how does all this affect us? Will prices go up, down or stay the same? The answers are, of course, yes. And no. And nobody knows. All that is certain is that now is the best time to stock up on any missing NYNEX cards you need for your collection. Regardless of the fact that the cards are no longer good to make phone calls, they are still very historical and thus very collectible. Personally, I can't think any of any phonecard collector, worldwide, who shouldn't have at least some NYNEX cards in his or her collection.

The only remaining question is, will NYNEX destroy the remaining Change Cards, and report the net totals sold? They did it for the L&G Change Cards, and this information was much appreciated by collectors. Interestingly, when they reported the final numbers of the optical cards, it had unintended consequences. For example, the reported figures showed that the "Wish You Were Here" postcard set of five cards had the lowest quantity sold of all the sets.

So, speculators stocked up on this set, and dumped other sets. The result? The retail price of the WYWH set dropped, while prices of other sets, such as the Ellis Island cards, actually increased. Ironically, this was because many owners of these cards, thinking that they were common, returned them for refunds, thus creating a shortage of them in the market. The bottom line is, forget about speculation in phonecards, buy what you can for your collection at the lowest prices you can find, and just have fun.

It has been said that speculators can ruin a hobby. They purchase huge quantities of newly issued items, which drives up the prices in the short run. Eventually the bubble bursts and the speculators suddenly realize that what they have isn't particularly valuable and never will be. Panic sets in and the cards get dumped, disrupting an otherwise stable market. Speculators have been blamed for ruining other collectible hobbies, especially sports cards.

Speculating in new issues of phonecards is, to put it bluntly, stupid.

Most dealers are not speculators. They can't afford to be. The reason? They need a constant cash flow to make money. The object is to take capital, and turn it over as frequently as possible.

A well-known English dealer says he never buys any large quantity of U.S. phonecards until they have been on the market for at least six months. He says that, invariably, the price has peaked and started to fall. The winners stand out. More importantly, so do the losers.

So, how have speculators affected NYNEX phonecards? And, what about the current dumping, and attempts to get huge refunds from NYNEX for unwanted cards? Let's start with the most notable NYNEX card of all; the $1 1992 Democratic National Convention card $-20,000$ were issued. Speculation soon pushed the price up to more than $$ 1,500$. But once somewhat cooler heads prevailed, the price dropped to half that, and later to about half that again.

It is said that speculators in Germany were the main cause of the inflated price. A usually reliable source reports some German speculators are selling this card in quantity for less than $$ 100$. Interestingly, that brings it below the price of the $$ 5 \mathrm{DNC}$ card, of which 12,000 were produced. That also brings the $$ 1 \mathrm{DNC's}$ price probably where it should have been in the first place.

What about the speculators dumping NYNEX cards, or trying to return large quantities to NYNEX for a refund? Because of dumping, one source says you can now get just about any NYNEX Change Card, whether L&G or magnetic, for face value. Another dealer is selling some at below face. As for the speculators seeking refunds, they had bought thousands of new-issue Change Cards. After a few years, they saw that perhaps this wasn't a particularly great investment, so they asked NYNEX for a refund. The company agreed, and cards were sent in.

After a few months, however, NYNEX decided to back out of giving the refunds (refunds were provided to good-faith purchasers, who bought the cards to actually make phonecalls). Though the company won't publicly state their reasons for the change of mind, those in the industry say there should be no obligation to bail out speculators.

Were the speculators harmed by NYNEX's refusal to buy back cards? Yes, they lost the postage it took to ship the cards. Were they worse off than before they sent in the cards? No. They had voluntarily bought the cards. The only harm suffered by speculators from NYNEX's subsequent refund refusal was that the NYNEX; DNC Skyline; $1 denomination; 20,000 issued; July 1992. company made them angry. Courts won't award damages for that reason alone.

There is the overwhelming lack of sympathy for the speculators, as voiced by members of Compuserve's Money and Phonecard Section of the Collectibles Forum. Many collectors and dealers had been burned by speculators in sports cards and other collectible areas, and felt the NYNEX speculators got what they deserved. Some of the remarks were very strong, and there was little support for the speculators.

For a collector, a moderate approach to speculation would be to buy two, put one in your album, and save the other to sell later, when the price goes up. Even if the value of the extra card doesn't go up, it always can be used for swapping. Don't succumb to greed, and you'll have fun.

WORDS ON NUMBERS

The Fizz about Pepsi's Time in Space

The pop for the next generation has recently discovered the collectible for the next generation. The new "Pepsi Time in Space" card, as you can see, is already on America's Most Wanted (Page 10), and collectors and dealers alike are heralding it as one of the coolest phonecards yet.

But, with a pardon to the other cola guys, is it the real thing?

If you've purchased the card before March 1, your live card probably says, on the reverse, "Network services provided by Karis Communications" and shows a serial number up to 500 . The samples were not sequentially numbered. The access number is (800) 265-8021.

On the other hand, you might have one that says "Network services provided by Direct Link," and if it's live, the back features a serial number over 1,500 on the front of the card. The 20-25 samples are not numbered and the access number is
(888) 889-9678.

Uh-oh.
Here's the scoop as we understand it: Vertical Partners of Rancho Santa Margarita, Calif., is "the" Pepsi licensee. Vertical Partners created 1,500 of these live cards to be sold to employees and Pepsi collectors and intended to release the remainder for sale to the general public after March 1.

Karis Communications; Pepsi Time in Space; 5 minutes; 500 live and 500 sample cards issued; February 1997.

Domestic & International Calling Card
(1) DIAL 1-888-889-9678
(2) ENTER PIN # ON FRONT OF CARD
(3) DIAL AREA CODE + PHONE NUMBER

Vertical Partners; Pepsi Time in Space; 5 minutes; 1,500 live cards issued; March 1997.

All but about 100 of these cards are sealed in acrylic display boxes to keep them in mint condition.

Vertical Partners stated that its card is the officially licensed Pepsi card and is fully authorized. Vertical Partners has no comment about the Karis Communications card.

Karis Communications claims that their Pepsi card was produced with authorization from a Vertical Partners representative. Karis
Communications did provide Moneycard Collector with a copy of the document that claims to authorize the production of 500 live and 500 sample cards to be sold directly into Europe.

So, yes, there are two "Pepsi Time in Space" cards. And knowing the popularity of card variations, owning both will be a goal for many collectors. However, collecting a set of match-numbered cards may be difficult, since only 500 will be possible.

The parties involved with this card are in earnest discussion concerning the production and distribution of this card. We hope to have more information to report to you in next month's issue.

Those hundred or so spotted canines and their cards

As you know, the 101 Dalmatians cards from AT&T are both cute and most wanted (Page 10). We first learned about the cards last October, and were excited to report information given to us directly from contacts at Disney: 5,000 five-card sets were made. We set the price at a generous $$ 30$ for the set (more than $$ 1$ a minute).

Well, there were a couple problems with that.
First, there were only 1,000 sets made, not 5,000 , as we had been told. Additionally, to get the free set of cards, one had to purchase a $$ 48$ 101 Dalmatians sweatshirt from the Disney Catalog. Some dealers are figuring the price of the sweatshirt into the price of the phonecards. They consider the $$ 48$ plus shipping they paid as the wholesale price, thus retail is twice that. So currently prices for the Dalmatian cards span a broad price range: anywhere from $$ 50$ to $$ 125$.

Granted, the limited edition cards are nice, feature licensed Disney images and the AT&T logo - a Midas Touch for many phonecards. But should the collector be forced to absorb the price of the sweatshirt? It's something to think about. This month, the card set is priced at $$ 100-$ because many dealers were selling the cards in that price range. That is $$ 4$ a minute for the set.

Everything old renewed again?

What are the most valuable cards in our hobby today? I have to agree with Senior Contributing Writer Arthur Becker: collectors are divided in many ways, but the greatest separation lies between those who collect historical issues versus those who collect hot new cards.

What you collect determines what is hot for you, but a consensus can usually be reached about the definition of a historical card. No doubt, some of the best historical cards to collect are RBOC cards (see story on Page 47) - these are the kinds of cards that might end up in museums.

And then again, there are some forgotten or lost cards that have both age and collectible beauty, such as the recently discovered AmeriVox Green Bay Packers Prototype or promotional cards from defunct companies.

And on the other hand, there are some cards that are, well ... just plain old. They aren't very special or attractive, chances are not too many were produced and frankly, say collectors, we're not interested.

It is understandable why some cards experience waning or nonexistent demand. Not all cards increase in value simply because of the passage of time. Some old cards have a lot going for them, many do not.

Deciding values on these cards is difficult. When the cards were first available for sale years ago, we had data on reported sales and prices on which we could firmly state prices. But as time passes, these cards fall out of sight, are forgotten, and are no longer sought after by dealers or collectors. So what are the cards worth now?

Good question.
I asked Keith Zaner, trends editor of Coin World, the world's leading coin publication, to give me some insight into this problem. For numismatics coins without proven prices or recently updated prices receive no value in the Coin World monthly price guide or yearly catalog. Because of the established need for values in the moneycard hobby, this is not feasible.

Deriving retail prices by simply adding a percentage based on the passage of time creates an imaginary price that might have little to do with reality. If you have questions about an older card's price, please note that it is derived from the last reported retail sale price. If the price needs to go up, demand will drive it to it's proper place in the market.

PROOFS & SPECIMENS ... VALUABLE PHONECARDS OR PIECES OF PLASTIC? Nothing is more exciting or enigmatic - than discovering a card with little or little on its reverse. Some collectors actually seek out these cards, whether to match a live card they already have or to build a collection of only proofs and specimens. But what are they actually worth?

First, let's make sure we're all on the same wavelength. A blank-back card is called a proof. A proof is used to test the print quality of the face of a phonecard and accordingly, only about 10 are needed.

Once the proof is approved and any needed changes are made, the printer creates a specimen. A specimen is a card that, unlike the blank-back proof, features a reverse with all of the information that the final card should have. The specimen is used to catch any errors in that information, such as an incorrect access (800) number, customer service number or instructions. They may state "SPECIMEN," "SAMPLE" or "TEST."

The main purpose of proof and specimen cards is to edit and proofread for the final product: the live phonecard. In the past, many companies produced relatively few of both types of card, which, because of their rarity, made the cards scarce and valuable.

But, as Steve Schwartz of Sears Phone Card Department notes, this is not so much the case any longer. "Sample cards are being printed in order to bring extra income to companies," Schwartz says. "This current trend isn't necessarily a bad thing, but collectors should be aware of overproduction."

Indeed, if the proof and specimen cards you hold are not numbered, or the company has not released or kept a record of how many of such cards were printed, beware.
"Many times," Schwartz says, "printer's 'overruns' are unethically sold directly by the printers, who were only authorized to print the cards."

Therefore, if an issuer claims to have produced only numbered specimens and proofs, collectors should stick to those. Others may be counterfeit or one of many overruns.

Additionally, proofs and specimens also make good examples of the final product and are given to the media and potential customers. Because some companies make unlimited - or at least unknown - quantities of such cards, valuing them based on rarity can be a mistake. There could be more proofs and specimens than live cards.

Whose baby is it?

Most collectors know that for the most part, proofs and specimens do not sell for as much money as a live card unless: the company that produced it is reputable; the live card is very special or highly sought-after; and the quantity available is accurately disclosed.

Many proofs and specimens demand a premium price based on the company that created the card. No doubt, "sample" AT&T Teletickets will command higher prices than most proofs or specimens. Although little is divulged by AT&T about the numbers created, dealers who handle the cards are aware of how infrequently some come along, and the cards can then be priced on rarity.

Special live cards will boast more expensive and highly desired proofs and specimens than an average card. The first USACard Cracker Jack card from last year, a very popular card, was preceded by 19 proofs and 41 samples. Five of the samples were made for the scarce 15 unit card and are valued at $$ 200$ (at least).

But how can one ensure that the number reported - and thus the derived value - is accurate? Buy wisely, and buy from people you trust.

Jack Ritchie of JR's Telecards thinks building a collection of proofs and specimens isn't easy. "This is a very complicated process and I think most average collectors would be better off finding a dealer they can trust," he says.

The bottom line on valuing  A truly valuable specimen or proof is one of very few cards that preceded a popular live card from a well-known, respected company. Based on the established market value of the live card, the proof or specimen may bring from twice to three times the live card value. A less popular card's proofs and specimens may bring half the market value of the live card. At shows or through some sales, reams of such cards can be had for $$ 2$ or less. Confused? Don't be. Many collectors want proofs and specimens to go with their live cards to have the whole family. If all the cards are numbered, a matched-numbered set of three is highly desirable. Some collectors simply want as many samples as possible ... but most just want what they like. Now that's value!Next Month: Top Tips for New Collectors

ISSUERS HOPE COLLECTORS WILL SING THAT TUNE IN ‘97 As far as America's pasttime is concerned, 1997 is a new ball game - or so Major League Baseball wants fans to believe. The strike that short-circuited the 1994 season didn't do MLB licensees any good, phonecard issuers included, but companies already are planning to take advantage of the new peace on the diamond.

Who can blame them? In 1994 major league baseball players and team owners went on a kamikaze mission by throwing the longest strike in the history of the game. The end result - many former fans have not walked into a baseball park since that nine-month debacle. It didn't help that a collective bargaining agreement - the heart of the deal between the players and owners - wasn't signed until late 1996, and even then there were rumors of a second, even more entrenched strike.

In fact, Marty Brockstein, executive editor of the Licensing Letter, estimates that sales of baseballlicensed products took a dip of as much as 40 percent, partially because of the strike, partially because there wasn't a good licensing program in place anyway.
"I would say it has slipped to less than $$ 1.5$ billion dollars," Brockstein says. "The fact the labor deal wasn't signed until the last couple of months did not help any. There was a major discomfort area

OmniTel strikes out

OmniTel of Waltham, Mass., an issuer quoted extensively in the original version of this article, apparently is out of business.

OmniTel President Shawn Canada spoke at length in late February about OmniTel's approach to issuing baseball phonecards and voiced optimism about a blossoming baseball market.

But on Friday, March 7,
OmniTel executives called in their rank-and-file workers and announced that the company was closing its Omnitel; Mo Vaughn; $8 denomination; 5,000 issued; October 1995. doors, according to other companies who have had dealings with OmniTel and who spoke to Moneycard Collector on the condition of anonymity.

"OmniTel had high-profile card programs, but not very many big ones," one phonecard executive said. OmniTel officials could not be reached for comment.

Among those reportedly hit in the pocketbook by the closing is Boston Red Sox slugger Mo Vaughn, whose voice recording was still greeting OmniTel callers a week after the closing.
about this among licensees." Considering that baseball had topped $$ 2$ billion in licensed product sales before the strike, there is plenty of discomfort to go around.

Not that there weren't success stories The Score Board Inc. admits it had a good run with their licensed baseball telecards that were

Scoreboard/7-Eleven; Wade Boggs; 15 minutes; quantity unavailable; June 1996. distributed through the 7-Eleven chain. "I see it as very positive," says Score Board Brand Manager Andy Massimino. "Whenever the players and management are getting along with each other, that is good for the business of baseball, particularly for the licensees."

Massamino says Score Board is going to have another phonecard program with 7-Eleven this year.
"I can't give out the details because we're waiting for the final approval from the (Major League Baseball) Players Associa-tion," he says. "What I can tell you is we'll do it in three waves like last year, with cards coming out in May, June and July. It will be done on a national level replete with TV commercials."

Other plans include a second, even larger program for general retailers, according to Massimino. Pending approval, Score Board hopes to get that one out by April. "We hope to get these cards into even more retail stores than before and continue the education of the general consumer about what phone cards are all about." The Score Board plans to customize its programs for regional retailers, adds Massimino.

While Score Board is awaiting approval from the Players Association, Massimino did state that some of the players featured include the likes of the aforementioned Ripken, Frank Thomas, Mike Piazza, Chipper Jones, Alex Rodriguez and Derek Jeter - all players with whom Score Board has memorabilia agreements.
"The Yankees winning the World Series is really good for us because New York is such a strong market, plus they are one of the most recognized teams in the world. That really helps us as far as merchandising our product. Having Derek Jeter doesn't hurt because he is not only a Yankee, but also Rookie of the Year," says Massimino.

Massimino adds, "Time heals all wounds. As we move farther away from the strike, I think baseball fans will forget and forgive and that will help everybody out."

It's an old sports saw that soccer is the No. 1 sport for the rest of the world, but it will never take hold in the U.S. The only Division I league in the country, Major League Soccer, and its parent body, the U.S. Soccer Federation, would beg to differ with those broadcasters and other media blowhards who still insist on spouting that cliché.

Last season's attendance was more than 17,000 a game, well above the expected 12,000 . The licensing sponsors are lining up, including telecommunications giant AT&T. AT&T's first sport-related phonecard issue was a card commemorating players of the National Basketball Association, replete with a premium card only given away at the 1997 NBA All-Star Game. Their second, however, will be a series of cards revolving around Major League Soccer.
"They probably won't be available until mid-season this year," says Joe Schramm of Schramm TeleMedia, who is representing AT&T's interest in this card issue. The cards will be done in partnership with other sponsors and are pending final approval and will be available in different denominations. AT&T is planning two different issues - a premium issue to be given away through the various other sponsors, and a general retail issue in denominations ranging from $$ 2$ to $$ 50$.
"What we are interested in doing is making sure that people will be able to use the cards. Also, we want to be sure that the cards are available to children," he says. "One of the statistics we found most useful is that 50 percent of all the adults who attended a Major League Soccer game did so with a child."

Also riding the soccer wave are some new Pacific Bell cards, released March 1. They include a soccer player as one of the prominent images on the $$ 20$ "Outside Sports" card in their new American Spirit Series. In addition to the 250,000 issued of that $$ 20$ card, Pacific Bell also released a definitive soccerthemed series March 1 - one with a generic soccer scene, and the two others featuring pro stars Mauricio Cienfuegos and Cobi Jones. Pacific Bell does not have an agreement with the L.A. Galaxy, the pro soccer team for which both Jones and Cienfuegos play, so they appear on the cards in generic uniforms.

The hard-case soccer skeptics also should take a look at the international World Cup, the premier event of soccer. Last held in 1994 in the U.S., the World Cup stimulated a number of U.S. phonecards that have sparked collector interest.

"Some of the most established sets of cards are prepaid phonecards from the World Cup," says Luis Vigdor of Powell Associates, noting especially the rare Sprint set featuring the World Cup logo. That set (no quantity available) is highly desired by prepaid phonecard collectors because Sprint used the World Cup logo licensed by MasterCard, and, after a legal battle, withdrew it, and issued a replacement set without the logo. The latter set is actually two 24 -card sets in $$ 10$ and $$ 25$ denominations and still retains face value.

An even earlier Sprint four-card puzzle set, issued in July 1993 and later reprinted with an italic "94," commands prices in the $$ 175$ range.

Among other sets that still stimulate collector interest is the three-card Ameritech Coin$aver soccer series issued in June 1994. The $$ 2, $ 5$ and $$ 10$ cards, featuring stylized drawings of soccer players, sell for $$ 25-$ 30$ per set.

Also celebrating the 1994 World Cup, but without Sprint's licensing hassles, was Access International's 25 -card

March 1997. "World Card" sets in $$ 5$ and $$ 20$ denominations, each featuring a generic soccer player against the backdrop of a country's flag. The 25th card in each set featured a collage of the teams' flags. There were 5,000 of each set issued.

Vigdor points out that international collectors also pay attention to U.S.-issued phonecards. "There's a lot of interest for the international players playing in the U.S. In fact, Bolivia has several of their best players currently working for the U.S. teams. If there are phonecards featuring those players, there will be people in Bolivia who will want them."

Vigdor sees promise in the AT&T Major League Soccer program. "If AT&T charges the correct rate, they could be very good," he says. "A one minute for one dollar is not appropriate. If AT&T charges $$ 10$ for 30 or 40 minutes, then I think it will be a success."

Among the cards issued by Celebrity Debit cards that collectors might squeal over are $$ 10$ and $$ 20$ denomination cards issued for Piggly Wiggly, a Southeast supermarket chain. The cards are being sold in all Piggly Wiggly supermarkets. Mintage is ongoing for the cards, which were first issued in April 1996.

Another card was issued by Celebrity for the Hooters chain of restaurants might be tougher to find. There were $1,000 $ 10$ cards issued in June 1996, featuring the familiar bigeyed owl logo.

New from Tell-One Inc. is another Burger King card. This time out, the card is tied into a promotion with Burger King Kids meals and The Cartoon Network, and that makes for an interesting combination of images. There were 1,00010 -minute cards issued.

Hot off a successful promotion with AT&T, General Foods International Coffees has another program brewing - this time, with MCI. Packaged inside specially marked cans of General Foods International Coffees Suisse Mocha, you'll find a 10 -minute card promoting the product. There's no scratch-off so you can use the time and still have a card in mint condition after it expires.

If you haven't found any phonecard offers in your Sunday newspaper's coupon section recently, you might want to take another look. Here are some recent offers found by one of our readers:

- Target recently offered a 5 -minute card with the purchase of a 101 Dalmatians pen. Also from Target, a 10 -minute card with the purchase of Zenith Universal remote control.
- Montgomery Ward stores offered two 30minute cards with the purchase of select jewelery items.

New Media Vice President of Sales Mike Mudd believes that strong card images that promote collectibility help influence retail sales.

If you've ever watched television on a Sunday morning or late at night, you might have seen an infomercial for prepaid phonecards that was sponsored by New Media Inc.
New Media is a switch-based telecommunications reseller. From its modern offices in La Jolla, Calif., it sells telecommunications products and services via network marketing and through larger direct distributors. Vice President of Sales Mike Mudd is a telecommunications industry veteran recently hired into New Media. We interviewed him about his new employer and about card collecting.

0-Of all the different marketing compa-- nies, why do you think New Media succeeds in attracting people to sell its products?

[-How large is New Media at this point - and what are the current and projected rates of growth?
 - We now have about 15,000 marketing 'reps and let's just say that our rate of growth is "strong." We're stimulating that growth with a lot of spending on advertising.

0-The prepaid phonecard industry is 'moving at a very rapid pace. Looking ahead, what do you think it will take to have successful products a year from now?

-The big opportunity will remain at the -retail level. The industry is now at about $$ 1.5$ billion per year and still growing at 25 to 30 percent per year. But to be attractive to the guy who runs, say, a convenience store, you will have to be able to offer a turn-key program - fulfillment, training manuals, on-site visits by sales reps - the works.

Recent events at DESTINY TELECOMM INTERNATIONAL have proven the cliché "We have some good news and we have some bad news." On Tuesday, March 18, Destiny, county prosecutors and the state attorney general's office reached an agreement staving off a $$ 20$ million civil lawsuit filed in late February.

Alameda and Monterey county prosecutors had raided Destiny's Oakland headquarters, charging that the company's network marketing structure was a pyramid scheme stressing commissions based on recruitments rather than product sales.

According to the San Francisco Chronicle, on March 18 the network marketing company agreed to pay a $$ 1.6$ million fine and alter its business practices in California. According to the Chronicle, Destiny officials agreed to the fine and changes simply to get back to business. An Almeda County judge had frozen most of Destiny's assets and appointed an administrator to oversee company finances.

Destiny President Randy Jeffers, quoted in Associated Press and Oakland Tribune stories, denied the charges. "For anyone to refer to (Destiny) as a pyramid scheme is tantamount to similarly branding Amway, Mary Kay or Avon." Jeffers said that Destiny is not a "get rich quick" scheme.
"We bought peace," Destiny attorney William Hill told the Chronicle in a March 19 story. "We think if we had had our day in court, we could have convinced a judge and jury that our business was in compliance ... But it just took too long to get a hearing. They put us out of business for 15 days; our bank accounts were frozen, so we couldn't pay commissions to our distributors."

According to the Oakland Tribune, Destiny's business practices have been investigated in at least eight other states, and the company has been allowed to continue operations, although it has agreed to pay thousands of dollars and alter business practices.

As part of the deal reported in the Chronicle, Destiny has agreed to several conditions, including issuing refunds to all distributors who ask for them and allowing prosecutors to inspect records with 48 hours' notice.
"We are going to have some reporting requirements, but I don't think Destiny has to make a single substantive change to its program," Hill told the Chronicle.

In other news, the company, through the Destiny Foundation, helped sponsor the annual Ski Spectacular in Breckenridge, Colo., in December, which was capped by Destiny's presentation of a $$ 50,000$ check to the organizer of the event. The Destiny Foundation is an independent charitable foundation funded by Destiny Telecomm, independent representatives and other contributors.

REGIONAL BELL OLDIES but GOODIES The collections of the future can be had inexpensively today

by Art Becker

So, how well do the phonecards from the Baby Bells sell? Moneycard Collector magazine asked more than a dozen dealers that question. The answers were relatively consistent across the board: Baby Bells cards sell consistently well, though few are considered exciting or hot.

That's in line with the conservative approach most of the Baby Bells take when it comes to issuing phonecards. Now is the time to get most of these cards. If you decide to wait, years from now you could be kicking yourself. There has recently been some panic selling of NYNEX cards (see the "Card Speculation," Page 9), and some of the common cards are even selling at below face value. Collectors should look around now for some great bargains.

The first issues of each of the Baby Bells are considered historical cards. While it might sound naive to say that there are two types of collectors, those who collect historical cards, and those who don't, there really is a distinction between the two groups. People who collect the historical cards also tend to collect used foreign phonecards. The collectors who don't much care for historical cards tend to collect the latest hot topical cards, in mint condition. One of the great things about collecting anything is that there is no right or wrong way, or collectible, to collect. You should just collect whatever gives you the most pleasure.

Stephen Schwartz of Sears Phone Card Department says, "The majority of collectors are still buying, but they prefer thematic collecting. There is very little current collector interest in any of the Regional Bell Operating Companies, even though these major issuers had been extremely desirable."

Bruce Harmon of ACME Telecards states, "Generally speaking, Baby Bell issues don't really sell any better than other issues for me. Now, unless it has a very familiar image or logo on it, it really doesn't matter if it's from a Baby Bell or not. I personally believe there are some great buys on early Baby Bell cards, specifically NYNEX Landis & Gyr cards. Right now it's a buyers market for a lot of early NYNEX cards. The latter statement is certainly borne out by some recent dealer pricelists, one of which has some NYNEX L&G cards at below face value, while another dealer is offering almost all the optical stripe cards for $$ 5$ each."

USACard's Klaus Degler says "The RBOCs will be instrumental in making phonecard collecting a favorite U.S. hobby, with thousands of their employees and family members as potential collectors. Within the next few decades, today's limited mintages will be much sought after collectibles, similar to coins and stamps. Just a small position in today's issues could prove to be the wisest investment of the ' 90 s."

James Moran of Telequest has seen the ups and downs. "I vividly recall many of the early NYNEX optical cards (Landis & Gyr) jumping in value as much as 1,000 percent in only a few days. A few very special cards, such as those issued for the DNC, skyrocketed even higher. All eventually came down out of the rarefied atmosphere and settled in at somewhat reasonable prices (if $$ 400$ plus can be considered reasonable for a $$ 1 \mathrm{DNC}$ ). With the recent offer of a very large batch of these cards for less than $$ 100$ each, the $$ 1$ DNC may eventually settle in where it should have to begin with; under the value of the much more scarce $5.25 DNC. Pricing, however, will continue at a reasonable level for quite a few years, and now is a great time for collectors to add these cards to their collections."

Terry Windholz of TW Phonecards, sees collectors as discriminating when it comes to buying Baby Bell cards. "Attractive issues have been what most collectors have purchased in the past, such as NYNEX King Kong, Ameritech Cherry Festival, etc." His tip as to what cards to buy: "The Bell South Flamingo cards can be found reasonably priced in comparison to the mintages, and should prove to be a nice acquisition for any RBOC collector."
"It is my opinion that RBOC phonecards of the present, and of the immediate past, will be the ones that are sought after in years to come," Ernie Rose of United America Cards says. "They will be the real bread winners as this exciting hobby grows. Evidence of this already exists in the current price guides."

Kurt Kemmling of KEMCO Enterprises, is right in the mainstream of phonecard thinking as he says, "Some of the best bargains I have come across, and recommend to my customers, are some of the early Ameritech cards, such as the US WEST; Hand Drums; $3 denomination; 20,000 issued; December 1994.

Coinsavers, Snowflakes, etc. Another begin to move up in value."

Scott Nemeroff notices that "Interest in the Baby Bells has waned over the past year. I think in the long run, early Bell issues will continue to be avaluable collector asset. The termination of the NYNEX Change Card program is very unfortunate. [But] the Honus Wagner card is one of the most valuable collectibles in the world, even though cigarette manufacturers stopped putting trading cards in their packs years ago. I think I will hold on to my Change Cards."

Al Chiaravalle of Global Telecard Company, is right in NYNEX's headquarters town of White Plains, N.Y., and has seen it all. He says he has some great bargains on NYNEX cards right now. His RBOC tip? The NYNEX Landis & Gyr Ellis Island set.

There has always been confusion about the quantities of Bell South cards. Why so many testcards were printed remains a mystery. Large quantities of other magnetic cards were produced for a relatively small number of actual phones that accepted them. After the first two sets of remote memory cards, nothing else was produced.

Still, these are the first issues of a Baby Bell, and worth purchasing for that reason. Look for dealers in the Southeast, who may have stocked up on these phonecards, and now be happy to sell them at favorable (to you) prices.

Ameritech's first remote memory cards, the Snowflakes, are still available at extremely reasonable prices, considering that about half the cards produced were destroyed, and there weren't all that many to begin with. Their Michigan Bell Landis & Gyr card set from 1987 and 1988 remains the most historical Baby Bell set you can get.
U.S. WEST still has just a handful of their second series of Indian-theme chip cards available. Collectors shoud check with their new master distributors, USACard and KARS.

So, the cards are out there, but sales are slow. At the risk of sounding like a broken record, this is your chance to scoop up the Regional Bell Oldies but Goodies at the some of the best prices since they were issued. Get them now.

[^5]|NITED AIRLINES' "MILEAGE PLUS." The first line in a promotional flier for United Airlines' new phonecard reads "We'll admit, the new Mileage Plus Global Phone Card looks just like a calling card." The card looks just like a prepaid phonecard, too, sporting the image of a jetliner and a big " $$ 50$ " in the lower right corner. Don't start dialing Grandma just yet, though. The flier goes on to tell you that, if you call an 800 number and pay $$ 50$, your card will be activated with 142 minutes of domestic time by Carrier Services Inc. - what people who received the card and flier actually have is a piece of plastic with " $$ 50$ " printed on it. If activated and used, the card also earns callers 500 Mileage Plus miles, plus more when the card is renewed.

THE FACTS ABOUT PREPAID CARDS. The U.S. Federal Trade Commission, American Express, the Better Business Bureau and the New York Attorney General have teamed up to produce "Buying Time: The Facts About Prepaid Phone Cards."
"With more than 500 companies now offering prepaid phonecards, consumers must be aware of companies that go out of business, hidden charges that might exist and poor quality connections," says Barbara Berger Opotowsky, president of the Better Business Bureau. "We urge consumers to check out the company or buy a small denomination card the first time they purchase."

The brochure, available in English or Spanish, offers consumers tips on how to check out cards they purchase and directs them where to go for help.
